HOOVER READY TO RUN ON WET PLANK: RASKOB

Warns Drys Would Call Him Judas.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Feb. 25.—[Special.]—An assertion that he had "direct information" that President Hoover has signified his willingness to run on a platform containing a wet plank this year was made by John J. Raskob, chairman of the Democratic national committee, at a dinner of the New York Democratic club tonight.

Furthermore, Raskob continued, the drys who have looked to Hoover as their leader will brand him "a Judas, and will vote for the devil before they vote for him."

Replies to Question.

The chairman's statement, which startled his hearers at the Hotel Shelton, was made in response to a question as to the advisability of pushing his home rule idea as a solution of the prohibition problem in a year of "unusual Democratic opportunities."

Raskob said he offered his plan to the national committee because he feared the Republicans would sponsor such a plan themselves and as a solution that would avoid giving southern Democrats "a slap in the face."

SIGN WET PETITION

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 25.—[Special.]—Wet congressmen to the number of 110 rushed forward today to sign the petition to bring the Beck-Linthicum resolution for revision of the eighteenth amendment to the floor of the house.

It literally was a rush. Responding to the rallying call of Representative F. H. La Guardia [Rep., N. Y.], the wets swarmed into the well of the house, fighting to grab the pen, and forced the suspension of all other business.

Of the 110 whose names went on the petition before adjournment, 57 were Democrats and 53 were Republicans. The biggest portion of the vote came from representatives of city constituencies.

Then a Dramatic Scene.

The dramatic signing scene came about when Representative La Guardia, angered at the way Speaker Garner had gaveled through the passage of the appropriation bill for the departments of state, justice, commerce, and labor, rose to make a parliamentary inquiry. The wets had wanted to move to recommit the supply bill because of its appropriations for the prohibition bureau. The tactics of the speaker defeated them.

"Mr. Speaker, a parliamentary inquiry," Mr. La Guardia shouted.

"Is there a petition at the clerk's desk to discharge the committee on the judiciary for the further consideration of the resolution to submit the repeal of the 18th amendment to the states?"

"I am so informed," replied the speaker.

La Guardia Leads Way.

Mr. La Guardia swung around toward his colleagues.

"Then let's go and sign it," he shouted. "Come on."

The wets came—en masse.

The Beck-Linthicum resolution seeks to revise the 18th amendment by giving congress the power to regulate the liquor traffic, but reserving to the states the right to decide what their local system shall be. The federal government would assist with enforcement in states that chose to be dry. The resolution calls for ratification by state conventions.

Satisfied Over First Showing.

At a recent meeting of the judiciary committee a motion of approval was defeated, 14 to 9, but by the same vote a motion of disapproval failed of passage, leaving the method of bringing the bill out by petition under the new liberalized house rules the only means of getting a showdown vote.

In all, 145 signatures will be required on the petition. More than satisfied over their first day's showing the house wets are confident that more than the necessary number will be forthcoming and that the house drys for the first time since prohibition will be forced into a definite vote one way or the other.

House Members Who Sign.

Representatives who signed the petition to bring the Beck-Linthicum resolution to the floor of the house were as follows:

California: Republicans—Englebright, Kahn, Welch. Democrats—None.

Connecticut: Republicans—Tilson,

Four of Moores Guilty in Hotel Bonds Fraud

Pittsburgh, Pa., Feb. 25.—[Special.]—A jury in the federal court today found four officers of the American Bond and Mortgage company, all former Chicagoans, guilty of using the mails to defraud and of conspiracy.

WM. J. MOORE. [Walinger Photo.]

They are William J. Moore, president; Harold A. Moore, secretary and treasurer; Kenneth W. Moore, assistant treasurer, and Charles C. Moore, vice president. As they were found guilty on eight counts of mail fraud and one of conspiracy, their maximum sentences could be fixed as high as forty-two years and fines of $18,000 each.

Attorneys for the Moores said a motion for a new trial would be filed tomorrow and Judge McVicar indicated that argument on this motion would be set for Monday. In the event it is denied, the sentences will be pronounced then.

Fifth Moore Acquitted.

A fifth defendant, Charles B. Moore, also went to trial, but there was a directed verdict of not guilty in this case.

The Moores, it was shown in the testimony, issued more than $1,000,000 in second mortgage bonds against the Mayflower hotel in Washington, although the revenues of the building were barely sufficient to pay interest on first mortgage bonds. About $70,000 of these second mortgage bonds were sold to Pittsburghers, it was said.

It was recalled that Vice President Charles Curtis last June was accused by a Girard, Kas., publisher of connection "with the Moore 100 million bond deal" and of using his influence to forestall a department of justice inquiry into the hotel's financial affairs. It was alleged that in return the vice-president got a $150 a day Mayflower suite for $5.50 a day.

"My Business," Says Curtis.

Mr. Curtis flatly denied he was connected with William J. Moore or even that he knew him, and added it was nobody's business but his own what he paid for his hotel suite. The Mayflower management asserted he paid more than $5.50 a day, but did not reveal the exact amount.

The Moore group had offices, during their heyday of prosperity, which extended into 1929, in Chicago and New York. Their company sold $150,000,000 in mortgages, and their wealth was reckoned in the millions.

Among the Chicago buildings they financed were the Albion Shore hotel, the Churchill, the 20 Cedar street, the Garden Court apartments, the Graemere hotel, Harbor View apartment, Jackson Towers, Lincoln-Robey building, Martinique, Ontario Mercantile building, and the Sherwin and Sunny Court apartments.

The American Bond and Mortgage company was placed in receivership on May 22, 1931, by Federal Judge Wilkerson in Chicago.

Motorist Kills Himself After Auto Collision

Two automobiles collided at Washington and Block streets, Indiana Harbor, Ind., early this morning, jolting Mrs. Anna Brodny of 3602 Pennsylvania street, Indiana Harbor, driver of one of the cars, and a man, about 30 years old, who was operating the other car.

The young man alighted. Several passersby rushed up to him and inquired if he was injured.

Kills Himself with Pistol.

"Leave me alone," he replied curtly, waving them away. Then, without another word, he drew an automatic pistol from his pocket, put the weapon to his head, and fired. He fell dead.

The spectacular suicide mystified police. The mystery grew when they looked into the man's car and found an automatic rifle, two boxes of cartridges for the rifle, 200 cartridges for the pistol, and a set of maps of southern states. They also found two Ohio license plates.

Car Bought in Hammond.

Papers in the man's pockets indicated he was Harold McCoy. They showed he had purchased the car Dec. 10 in Hammond, giving his address as 2118 Mahoney road, Canton, O., and also as general delivery, Whiting. The Ohio plates were purchased under the Canton address. Indiana plates were on the car. Canton police said this morning there was no such number as 2118 in Mahoney road nor was there any one of the name of McCoy living in that section.

Willard Tells Court He Has Only 27 Cents

Los Angeles, Cal., Feb. 25.—(AP)—Appearing in Referee's court today to explain failure to pay a $106 judgment, Jess Willard, former heavyweight champion, produced two pennies and said that, besides the quarter necessary to get a motor car out of a parking station, it was all the money he had. When Referee N. I. Mulville raised his eyebrows at mention of the car Willard explained it belonged to his daughter.

"And the market I am supposed to own belongs to my sister-in-law," he added. "My home in Glendale and the market are heavily mortgaged. Business has been very bad."

BURGLARS BRAVE TEAR GAS; CRACK CEMETERY SAFE

Burglars who braved tear gas to break open the safe in the offices of Acacia Park cemetery, 7800 Irving Park boulevard, were rewarded last night with only $15. The yeggmen cracked the outer door of the safe first and were enveloped in a cloud of the gas which was released with the opening of the door.

They opened several windows and went ahead with their task. They finally broke through the inner door, but most of the funds they expected to get were gone. The hoped for loot, $500, had been taken to a bank earlier by J. L. Miller, 4811 North Ashland avenue, the cemetery superintendent.

JAPANESE RAID AVIATION BASE OF CHINA ARMY

Claim Two Flyers Shot Down.

BULLETIN.

SHANGHAI, Feb. 26 (Friday).—(AP)—Military circles here today said Gen. Chiang Kai-shek, former Chinese president, is on his way here with reinforcements for the 19th army and that he is expected to arrive late today or tomorrow.

SHANGHAI, Feb. 26 [Friday], 12:30 p. m.—Japanese air bombers at 9 a. m. today flew to Hangchow and, according to a Japanese report, destroyed the airdrome there, including a number of Chinese planes which the Chinese contemplated using against their foes at Shanghai.

The Japanese report said two Chinese planes managed to take off and attacked the Japanese invaders, but were brought down by the Nipponese flyers and the aviators killed. It is claimed that serious fires started as a result of the bombing by the Jap planes. The raiding squadron returned safely to Shanghai.

Raid Apparently Unexpected.

Hangchow, the capital of Chekiang province, is 100 miles southwest of Shanghai. Planes had been sent there from Canton in preparation for the proposed Chinese air offensive, and the daring raid by the Japanese planes apparently was unexpected.

Yesterday Japanese planes tried to bomb the tracks of the Shanghai-Hangchow railway. A dozen bombs were dropped alongside the tracks at the new Lunghwa station located about eight miles from the French concession, but the damage was not serious and the tracks were quickly repaired.

Japanese planes seriously damaged the tracks of the Shanghai-Nanking railway yesterday in the vicinity of Chenju, the headquarters of Gen. Tsai Ting-kai, commander of the Chinese 19th route army.

(Hangchow is the capital of the province of Che-kiang, on the Tsien-tang-kiang, 20 miles from its mouth in Hang-chow bay, near the southern terminus of the grand canal. It is one of the ports open to foreign commerce. It is walled and garrisoned and well built. Adjoining the city is Lake Si-hu, with steep mountains rising above it. Hangchow has extensive manufactures of silk, jans, and gold embroidered stuffs and an active trade, the foreign commerce passing through Shanghai. Hangchow has a population of nearly 1,000,000, including the wide-spreading suburbs.)

Both Sides Claim Victory.

[Copyright: 1932: By the Associated Press.]

SHANGHAI, Feb. 26 [Friday].—The Japanese and Chinese armies, battling shell for shell in a furious artillery duel around Kiangwan today, surged backward and forward across the battle line with both sides claiming a show of victory.

The Chinese gained back by desperate fighting much of the ground that was lost when the Japanese smashed the line north of Kiangwan yesterday (Thursday) and Japanese officers said at noon they had finally surrounded the village of Kiangwan.

Observers received the Japanese claims with some reservations, but the Japanese officials said their surrounding the town was made possible by capturing Chinese positions immedi-

Bare Strange Plot to Give Ghost a Home

The bombing of a northwest side oil station to intimidate its owner into vacating his home nearby so that "the Indian spirit" of its former occupant could roam within its walls unmolested, was revealed last night with the arrest of a wealthy widow, a physician and an alleged bomber.

The police listened to the story dubiously at first, but later confirmed it as authentic. As a result they ordered the prisoners held for further investigation. Those held are Mrs. Ella Hopkins, 50 years old, 4219 Kenmore avenue, widow of Lafayette Hopkins, wealthy half breed who died a year ago; Dr. Leslie Ofner, 1608 Madison street, and James De Milio, 34 years old, of 1104 Loomis street. A fourth person, known only as Eddie, is sought.

The Strange Story Begins.

The strange story began last September when William Lambert, owner of the oil station at 5765 Higgins avenue, purchased the home at 5758 Higgins avenue from Mrs. Hopkins for slightly more than $7,000. Recently Lambert said, Mrs. Hopkins offered to buy back the property. Despite her offer of a $2,000 bonus, Lambert refused. In two letters Mrs. Hopkins cited her reasons for wishing to own the home again.

It was her husband's "ancestral home," she wrote, "designed for his spirit to roam in forever." She sold it only because her husband's spirit disturbed her 80 year old mother, she said. In her second letter Mrs. Hopkins warned that the curse of a dead man would rest on any stranger who lived within the walls, and would strike death once every year. The letters failed to move Lambert.

Oil Station Is Bombed.

On Feb. 7 Lambert's oil station was bombed. Lambert appealed to Alexander Jamie, of the "Secret Six." Lieut. Leo Car and Sergt. William Knowles investigated. They learned, they said, that Mrs. Hopkins went to Dr. Ofner to have Lambert's oil station bombed. Dr. Ofner confessed this last night to Assistant State's Attorney Walker Butler and Chief of Detectives Shoemaker.

From this point on, Dr. Ofner told his story. He first described himself as a doctor who handled many gangster cases. He knew Jack Zuta, he said. Most of his friends are now dead or serving prison terms, he added. He first met Mrs. Hopkins the first week in February, he said.

Prices the Job at $1,000.

"She wanted Lambert's place bombed," he told the police. "She just wanted the front blown away. I told her the job would cost $1,000, and she gave me $10 down, and three days later brought me $300. I hired De Milio to bomb the place. After it was bombed, Mrs. Hopkins gave me $50 more. That was all I got."

Dr. Ofner said he called in De Milio to do the bombing because he was a good "stickman."

De Milio said the physician lied. His story was that a man known as Eddie invited him for an automobile ride on the night of Feb. 7. Eddie alighted from the car at some point, De Milio said. Later he reappeared, excited. As they drove away a blast was heard. At no time, De Milio asserted, did he know of the bombing.

Widow Tells Same Story.

Mrs. Hopkins substantiated Dr. Ofner's story. Police matrons found $6,800 in cash sewed in her clothes, and also found a bank book showing $6,200 in deposits.

Mrs. Hopkins is said to have a fortune of about $250,000. Most of her wealth is in property left by her husband. He died at the age of 80. She was married to Hopkins 25 years ago. Her husband, she told police, was the son of Lafayette Hopkins, who came to Chicago from New York 100 years ago and purchased much of the land in what is now Jefferson Park.

SCHOOLS TO O. K. SPENDING CASH THEY CAN'T GET

Passage Near for Topheavy Budget

BY OSCAR HEWITT.

Despite a $1,000,000 waste in the operation of the school plants, according to the D. F. Kelly tax warrant sales committee, the school board plans to pass its $90,197,000 budget next Wednesday. It was reported yesterday that the required eight votes have been pledged.

President Lewis E. Myers called a conference yesterday for tomorrow morning for a discussion of the budget. Neither he nor Trustee Robert F. Carr believe that the board can possibly get enough tax income to pay the expenses which the budget as now framed would authorize. In fact no trustee has claimed the budget will pay out, but a majority of the trustees desire to pass it now, regardless of the threatening probabilities.

Fox Gives Board Figures.

Charles Fox, chief appraiser of the board of assessors, has submitted figures to the board that it can have no reasonable expectancy of getting within $8,000,000 of the amount it is proposed to appropriate, with the most favorable conditions.

George O. Fairweather of the joint tax commission has told the board that there is every probability that the board proposes to appropriate $18,000,000 more than it can hope to obtain from taxes.

Mr. Fairweather told the American Statistical association last night that appropriations by the local governments on the basis of that of the school board "is not only budget suicide and a contribution to the economic delinquency of Chicago but an invitation to the public employés to either borrow money or starve to death."

Urges Concerted Trimming.

Such budgets, he said, will make it impossible for the governments to borrow money, and he urged the heads of the local governments to trim budgets in a concerted drive.

The school board now owes the teachers and other employés more than $30,000,000. That has so attracted the attention of the educators throughout the country that a resolution was submitted yesterday at the meeting of the National Education association in Washington requesting that the superintendents' division "take steps to afford immediate and substantial relief to the teachers of Chicago by direct contribution in the form of a loan."

In the opinion of Mr. Fairweather the proposed budget will make it more difficult to borrow money on 1931 warrants this year than it has been heretofore.

Items Can Be Trimmed.

There are items in the school budget which employés say privately could be trimmed with real benefit to the school treasury. Several were encountered in a group yesterday laughing about the news that Robert E. Crowe, former state's attorney, had had Richard B. Prendergast, a factor in Fiftieth ward politics, eliminated from his position with the schools. According to the story, Prendergast has not been supporting Judge Michael Feinberg in his candidacy for state's attorney.

Prendergast was the "chief watchman" for the schools. He was employed to watch 17 watchmen who are employed to watch the school buildings under construction, at a salary of $250 a month. The proposed budget permits that same sort of a political job to be continued.

"And you would find quite a number of others if you ever found out what is in the budget," commented one of the clerks.

Savage for Big Budget.

Joseph P. Savage is the school trustee who is generally credited with having obtained his appointment from the former city hall régime through the influence of Mr. Crowe. Mr. Savage is now one of the leading advocates for the early passage of the budget. His chief argument is that the teachers should be informed now what the board intends to do.

Ten days ago President Myers requested Dr. George Strayer, head of the $100,000 investigation of the schools by Columbia university, to suggest where the budget can be trimmed further with the least injury. Dr. Strayer has been in Washington attending the National Education association. If the budget is passed next Wednesday, as planned, it is improbable that Dr. Strayer will have an opportunity to present his suggestions.

Mr. Kelly urged the board to obtain the suggestions of the eastern educator. Several of the trustees who have been commending Dr. Strayer are now said to be pledged to pass the budget next Wednesday.

The board has been trying since last December to issue tax anticipation warrants to the teachers and other creditors in lieu of cash. Something always happened. It was announced yesterday that the warrants will probably be issued next Monday. The small warrants have not yet been signed by City Controller Szymczak.

OFFER NEW PAY CUT

Further pay cuts for city employés were suggested yesterday by the employés themselves as an alternative to Mayor Cermak's proposal to dismiss 2,479 of their number as an emergency economy measure.

The suggestion made to the finance subcommittee of the city council, which is considering the personnel reduction, was that every city worker be docked an additional three days' pay a month. Since 1932 budget plans already call for six payless days a month for municipal employés, the total would amount to a general pay cut of about 30 per cent.

40 Payless Days a Year.

Ald. John S. Clark [30th], chairman of the finance committee, was given the pay cut suggestion by employés' representatives. He said that to equal the $6,345,740 reduction in the 1932 budget which would be accomplished by the dismissals suggested by Mayor Cermak, it would be necessary to dock all city employés 40 days' pay during the year. This would be slightly more than the three days a month suggested by the employés.

Ald. Clark instructed the finance committee staff to compile, with the assistance of the controller's office, an estimate of the city's revenue for 1932, paying particular attention to the loss and cost in collection of taxes. For the 1929 taxes, the last collected, this factor was approximately 30 per cent. The estimate of revenue will be given to the finance subcommittee when it meets next week for action on the economy proposals.

The subcommittee at that time will call a conference of the heads of other large taxing bodies in the county, to see what economy measures they are taking. Ald. Clark pointed out that whatever drastic economies the city effects they will have little effect on tax bills as a whole unless other governments join the procession.

Stirred by information that the budget of the Municipal court for 1931 exceeded that of the previous year by $238,086, aldermen requested that officials of that court be given a special invitation to attend the economy meeting. It is mandatory upon the city council to appropriate whatever the judges deem necessary for operation of this court.

"I don't believe the court should use the technicality of law which gives its members jurisdiction over the number of employés in their offices, to refuse to make cuts," said Ald. John J. Hoellen [47th]. "They should coöperate with other city departments to reduce governmental costs, and the finance committee should make this known to the court."

Other aldermen pointed out that a third of the Municipal court judges come up for reëlection this year, and that they should be careful accordingly of their record on expenditures before they face the voters.

Allocation of the first 1930 tax collections turned over to the city, which City Treasurer Kearns received on Wednesday from County Treasurer McDonough, showed yesterday that 90 per cent of the cash received must be paid out immediately to redeem 1930 tax warrants. The payments in money and tax warrants received from the county treasurer were allocated as follows to the larger city and school funds:

Fund.	Cash.	Warrants
Corporate	$127,866	$350,037
Library	2,324	27,338
Tuberculosis sanitarium	15,211	21,869
Bond and interest	315,703	none
School educational	84,528	585,682
School building	247,191	none

The funds above include all to which tax wararnts were paid in lieu of cash. The remainder of the cash collected, an additional $221,971, was allocated to some 15 small funds of the city and school board, most of which have no 1930 tax wararnts outstanding. All of the larger funds have such warrants out.

Total of Tax Warrants.

The total of 1930 tax warrants issued by the city and school board, divided into those held by the public and those held in the city's aggregate of funds, is as follows:

Fund—	Held by city.	By public.
Corporate	$25,863,077	$11,642,200
Bonds and interest	3,050,000	6,753,000
Library	97,000	1,219,000
Library building	.....	90,000
Sanitarium	652,000	1,247,000
Firemen's pension	261,000	539,000
Schools—
Educational	5,055,800	30,044,200
Building	.....	13,000,000
Playground	120,000	.....
Totals	$35,098,877	$64,554,400

At a meeting of attorneys for the city, school board, and teachers' organizations yesterday in the office of City Controller Szymczak, the school attorneys agreed that since 27,000 of the small denomination tax warrants which the board has ordered signed are still unsigned, the board will not ask the city for delivery of any of the warrants until Monday.

JUDGE QUASHES INDICTMENT IN MRS. KEGEL CASE

Jury Misunderstood the Facts, Fisher Is Told.

The indictment charging Mrs. Marie Sahlin Kegel, wife of Dr. Arnold H. Kegel, former health commissioner, with the attempted poisoning of Mrs. Mary Ryan, her former maid, was quashed yesterday by Chief Justice Harry Fisher of the Criminal court upon the request of the grand jury. The jury returned the indictment Feb. 13.

John P. Larkin, foreman of the grand jury, told Judge Fisher that the jurors had voted the true bill against Mrs. Kegel on a "misconception of the facts." When Judge Fisher announced that he would quash the charges, State's Attorney John A. Swanson said that the state did not agree with the action, but would not argue.

"If we get additional evidence and we want to present the matter before the grand jury, may we do so?" asked Mr. Swanson. "That is your privilege," said Judge Fisher.

In the afternoon Mrs. Kegel, who has been sought by state's attorney's detectives since the charges were made, appeared from hiding for the first time. She came into the courtroom of Judge J. G. Van Keuren, a rural judge presiding in the County court, accompanied by her attorney, Miss Evangeline Hursen.

"I was horribly shocked when I heard about the charges and that's why I went into retirement," said Mrs. Kegel. "I haven't any new plans. I'm just going to stay in the city and continue my divorce action against Dr. Kegel, charging cruelty. These latest accusations will be used in a new bill for divorce."

Mrs. Ryan is still at the John B. Murphy hospital. She has charged that Mrs. Kegel dropped poison in her ice cream soda because she refused not to testify in the divorce case.

Harry Thaw's Arm Broken as Car Crashes Into Culvert

CRIMINAL COURT.

William J. [Three Fingered Jack] White, gangster and labor racketeer, who has been in the county jail since October, 1930, on a murder charge, will seek his liberty on bail today before Chief Justice Harry Fisher of the Criminal court. The Illinois Supreme court recently reversed the 14 year prison sentence against White.

Attorneys Thomas Nash and Michael Ahern yesterday filed a petition asking that White be set at liberty pending a new trial. Assistant State's Attorney Harry Ditchburne said the prosecution will try the case again and will oppose the bail motion.

White is charged with slaying Policeman Edward Pflaume of Forest Park more than five years ago. At the first trial he was sentenced to life imprisonment. The Supreme court reversed that conviction. He was tried again and sentenced to 14 years.

'HEALER'S' CLASS IN TURMOIL AS INSPECTORS JOIN

'Agents of Satan' Fail in Their Attack.

A lecture being given before 150 persons in the Auditorium hotel by Prof. John Hugh Lally, self-styled spiritual healer and evangelist of health, broke up in a hubbub last night when three inspectors from the state department of registration attempted to join the class.

Excited elderly ladies milled around the inspectors when they demanded entrance and, in the crush, some of the professor's medicines went crashing to the floor. A squad of bell boys joined the crowd, increasing the disorder they were trying to quell.

Two house detectives and the hotel manager finally intervened. A newspaper reporter was ejected bodily. The inspectors finally retreated, leaving the indignant professor in command of his fortress while his disciples muttered imprecations upon the inspectors as "agents of satan."

Agents Arrive on Scene.

The inspectors, C. E. Monahan, Andrew Henderson and Del Matthews, reached the Lally classroom about 9:30 p. m., as the professor was in the midst of a demonstration upon a plaster cast of a female torso, billed in his advertisements as "Venus, the life sized model of a woman dissected." The professor's secretary, Joseph P. Linden, a peppery little man of 50 years, was guarding the door.

"You can't come in here," he remonstrated shrilly. "Our attorney served an injunction on your boss at 5 p. m. restraining your department from interfering with the professor's lectures."

The inspectors, aware that the professor's lawyer, Raymond E. Lane, had sought an injunction in Superior court, but knowing also that the decision was reserved for a hearing this morning before Judge William J. Lindsay, pushed on inside. The professor dropped a cast of "Venus'" liver back into its niche.

The Class Is Dismissed.

"Inspectors! Inspectors!" he cried. "They're back again, spreading cigaret stubs on our clean floor and interfering with our studies. Class is dismissed."

Collapsible seats went tumbling as the pupils crowded towards the exit where the inspectors were standing. Within three minutes the corridor was jammed and the table of olive oil and mineral salts was imperiled. Before the inspectors retired some of the disciples were threatening to "write to Gov. Emmerson."

Earlier in the day the professor had revealed the sponsor of his Chicago sojourn as no less personage than Daniel W. Hoan, mayor of Milwaukee, a revelation which Mr. Hoan confirmed in an interview with a TRIBUNE representative in Milwaukee.

Genuine Healer, Hoan Says.

"Yes," said Mr. Hoan, "I wrote Mayor Cermak of Chicago a letter of introduction for Prof. Lally, stating that I had seen some of the wonderful cures he performed in classes at the Wisconsin hotel in our city. He gave treatments to my son, Daniel Jr., whose hearing was impaired, and I know the boy's hearing has improved greatly. I saw him cure at least thirty deaf persons here and will stake my reputation that he is a genuine healer."

An investigation of another endorsement claimed by the professor proved less flattering. In one of his pamphlets he had printed a letter, purporting to quote Dr. Thomas Browning Laumann, a physician of Tulsa, Okla., as stating that he saw the professor work a marvelous cure on a life long paralytic and a woman with high blood pressure last March 24 at Tulsa.

Chief Inspector J. E. Edwards telegraphed Dr. Laumann for confirmation. The physician replied that he had never authorized the professor to use his name in any way.

A test arranged by Inspector Edwards to enable the professor to demonstrate his powers yesterday came to naught because of Lally's refusal to cooperate. The inspector brought to his office two patients from the Illinois Home for the Blind, Robert Lincoln, who has been sightless, deaf and mute since childhood, and Walter Sward, who lost his sight seven years ago.

When informed of the arrangement at 11 a. m. the professor had promised to visit the office at 2 o'clock and try his cure. At 3 p. m., when the two afflicted men had been sitting for an hour with their hands folded patiently on the handles of their canes, the professor telephoned that he could not come, "because I have to see my lawyer."

"Send them home," he advised the inspector. "We'll send out healing waves from the meeting at the hotel tonight and before tomorrow perhaps those two blind men may have something wonderful happen to them."

BUILDING AND LOAN OFFICIAL KIDNAPED, HE SAYS; FOUND ILL

Henry T. Armknecht, 32 years old, 2004 Webster avenue, who called his wife on the telephone yesterday morning to report that he was kidnaped and needed $1,000 for ransom, called her again last night and told her he was at Austin boulevard and Chicago avenue and was ill.

H. T. ARMKNECHT. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

Policemen sent there found Armknecht, who is secretary of the Fifteenth Ward Building and Loan association, in his automobile. He was semi-conscious. He was taken to the Shakespeare avenue police station and questioned by Lieut. Peter Tomchek, but was unable to give a coherent account of what had happened to him. The police then took him to his home.

Neither Mrs. Armknecht nor Police Captain Joseph Palczynski, president of the loan association, believed the secretary was a victim of kidnapers. They said he underwent a major operation on Dec. 1 and had been ill since then. His wife added that he had been subject to spells of amnesia.

At the office of State Auditor Oscar Nelson it was said the building and loan association was solvent and that Armknecht's accounts were in good shape.

DARROW HINTS HE WILL DEFEND MRS. FORTESCUE

New York, Feb. 26.—(AP)—Clarence Darrow, noted lawyer, said tonight he "very likely" would go to Honolulu to help defend Mrs. Granville Fortescue, American society matron; her son-in-law, Lieut. Thomas H. Massie, and two others facing charges of second degree murder for slaying an Hawaiian.

He added, however, that he had not decided definitely whether to join the defense counsel. He probably would be able to announce a final decision tomorrow, he said.

"I have to consider a number of things," he said. "My health, for one thing."

Mr. Darrow, who is 74 years old, said he was speaking for himself alone, and that the matter was not being considered jointly by him and Dudley Field Malone, international lawyer, also invited to join in Mrs. Fortescue's defense. Mr. Darrow and Mr. Malone had a conference this afternoon concerning the case. Mr. Malone, however, said he had no announcement to make.

Kansas to Cut Assessed Realty Value 247 Million

Topeka, Kan., Feb. 25.—(AP)—The state tax commission announced today its intention to make a $247,248,448 reduction this year in the assessed value of real estate in Kansas. Members of the commission said the saving to real estate owners this year, assuming the tax rates remained the same as last year, would approximate $5,000,000.

Warm Again Today

More weather like that of yesterday—fair skies and temperatures high for the season—will prevail in Chicago today and tomorrow, according to the weather bureau forecast.

Yesterday's maximum thermometer reading was 68, reached at 3 p. m. This was an all time record for Feb. 25 and within two degrees of the highest ever reached here in February. On Washington's birthday in 1922 it was 68.

Temperatures were abnormally high all over the country yesterday, except in the extreme east. Boston had a minimum of 10 degrees above zero in the morning, the lowest mark of the winter there. On the other hand, a maximum of 85 was recorded in Los Angeles and readings above 70 were noted in many western cities. The forecaster said that no cold weather is in prospect.

SEIZE ALLEGED BOOTLEGGER TO PUPILS IN RAID

Albert Hartman, 35 years old, referred to by prohibition agents as "a high school bootlegger," was arrested last night in his home at 4735 Beacon street. No liquor was found in the house, but a number of records said to bear on his liquor deals were seized by the agents making the raid.

Special investigators were put on Hartman's trail by the new prohibition administrator, Malachi L. Harney. They learned, it was alleged, that Hartman had a number of retailers working among students.

CHARGE "MURDER BY FLYPAPER" IN POISON TRIAL

2 Tell of Buying Arsenic for Mrs. Summers.

A new and sensational method of committing murder was described yesterday by state's witnesses in the Criminal court of Judge Walter T. Stanton. Mrs. Margaret Summers, 48 year old widow, is on trial on a charge that she poisoned her 16 year old nephew, Thomas Meyer. The jury has been qualified for the death penalty.

Previously witnesses had testified that the boy died of chronic arsenic poisoning but the prosecution had been unable to show that Mrs. Summers had ever had possession of such poison. But yesterday two witnesses went to the stand and testified that they had purchased large quantities of flypaper for Mrs. Summers during March and April, 1931. The prosecution was quick to contend that from this apparently harmless flypaper Mrs. Summers obtained arsenic which she fed to the boy, who died on May 14, 1931.

Charge Insurance Was Motive.

The motive for the alleged murder, according to the prosecutors, was $3,630 life insurance for Meyer, taken out and paid for by Mrs. Summers.

Assistant State's Attorneys C. Wayland Brooks and John Holman said yesterday it was only by chance they learned on Wednesday of the fly paper purchases. They admitted that when Judge Stanton forced the case to trial on Monday their case was weak. Although chemists had analyzed all the food in the Summers' home at 632 West North avenue, and investigators had visited all the drug stores in the neighborhood, no trail of poison was found.

On Wednesday evening the prosecutors called in several of the state's witnesses for requestioning. Among them were Charles Harrington, 19 years old, a friend of young Meyer, and Henry Christy, 32 years old, who lived at the Summers home for several months.

Recall Flypaper Purchases.

They were asked if they could recall anything unusual in the preparation of the youth's meals while he was sick. They could not, but by chance Harrington remembered that he was sent to get flypaper for Mrs. Summers in March. Christy's statement was added: he had been sent to get the same brand in April. As Meyer died in May the prosecutors looked on these statements as significant.

Christy was sent to the store for more of the flypaper. On the label of the package was the statement that a single sheet contained from 1-50th to 1-300th of 1 per cent soluble arsenic, depending on the amount of water added to the paper.

Yesterday the paper was placed in evidence and Christy and Harrington testified to the purchases. Attorneys Harold Levy and Emmett Byrne, representing Mrs. Summers, who has survived four husbands, called attention to the statement on the package that tests showed it doubtful "if any ill effects would be felt if the water from the paper was taken by any purchaser."

Arsenic in Boy's Body.

The prosecutors contend that this may be true of one dose, but that the youth was killed by continuous doses administered over weeks. Dr. Clarence Muehlberger, toxicologist, testified that arsenic had been found in the body of Meyer and that it was apparent it was a case of chronic poisoning.

Attendants at the county hospital testified that Meyer's case was found to be one of poisoning at that institution and that he was recovering when Mrs. Summers insisted on taking him home in spite of his own protests.

Judge Stanton has ruled that no testimony may be introduced to show that any other members of Mrs. Summers' household died of poison. Unless this ruling is changed the prosecutors expect to close their case today.

SOCIETY MATRON WEDS RUM RUNNER MANAGER OF HER ESTATES

Ridgeland, S. C., Feb. 25.—[Special.]—This sleepy little southern town gave northern society something to talk about today when news got around of the surprise marriage of Mrs. Louisa Steedman Wilson Turnure, wealthy young matron, to Herbert Wendell Simmons, manager of her estate near here and recently convicted as a bootlegger.

It was not generally known that Mrs. Turnure, a niece of Mrs. Cornelius Vanderbilt and and of Mrs. Ogden Goelet, and a cousin of the duchess of Roxburghe, had been divorced from Davis S. Turnure.

Her marriage to Turnure, now United States vice consul at Prague, was a society event of the 1925 season in New York. Her mother, Mrs. Richard T. Wilson, is a society leader in New York and Newport, and her late father was president of the Saratoga Racing association.

Simmons was employed by Mrs. Turnure eighteen months ago. Last October, while caring for her racing stables, prize dog kennels, and fox hunting preserves, he was arrested on charges of possessing and transporting smuggled liquor.

He was convicted in federal court in Charleston and sentenced to 22 months in Atlanta penitentiary. He is at liberty on appeal under bail furnished by his bride.

The ceremony was performed yesterday by Daniel Horton, clerk of the Circuit court here, at the home of John P. Wise, an attorney. Mrs. Wise and Mr. and Mrs. William Simmons, brother and sister-in-law of the bridegroom, were the only witnesses. Both principals gave the age of 27.

Sue Carol, Husband, Ordered to Pay Contractor

EXPOSURE HELD FATAL TO GIRL FOUND IN FIELD

Philadelphia, Pa., Feb. 25.—[Special.]—Miss Elsie Flothmeier, 22 year old minister's daughter, whose frozen and scratched nude body was found in a field late yesterday, died from exposure and from that alone, it was declared after an autopsy today.

Police and the girl's father, the Rev. Frederick Flothmeier, pastor of a Lutheran church here, had held to this theory. Except for an inquest the case is considered closed.

The girl, who had been subject to nervous disorders, left her father at 4 p. m. Tuesday and was to meet him later at a relative's home.

Police believe she suffered a mental lapse, undressed and then ran through the bramble infested field until she fell exhausted, and perished in the cold. Her clothes were found hanging on bushes 200 yards from where the body, face down, was discovered. Her stockings, neatly rolled up, were in the pockets of her coat.

Her father said Miss Flothmeier, a student in a school for religious workers, had never "dated" with boys and was a "most unselfish person." In addition to her parents she is survived by two brothers and a sister.

JARECKI'S PLEA FOR TAXES MEETS COOL RECEPTION

Pay Only on Just Assessment, Is Reply.

BY OSCAR HEWITT.

The plea of County Judge Jarecki in chambers yesterday to representatives of real estate to "pay at least 50 per cent" of their 1930 taxes was given a chilly reception. Nathan William MacChesney and J. Soule Waterfield, representing the Chicago Real Estate board, and Perry J. Ten Hoor, James E. Bistor and John M. Pratt for the Association of Real Estate Taxpayers, declined to make such a promise.

Their attitude was that the 1928 and 1929 assessments had been declared void by the judge because of fraud and corruption, with a resultant outrageous tax upon real estate. The 1930 tax is of the same character, in their opinion. They will pay when there is an honest assessment or a good prospect of getting one.

Want Personality to Pay.

They will refuse to pay until evaders of personal property taxes are made to pay their share of the cost of government, or volunteer to do so in a convincing way.

They were deaf to the many pleas for tax payments. Hayden Bell, county attorney, pleaded that the real estate taxpayers "do not longer starve the school teachers." Corporation Counsel Sexton urged the necessity for maintaining the essential functions of government. Helen R. Orrell of the Elementary Teachers' union said: "We teachers do not have any money because the taxes are not paid. If we cannot get what is coming to us we will have to retaliate."

Judge Sounds Warning.

When the discussion of more than two hours seemed hopeless, so far as getting promises of tax payments was concerned, Judge Jarecki sounded this serious warning:

"Tax crises have been at the bottom of every revolution. A tax crisis is synonymous with opression, and if our situation goes too far, I'm afraid that will happen. I am not an alarmist, but we must face the facts."

Most of those who have received their personal property bills have paid in full, but the payments on real estate, with a few exceptions, have been about 50 per cent. Balaban & Katz, on a tax bill of $168,683, yesterday paid $76,959.32—less than 46 per cent. The Harvester office building paid $29,308.40 yesterday on a bill of $57,758.10—about 52 per cent. Those are typical of the majority of payments to date.

Three Pay in Full.

Three exceptions yesterday were: Hamilton Moses paid in full his bill of $13,546.06. Ignatz Dohnel followed suit with a full payment of $4,346.97, and Kuffel & Esser copied the example with $3,172.66. These are all loop properties.

All of the personal property payments were in full. Stanley Field turned in $4,116, the Kandall company $4,718, the Quaker Oats company $12,603.80, and the Boulevard Bridge bank $18,522.22.

Except for the Chicago club, which has paid its real estate taxes to the last penny, the Federal Reserve bank ranks next with a payment of $213,945.06 on a tax bill of $241,268.89.

Considering the pleas for payments and the publicity given taxes, the treasurer's office considers the returns to date as light. Only a total of 351 tax bills were paid yesterday and of these 346 were personal property bills, which supplied only $67,820.13 of tax money.

RANDOLPH ASKS FEDERAL LAW TO CURB KIDNAPING

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 25.—[Special.]—Witnesses from Chicago recounted tales of horror to the house postoffice committee, as they argued for the passage of the bill introduced by Representative John J. Cochran [Dem., Mo.], to make felonies of threats of kidnaping and blackmail sent through the mails. Exhibiting a piece of rope, Robert Isham Randolph, executive secretary of Chicago's "Secret Six," declared that "murder is merciful by comparison with kidnaping."

The rope, he told the committee members, had been enclosed in a large envelope and mailed to a mother with the warning that unless she "came through Dorothy would be strangled."

"Kidnaping is the most profitable racket of them all," said Col. Randolph. Bank robbing, he said, is not so profitable now, due to the fall in the price of securities.

"As head of the 'secret six,'" he told the committee, "I am deputized to carry a gun. When I go out in my car, the doors are locked and my gun is handy, and ready to shoot to kill. But there are hundreds of thousands of men and women who cannot go out so prepared."

A large majority of the victims of kidnapings, he said, were respectable persons whose only "crime" was the possession of money.

DOCTOR GUILTY OF FRAUD.

Dr. Otto Schukat, 71 years old, 2126 Clifton avenue, yesterday pleaded guilty before Federal Judge John P. Barnes to signing false affidavits in 1924, which enabled Clarence Chrisler, a war veteran, to collect insurance from the government. He faces a maximum penalty of three years' imprisonment and a fine of $600.

RELIEF WARRANT SALE PASSES THE HALFWAY MARK

$9,400,000 Sold to Date; Clarke Sees Success.

Sale of the $18,750,000 issue of 6 per cent state tax warrants for relief of the destitute passed the half way mark yesterday with subscriptions totaling $9,400,000. The substantial showing over the previous day was due to a $1,000,000 subscription by the Chicago Surface Lines.

PHILIP R. CLARKE.

At a meeting with the vice chairman of the selling organization yesterday afternoon, Philip R. Clarke, chairman, expressed satisfaction with the progress thus far made and confident that the public will subscribe to the entire issue before the 500,000 persons in Cook county dependent on the sale begin to suffer. The Joint Emergency Relief fund is exhausted and the relief stations supported by it are being carried by individual charities in anticipation of the funds from the tax note sale.

Cites Type of Purchasers.

"The question is frequently asked," said Mr. Clarke, "whether these notes are really a desirable investment. Is there any better answer than the fact that the large banks, one of the country's greatest insurance companies, a leading public utility, and some of our largest businesses are purchasing them in substantial amounts?

"Some day the fact that obligations of the state of Illinois were available on a 6 per cent basis will be looked upon as amazing. And in addition to the soundness of the investment the purchaser is discharging a charitable duty at the same time."

Other subscriptions received yesterday included $75,000 by Wilson & Co., $10,000 each from the United Autographic Register company and the Standard Forgings company, and $5,000 from the Rittenhouse & Embree Co.

Start Free Dental Care.

Dental service was made available to the unemployed yesterday by the Chicago Dental society, which opened the Dental Relief commission at 431 South Dearborn street. The headquarters will act as a clearing house for all destitute persons requiring emergency service, and upon the presentation of credentials from recognized charities, the applicant will be assigned to a private dentist's office for free treatment.

The Joint Emergency Relief fund appropriated $5,000 for materials and the necessary laboratory work is to be done at cost by the Dental Laboratory association. The Chicago Dental Dealers' association equipped the examining room and the Hartman Furniture company furnished the reception room.

DOCTOR AND TWO FRIENDS HELD UP IN HIS OFFICE

Dr. Frank Nathanson, physician with offices at 3846 West Madison street, reported to police last night that he had been robbed of $250 by two bandits who held up him and two friends in his office.

His companions gave their names as Fay Sherman, 1311 South St. Louis avenue, a nurse, who said she lost a $450 fur coat, and John Morgan, 2130 Washington boulevard. Morgan reported the loss of $25.

The three were playing bridge, they said, when the two gunmen entered, robbed them, and put them in a closet, the door of which was tied shut. Two other bandits waited in a car.

10 LAWMAKERS FROM ILLINOIS TO AID "WET" BILL

Each of the twenty-seven congressmen and two United States senators from Illinois were asked recently by the Illinois division of the Women's Organization for National Prohibition Reform to support the Beck-Linthicum bill, according to an announcement by the organization yesterday. The women declare this bill would give the people of the United States an opportunity to vote on the prohibition amendment "thereby safeguarding self-government thoroughly in the dry states and at the same time restoring self-government to the wet states."

Up to yesterday, replies saying they would vote for the bill were received from Senator Lewis and Congressmen Britten, Schuetz, Kelley, Granata, Igoe, De Priest, Sabath, and Beam, all of Chicago, and Major of Hillsboro. Congressman Chindblom of Chicago sent a noncommittal reply, as did Majority Leader Rainey, according to the announcement, and Senator Glenn has not replied, but is expected by the women to support the bill.

ARMOUR TECH ANNOUNCES NEW EDUCATION PLAN

A program directed toward closer coöperation between industry and engineering education was announced yesterday for Armour Institute of Technology following a special meeting of the trustees.

The program includes upward revision of entrance requirements, establishment of an undergraduate school of fundamental sciences, advances in engineering and architectural courses, and the establishment of a full graduate school for additional work in all major departments.

The action of the trustees was based on a five month survey of 26 colleges of engineering throughout the United States, supplemented by recommendations of leading educators, industrialists, and professional men. Active in the movement have been Dr. Howard M. Raymond, president of the institute, and the trustees.

3 SLAIN, 1 SHOT IN CLEVELAND GANGLAND WAR

Four Men Are Victims in Fight Over Liquor.

Cleveland, O., Feb. 2.—[Special.]—Two more members of the rapidly vanishing Porrello clan were wiped out here late today as Cleveland's gangland continued its murderous war involving bootleg and corn sugar barons. Raymond Porrello and Rosario Porrello were slain and two other men were wounded, one dying a few minutes later and the other believed fatally shot, as guns roared in the card room of Joe Todaro's smoke shop, within a block of Cleveland's "murder corner" at Woodland avenue and East 110th street.

Dominic Mangino died on the street where he staggered after the shooting Joseph Damonti, a fruit merchant, was wounded in the head and may die.

So far as police can learn Mangino and Damonti were innocent participants in the card game in progress when three men entered the room, stood for a moment watching the game, then suddenly drew guns to splash death in the face of the Porrellos. The murderers then retreated to Woodlawn avenue, where they escaped in a waiting automobile.

Four hours after the shooting, a man critically wounded in the abdomen and identified by police as Frank Brancato appeared at a hospital. Police believe he may have been at the scene of the killings.

The murder of the two Porrellos leaves but three of the once powerful clan that wrested control of the corn sugar kingdom from Big Joe and John Lonardo. The Lonardos were slain as they sat at another card table a few doors from the scene of today's killings. That was in 1927.

Angelo Porrello, in whose barber shop the killing took place, was arrested, together with his brother, Joe, but both were released. Other living members of the Porrello family at that time were Rosario, James, Ottavio, John, and Raymond. Joe and his bodyguard, Sam Tilocco, were blotted out by gangland guns on July 5, 1930. James was killed as he walked along the street three weeks later. Frank Lonardo, meanwhile, had perished as he sat in a Chester avenue cigar store.

During this carnival of murder Rosario Porrello was protected by the wall of the prison where he was serving a term for carrying a revolver. His release apparently marked him for the fate that overtook him and his brother Raymond late today.

Gems Identified as Stolen.

New York, Feb. 25.—[Special.]—Sixty of the sixty-five pieces of jewelry recovered with the arrest of "Smiling Joe" Filkowski, Cleveland's ranking "public enemy," today were identified as part of the loot from the daylight holdup of the jewelry store of Michael Kramer, on Feb. 1.

Kramer identified the gems, which he said were worth $60,000. The total value of the jewelry recovered from Filkowski was estimated by police at about $70,000.

The Kramer store was held up by two bandits, who set off a burglar alarm, but escaped in a taxicab under the fire of a patrolman.

The jeweler saw Filkowski today, but could not identify him as one of the bandits who robbed him. Filkowski is under indictment for murder in Cleveland.

Mrs. Kecik, attractive 26 year old matron who deserted her husband and two children to elope with Filkowski, defiantly tried to protect him.

MARRIED

Mrs. Etha Henderson Henneberry.

Mrs. Henneberry is a member of the Women's Western Golf association, and reached the championship flight in the Chicago district tournament last year.

Mr. Henneberry was divorced on July 7, 1931, from the daughter of Angus Smith Hibbard, consulting engineer and former vice president of the Chicago Telephone company. He is the son of William P. Henneberry, pioneer Chicago printer, who retired in 1920. Mr. Henneberry is 51 years old and his bride 32 years old.

FORMER CHICAGO JEWELER SEIZED BY U. S. AGENTS

Max Pian, formerly a jeweler at 29 East Madison street, was arrested by department of justice agents yesterday in Los Angeles. According to the agents, he is wanted here for concealing assets in connection with a bankruptcy. He was released in bonds of $2,500 and is to appear in Chicago on March 16.

Pian declared that the property he is alleged to have concealed was taken from him by robbers three miles north of Winthrop Harbor on Oct. 28, 1930, and he couldn't turn these assets over to a trustee because he has never found the robbers.

HAMMER SLAYER, WHO KILLED 3, IS FOUND INSANE

Daniel Paul Harrison, 28 years old, confessed "hammer slayer" of two men and a woman, was found criminally insane by a jury before Judge John Prystalski in the Criminal court yetserday. Judge Prystalski ordered him sent to the state asylum for the criminally insane at Chester.

At one point in the hearing, Harrison, who was handcuffed, lunged at Dr. Harry Hoffman, head of the county jail behavior clinic. He was overpowered by bailiffs.

Harrison, whose early life was spent in the hills of North Carolina, confessed the slaying of Dr. George Shaffer, a dentist, in his offices at 3801 Broadway on Jan. 23. Eight days later, Allen Davis, a chauffeur, was found beaten to death in a garage nearby, and witnesses named Harrison as the last person seen with him. After his capture he confessed the murder of Miss Norma Newby, in the Elk Grove forest preserve on March 2, 1931.

Wife of Realty Dealer Accuses Him of Infidelity

Mrs. Marie T. Cresswell yesterday brought suit for divorce from her husband, Walter R. Cresswell, 1011 Greenwood avenue, Wilmette, wealthy real estate operator. In her bill, filed in the Superior court, she charged cruelty and adultery and sought an injunction to restrain her husband from disposing of his property and household furnishings. Attorney William J. Corrigan prepared the bill.

Fail to Identify "Peeping Tom" Suspect; He's Freed

William O'Connell, 21 years old, 4501 North Knox avenue, who was questioned by the Irving Park police, was released yesterday when Miss Lillian Eble, 20 years old, and her sister Ellen, 22 years old, of 5131 Cullom avenue, failed to identify him as the "peeping Tom" who had bothered them Wednesday morning. It was incorrectly stated in yesterday's TRIBUNE that O'Connell confessed to the police to being a "peeping Tom." The police say he did not. The information came from the City News bureau.

VETERAN FOUND DEAD.

ately northwest of the village and that this opened the way for the encircling movement at which they have been aiming.

Chinese reports said that Japanese airmen bombed the Chinese aviation headquarters at Hangchow, 100 miles southwest of Shanghai, this morning. The Chinese were believed to have concentrated a sizable air force there.

Steadied by their success in recovering from a rout and gaining back by desperate fighting much of the ground that had been lost when the Japanese smashed the line north of Kiangwan, the Chinese turned a vicious artillery bombardment on the Japanese strongholds in Hongkew park.

Japanese guns answered shell for shell, their fire being concentrated on the enemy position in the ruins of Chapei. At dawn they were doing most of the firing, for Chinese ammunition was running low and gunners had orders to use it sparingly.

Battle Without Advantage.

The two armies battled for hours without advantage to either side. Machine guns kept up an unbroken hubbub.

Each side said its fire was inflicting heavy casualties upon the enemy, while it was suffering slightly. The Japanese said they had suffered less than 100 casualties, but "inflicted thousands upon the Chinese." The Chinese said their losses were negligible and the Japanese were "trying to hide their casualties," estimated by the Chinese at 700 dead and wounded.

The ammunition problem was beginning to worry Gen. Tsai Ting-kai, commander of the Chinese 19th route army, who said he had less than a fortnight's supply on hand. He urged that pressure be exerted on the Nanking government to rush men and ammunition in view of the impending arrival of Japanese reinforcements. The Chinese were depending chiefly on machine guns.

Fighting Ends Suddenly.

After several hours of fighting a startling quiet came over the Kiangwan front at 9:50 a. m. today. The Japanese heavy artillery ceased to function while the machine gunners on both sides allowed their weapons to cool.

As the hostilities slackened the Japanese appeared to have achieved an advance northwest of Kiangwan, but they had failed to rout the Chinese. The belief grew that the Japanese were stalling for time while awaiting reinforcements which were thought to be near, although the secrecy surrounding their movements continued impenetrable.

A few Japanese airplanes continued to reconnoiter over the Kiangwan and Chenju areas, the latter the seat of Chinese headquarters, but did little bombing.

DRIVE BACK JAPS

BY JOHN POWELL.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SHANGHAI, Feb. 26 [Friday].—An official Chinese communique issued just before dawn today announced that the Chinese army in the Kiangwan sector had driven back the Japanese troops in a surprise counter attack last night and had won back nearly all of the ground it had lost earlier in the day.

The Chinese reported they had repulsed the enemy at the village of Siaosangmio when the Japanese attempted to straighten their front lines between Kiangwan and Miachungchen.

"Many Japanese were killed," the communique said. "The Chinese still hold Kiangwan."

Chinese Win Back Ground.

The Chinese counter attack carried the defenders back across the shell torn ground over which they had fled in disorderly retreat earlier in the day after the Japanese had hammered their positions in an all day bombardment.

In the afternoon the Japanese beat back the Chinese first line after throwing their full force at the handful of Chinese defenders northwest of Kiangwan. Waves of infantrymen ripped their way through the trenches and swept forward around the village, virtually surrounding Kiangwan.

The artillery shelled the Chinese second line and a fleet of 45 Japanese planes dropped 250 pound bombs on the defenses.

Take Japs by Surprise.

While the Japanese were celebrating their victory the Chinese popped out of their trenches and took the invaders completely by surprise in the night's counter attack.

The Japanese told of their earlier victory in the following communique:

"After a fierce attack by artillery, machine guns, and airplanes, Japanese troops occupied the western edge of Kiangwan but suffered terrific punishment. We battered down Chinese redoubts and took their positions in an infantry charge. We also drove Chinese troops back from the western section of Miachungchen."

A Japanese military spokesman last night said that when the Chinese front line retreated, the Chinese commander ordered troops in the second line to fire on the retreating soldiers to force them back to their original posts.

It was announced here today that the Japanese government has appointed Gen. Yoshinori Shirakawa as supreme commander at Shanghai and that two additional divisions of troops are being dispatched here at once.

Gen. Shirakawa was in command of a division in the Russo-Japanese war. He also commanded the 11th division in the Siberian campaign from 1918 to 1921. From 1925 to 1927 he commanded the Kwantung army in Manchuria. He was minister of war under Premier Baron Tanaka from 1927 to 1929.

Asks U. S. Officials to Act.

Japanese Consul General Murai today announced that he had asked United States Consul General Edwin S. Cunningham to prevent Americans from serving with the Chinese air force. The Japanese consul general said his note to Mr. Cunningham referred to the death of Robert Short, American flyer, shot down by Japanese airmen at Soochow.

Japanese Shift Scene of Operations

Japanese airplanes today bombed Chinese aviation headquarters at the city of Hangchow, 100 miles south of Shanghai, while a new artillery battle raged in and around the Shanghai sector. Chinese guns in the Chapei area hurled shells on the Japanese positions in Hongkew park, just north of Shanghai. The Japanese returned shell for shell. Japanese officials yesterday warned the Chinese to remove their defense works in Nanking, as they constituted a "menace." The Chinese interpreted this as an intimation that the Japanese plan to attempt to seize Nanking.

FLYING INSTRUCTIONS WILL BEGIN MONDAY FOR CHINESE YOUTHS

Fifteen Chinese youths are learning the rudiments of aviation at the Curtiss-Wright Flying school, 1338 South Michigan avenue, with the intention of returning to China to fight for their country after their two months' instruction is completed. Flying classes will start on Monday at Curtiss-Reynolds airport, in Glenview, according to L. M. Churbuck, manager of the ground school.

RUSSIA MOVES ARMY

MUKDEN, Manchuria, Feb. 25.—(AP)—Several thousand soviet Russian soldiers are moving down toward the Manchurian frontier, presumably because of Moscow's apprehension over Japanese troop movements in northwestern Manchuria, the Rengo [Japanese] News agency reported from Harbin today.

Meanwhile the Japanese expedition, headed by Gen. Jiro Tamon, and aimed at Chinese rebels in the vicinity of Imienpo, was held up. Difficulties developed in getting permission to transport troops over the Chinese Eastern railway, which is jointly owned by Russia and China.

Wait Word from Moscow.

Officials of the railway said they were unable to furnish trains requested by the Japanese because they had not received instructions to do so from Moscow. Japanese authorities declared the railway officials were attempting to prevent any Japanese advance in the direction of Vladivostok, although Gen. Tamon has announced his only purpose to disperse Chinese rebels against the new Manchurian government who have seized considerable territory in the vicinity of Imienpo.

Chiang to Lead Drive.

NANKING, Feb. 25.—(AP)—Gen. Chiang Kai-shek, China's principal military commander and its virtual dictator, soon will be assigned to conduct a campaign to recover Manchuria, it was understood today.

Meanwhile, Gen. Feng Yu-hsiang, formerly known as the Christian general, will be given command of the troops "resisting Japanese aggression at Shanghai."

CHURCH LEADERS ASK VOLUNTEERS FOR 'PEACE ARMY'

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Feb. 25.—The formation of an "unarmed peace army" to proceed to Shanghai and place themselves between the Japanese and the Chinese armies was proposed here today by three London church leaders as a means for ending the far eastern conflict. The sponsors of the plan are Miss Maude Royden, woman preacher, the Rev. H. R. L. "Dick" Shepherd, famous wartime padre, and the Rev. Herbert Gray. They forwarded their proposal to the league of nations.

"We think it vital that the league of nations should employ all possible means of constraint—short of killing and the withholding of necessary food—in order to stop the fighting," the churchmen said. "The only effective way is for men and women to volunteer to place themselves unarmed between the combatants."

There are many women in many countries who are already contemplating volunteering for such an army, declared the writers. Volunteers are invited by the trio.

FINDS ALL CHINA READY TO FIGHT TO KEEP OUT JAPS

Public Inflamed; Slogan Everywhere Is "Resist."

BY JOHN POWELL.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SHANGHAI, Feb. 26 [Friday].—Is the Chinese nation as a whole supporting Shanghai in the conflict with Japan and what are the prospects of the entire country becoming inflamed?

This question was answered today by Dr. C. T. Wang, former foreign minister, who was compelled to relinquish his post due to his alleged conciliatory policy toward Japan.

"In my opinion the failure of China's long continued policy of forbearance to aggression and oppressive actions of Japan has shown all classes of Chinese that only one course now is left open—resistance to Japan with all the strength of the Chinese nation," he said.

Chinese "Thoroughly Aroused."

"The Chinese people are becoming thoroughly aroused. This is evidenced by the financial support given to China's 19th route army at Shanghai, as well as the arrival of food and comforts for these troops. This support is coming from all sections of the country and from Chinese residents abroad as well.

"Furthermore, the bloodshed caused and the atrocities committed by the Japanese military through shelling and air bombing a defenseless population have only stiffened the resistance of the Chinese people. China has never been an aggressive nation, but history shows the Chinese have always been able to resist foreign aggression. The possibility, therefore, exists that the present war situation may spread all over the country, particularly in north China. There is a strong likelihood that China may attempt by military means to recover Manchuria.

"Heretofore foreign aggression against China has been more or less localized at certain ports, but in the case of Shanghai the entire country has been affected. Thousands of people driven out of their Shanghai homes have fled to the interior, carrying back first hand information of Japanese aggression. Its effect was first evidenced in Canton, which is now aflame and is sending money, munitions, and military reinforcements to support the 19th army.

Youths Take Up Guns.

"Now the National Guard division, trained under the personal supervision of Gen. Chiang Kai-shek, has entered the struggle. This division is comprised largely of young men from the towns and villages of Kiangsi and Chekiang provinces including hundreds of college and university graduates. Public opinion of China proper, south of the great wall, is largely prepared to realize the present situation due to Japanese military activities in Manchuria, an important element being the influx of refugees from Manchuria to their original homes in Shantung and other northern provinces, each refugee bringing a story of Japanese oppression.

"The only element of Chinese society which possibly is not giving full support to the present anti-Japanese resistance is the communist party which is entrenched in the Kiangsi, Hunan, and Hupeh provinces, but it is also now obvious that the communists are not taking advantage of the present situation to embarrass the government."

China Carries On Trade.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 25.—Except in the immediate trouble zone, Chinese business has not been materially affected by the hostilities at Shanghai, according to a message received at the commerce department today from Commercial Attaché Julean Arnold at Shanghai.

"Despite the military operations around Chapei and Woosung," said Mr. Arnold, "the rest of China still carries on business as usual.

"While Shanghai hostilities are interferring seriously with trade in the lower Yangtze river, disruption of trade in one section of the country often accentuates that of other sections outside the zone of hostilities. Thus some of Shanghai's trade is being temporarily diverted to other channels."

Mr. Arnold stated, however, that at least 75 per cent of the import cargo bound for China is going into bonded warehouses. Construction work continues to be badly dislocated, he said. Preliminary estimates indicate that 597 factories and workshops have been destroyed in the Chapei district, and 333 in the Yangtzepoo area, with a combined total loss of about $25,000,000, according to the cable.

[Copyright: 1932: By the New York Times.]

SHANGHAI, Feb. 25.—Extraordinary individual evidences of Chinese patriotism are widely featured in the Chinese press. Miss Hang Chung-liang, an 18 year old Shanghai girl, was determined to enlist in the army, but her parents objected. She cut off her little finger on her left hand, declaring she would bleed to death if not permitted to fight for her country, whereupon her parents consented.

Japs Rush Destroyers to Swatow; Nationals Beaten

HONGKONG, Feb. 25.—(AP)—Additional Japanese destroyers were reported on the way to Swatow, China, today following an attack by Chinese there on two Japanese bank employés during victory celebration. Police rescued the Japanese, who were not seriously hurt, but the Japanese consul lodged a strong protest with Chinese officials.

NINE POWER PACT NOT VIOLATED! JAPAN INSISTS

Disputes Stimson's Claim China Can Cure Self.

BULLETIN.

TOKIO, Feb. 26.—(AP)—The cabinet approved an extraordinary appropriation of 22,000,000 yen (about $7,040,000) today to meet additional military expenses in connection with the Japanese expedition to Shanghai.

[Copyright: 1932: By the New York Times.]

TOKIO, Feb. 25.—Informed of Secretary of State Stimson's letter to Senator Borah only by the press versions, Japanese officials this afternoon confined their comment to denials that any sort of barter had been made at the Washington arms conference of 1921-1922 as between the naval limitations agreements and the nine-power Pacific treaty.

The assumption read in Mr. Stimson's letter that Japan wants to scrap the treaties protecting China is met with the explanation that Japan's statement to the league of nations that China is not a normal state was meant to explain what Japan is doing and not to announce that Japan proposes to destroy or revise the Pacific treaty.

"Interference is Necessary."

But Japan disputes Mr. Stimson's contention that if the powers stand aloof China will work out her own salvation, and now asserts that absolute noninterference has become impossible any longer.

The Washington government's significant renewal of its notice that it will refuse to recognize any agreements or situations created by the violation of treaties and Mr. Stimson's hint that such refusal would eventually bring restitution to China of any rights taken from her by force brought no comment.

The foreign office spokesman declared that Mr. Stimson was under a misapprehension if he considered that a bargain had been struck at the Washington conference between the nine power treaty and the naval agreements. He said the naval agreements and the agreement not to fortify Guam were not reached by a process of barter regarding Chinese questions, but were concluded before the Chinese questions were taken up.

No Violation, Japan Insists.

"Politicians in election speeches," he added, "have spoken about America's concessions, but this is the first time an official statement has suggested that America sacrificed her right to fortify Guam in return for concessions regarding China."

The spokesman repeated that Japan had not violated the nine power treaty. He said it provided no means of deciding a difference of opinion regarding its execution, but pointed out that it provided for consultation over differences, and the United States had not consulted Japan before charging her with violations.

He insisted that Japan's statement to the league of nations on Tuesday was not intended to suggest that Japan desired to have the treaties revised or abolished.

"Our view of the nine power treaty," he explained, "is that when the powers undertook to respect the sovereignty and integrity of China they did not mean that these actually existed. They covenanted that as soon as those attributes of an organized state existed they would be respected, and meanwhile they would refrain from placing obstacles in the way of China's attainment of integrity."

League to Fall In Behind U. S. in Dealing with Japan

BY JAY ALLEN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

GENEVA, Feb. 25.—Secretary of State Stimson's letter to Senator Borah, which was communicated to the league of nations today raised a sigh of relief.

(Secretary Stimson indirectly threatened Japan with abrogation of the naval limitations accord between the United States and Japan if the latter continues to flout the nine power treaty guaranteeing Chinese sovereignty.)

League officials now think they know where the United States stands and feel that the league's own course of action has been indicated. In fact, the league council's reply to Japan's retort to its recent appeal and admonition to observe her covenant and treaty obligations is expected to reflect somewhat the new clarity.

Reinforces Former Note.

A meeting of the council or at least the committee of twelve without the Chinese and Japanese is due to be held either tomorrow or Saturday to put the reply into final shape.

Secretary Stimson's policy as outlined in his letter is interpreted here to reinforce strongly his note of Jan. 7 on which the league patterned that part of its appeal which said that no settlement achieved in the far east by force "ought" to be recognized. The council now is expected to go still further, following Stimson's lead.

On the assumption that the United States has made her attitude clear, league officials intimate that they no longer feel the urgency of inviting her to participate in the league assembly meeting on March 3. As the need of inviting the United States diminishes, the inconvenience of inviting Russia seems to grow. It is debated whether the Russians would come to help or to stir trouble.

Shanghai Cause For Worry.

The Japanese delegation here refrained from commenting on the Stimson letter although one of their ambassadors remarked that the language appeared "strong." Baron Tsuneo Matsudaira, Japanese ambassador to Great Bitain, at a Japanese entertainment for the press today, reviewed the oriental situation and explained that little confidence ought to be put in Chinese reports.

The Japanese assured their guests that Shanghai is causing them considerable worry and that they would be only too glad to liquidate the incident with dignity.

"When the Chinese awake to realities and a spirit of moderation it is natural that the people of the far east will be revived with them and the friendship of Japan and China will bloom afresh," said Matsudaira.

GOVERNOR MAY O. K. JACOBS AS ASSESSOR TODAY

Springfield reports last night were to the effect that Gov. Emmerson may agree today to the appointment of J. L. Jacobs, efficiency expert, as Cook county assessor under the provisions of the Kelly bill.

While the governor, who was in Decatur during the evening for the dedication of a new state armory, refused to say whether he would act favorably on Jacobs' name, it was understood at the capital that he had agreed to give a definite answer on this nomination today.

Jacobs' name was presented to the governor by President Emmett Whealan of the county board, who shares with him the power of appointment. Jacobs also has the hearty indorsement of Mayor Cermak.

New Spanish Envoy to U. S. Is Visitor in Chicago

Juan de Cardenas, new ambassador from Spain to the United States, arrived in Chicago yesterday en route to Washington, D. C. The diplomat was accompanied by his Rumanian wife. "There is no truth to the rumor that Spain will be the next country to become communistic," he said. Señor Cardenas recently left Japan, where he had been the Spanish minister for the last two years.

MIKADO BOSSES JAPANESE ARMY, WAR CHIEF SAYS

Explains That Emperor Gives All Orders.

[Copyright: 1932: By the Associated Press.]

TOKIO, Feb. 25.—(AP)—Lieut. Gen. Sadao Araki, Japanese minister of war, today issued a vigorous denial of current gossip that the army, and especially the general staff, has been attempting to exercise a military dictatorship over the nation.

"Such rumors emanate from quarters ignorant of the essential qualities of the Japanese people and especially of the Japanese army," he said.

"Military officers are devoted vassals of the emperor and they never act without his majesty's orders. We are confident that when the empire confronts a life or death crisis our people, and especially our army, will display a degree of self-control, discipline and solidarity that will astonish the world."

"Japan Acts as Good Neighbor."

The war minister asserted that for Japan to lend friendly assistance in the establishment of the new Manchurian state is "merely the act of a good neighbor."

Asked whether the army would continue indefinitely to afford protection to the fledgling government, Gen. Araki replied:

"We hope wholeheartedly to make Manchuria and Mongolia a land of permanent peace and tranquillity. As long as the new regime refrains from violating Japanese rights and interests and attempts to give the 30,000,000 inhabitants good government, Japan should aid in a friendly spirit.

Denies Manchurian Tinkering.

"We understand that the new state promises to respect international obligations and to allow all nations to enjoy the benefits of the open door. It is only natural that Japan show good will toward efforts to conform with the desires of the public to establish an ideal society free from war. We hope the new government attains a natural and healthy growth."

Gen. Araki denied that the Japanese army or the government has maintained direct relations with the new Manchurian state. He explained that Col. Itagaki and Col. Doihara, Japanese officers whose activities were much in evidence during the formative stages, were merely "on liaison duty to make the business between the Japanese and Chinese work smoothly."

He emphasized that the leaders of the new Manchuria, and not the Japanese army, must determine the extent of the state's boundaries.

"Alfalfa Bill" Murray Hurt in Auto Accident

CANADIAN FLYERS MISSING 11 DAYS ARE FOUND SAFE

VANCOUVER, B. C., Feb. 25.—(AP)—The blizzard stricken country of northern British Columbia, in which William Graham and Mrs. Edna Cristofferson had been missing eleven days, gave up the two today and they flew safely out to civilization. They had dropped out of sight on a flight to Point Barrow to search for an abandoned trading ship and salvage furs aboard it.

The first searching plane to try to find them, flown by S. E. McMillan, Canadian Airways pilot, led them back to Atlin, up near the Alaska boundary.

"Found Graham okeh. Both planes returned to Atlin at 5 p. m.," said a message from McMillan.

Details received from Atlin tonight said McMillan had located the Graham plane on the ice of a small lake 45 miles from Teslin lake, where it had landed on account of a shortage of fuel.

While both the flyers suffered hardships from the cold and storms, neither was the worse for their experience. The plane was undamaged.

FEAR FOR LIVES OF AMERICANS IN SETTLEMENT

Dispatches to U. S. Say Women Bayoneted.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 25.—[Special. — Increasing concern over the safety of Americans in the Shanghai international settlement was felt in administration circles tonight as dispatches described the renewed preparations now being made for a Japanese offensive on a much larger scale. Fear is felt that with the increase of Chinese forces and the adding of Japanese troops, the fighting front will be enlarged to the point where the settlement may be invaded.

Dispatches telling of alleged Japanese bayonetting of hundreds of Chinese civilians, including women, during the recent fighting, also have served to arouse apprehension. While no official statements were issued, it became known that dispatches reaching Washington state that thousands of dwellings were burned by Japanese troops. The reports state also that Chinese women were bayonetted and many innocent civilians killed by the Japanese forces.

Civilians Reported Slain.

Other reports reaching Washington are to the effect that Japanese marines and armed civilians have broken into Chinese and American property in the Hongkew international sector and allegedly killed hundreds of Chinese civilians, including women, many of them being bayonetted.

Confidential reports reaching the capital state that the latest Japanese offensive has come to a complete standstill, with the Japanese defeated again. It was stated that Chinese morale is high, while Japanese forces were unnerved and weakened in morale. The original naval attack on Shanghai and the offensive started by Gen. Uyeda were described as blunders.

Reports from Shanghai state that it is believed the Japanese suffered heavier casualties than have been reported through the press. Gen. Tsai has stated his losses since the beginning of the Japanese offensive have been in the neighborhood of 1,700. As previously the Chinese forces had lost 500 men, this brought the Chinese total to 2,200. The general was said to have reported that 5,000 civilians have been killed.

May Have 200,000 Troops.

Just how many Chinese troops can be concentrated for the Shanghai defense has not been disclosed, although experts here believe the defense force may be augmented eventually to 200,000. The Chinese are credited with having close to 2,000,000 men under arms but these forces are so widely scattered that it is impossible to tell how many could be mobilized for warfare against Japan. Something like a quarter of a million Chinese troops are represented as well equipped. Some of Chiang Kai-shek's troops are fighting with the 19th route army at Shanghai. Some of Feng Yu Hsiang's troops are reported to be entering the lines at Woosung.

One of the latest dispatches from Manchuria station in Manchuria states that so far as can be seen, the soviet is withdrawing railroad equipment and soya beans into Siberia. There are no indications, it was said, that the soviet military has been concentrating any troops near the border.

JAPAN BUILDING NAVY TO LIMIT UNDER TREATY

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 25.—[Special.]—Admiral William V. Pratt, chief of naval operations, disclosed today that naval records show that Japan undoubtedly is building her fleet up full treaty strength. He added, however, that contrary to published reports, there is no evidence here that Japan is violating either the one year naval building truce or any of the arms limitation treaties.

Admiral Pratt's statement was occasioned by publication of a report that Japan had laid down four cruisers since the one year naval truce was declared last November.

In pointing out that these cruisers were being laid down in conformity with a plan announced in the press as long ago as December, 1930, Admiral Pratt remarked that so far as he could see the laying down of these ships did not constitute a violation of the naval truce.

Analysis of the Pratt statement, which was similar to one made before the senate naval committee a month ago, disclosed that the one year arms holiday has been rendered futile by the reservations attached to its acceptance by the signatory powers.

PRICE OF SUGAR FALLS TO LOW FOR ALL TIME

Efforts to Control Surplus Fail to Help.

BY PAUL POTTER.

World prices for sugar, that staple food of all nations and the dependable source of vast governmental revenues, this week toppled to the lowest values on record.

THOMAS CHADBOURNE.

Quotations on the raw sugar in New York, delivered to customers' plants, reached 2.88 cents a pound Wednesday and remained there yesterday. Of this amount, 2 cents, or about 70 per cent, is federal duty. Twelve years ago the same product at 22 cents was making thousands of men "sugar kings."

Eight years of economic and political dickerings among the producing and consuming nations to stem the tide of mounting sugar surplus by artificial stabilization have failed. Sugar merchants report concern over the veiled threats which Cuba and the Dutch Java producers are casting at each other. And meanwhile enough unsold sugar exists in eight exporting countries to supply needs of the United States for almost a year.

Surplus Continues to Grow.

Almost identical to the costly experiences of Canada and the United States in encouraging farmers to continue growing wheat by artificially boosting prices, sugar producing continues each season to exceed by a greater percentage the actual needs of the world. It is the same story, in other words, of Brazil's dilemma in coffee, of Britain's expensive attempt to corner rubber, and Chile's nationalizing of natural nitrates.

About half of the sugar consumed in the United States comes from Cuba. One-third of its comes from the Philippines, Porto Rico and Hawaii, hence duty free, and the balance is produced domestically. In 1930 the federal government obtained 95 million dollars in Cuban tariffs, chiefly sugar.

The product of the cane fields built an industry that is 80 per cent of Cuba's wealth, yet American capital to the extent of 750 millions invested in the industry has shrunk to a present value said to be but 5 per cent of that figure. Poverty, riots, threatened rebellions and the pitting of Cuban sugar interests against American have been the outgrowth of the island's oversupplying America's sweet tooth.

Try Price Stabilization.

First stabilization plans of the Cuban government were made into law in 1924. By government decree Cuba restricted sugar production in 1925-'26 and 1927-'28 while forming a central selling agency for all producers on the island. Other countries immediately hastened production and in 1929 the Cuban government dropped its control of the crop.

Its warehouses were stuffed with 1,300,000 tons of unsold sugar, almost half a total crop. Even "dumping" at cut prices in foreign markets had resulted in five countries immediately building tariff walls which with others now hinder rather than help the greater consumption of sugar.

In November, 1930, the Cuban government met the situation by floating a bond issue of 42 million dollars to carry the surplus. At the same time President Machado joined forces with a New York banker who was interested in sugar, Thomas Chadbourne. The latter, heading a committee of producers and government officials, became the proponent of a plan which in 1931 led seven large sugar growing nations to put into effect the largest economic and political attempt to control a world commodity ever attempted.

Many Countries Follow Plan.

Following the recommendation of a league of nations investigation in 1929, the following countries subscribed to the "Chadbourne plan." They were Cuba, Java [the Netherlands], Germany, Poland, Czecho-Slovakia, Hungary, and Belgium. Peru later joined the group, whose threefold plan included segregating all surplus sugar and allotting its sale over a period of five years; arbitrary curtailing of production in each country by 15 per cent; and government sanction by each country to insure growers' compliance with the agreement.

Java's crop, which costs less to produce than all others, was reduced less than the others because much of it was already contracted for delivery. Germany required a special rating because of its reparations payments and the fact that in 1930 it had an unusually large crop.

But the sugar industry perked up at news of the successful arrangement for gradually bringing production down to consumption. The agreement, its sponsors declared, did not "fix prices" but merely offered a practical means to prevent "stifling competition." It was hailed as the possible forerunner of other artificial attempts at commodity control.

U. S. Producers Indicted.

The United States and its territories, however, were not participating, on the theory this would be a violation of anti-trust laws. Yet the large importers and producers of cane sugar in the United States were represented, and have been indicted by the federal government as members of the Sugar Institute of New York. The alleged anti-trust law violations are being aired this week.

The plan which went into operation in May, last year, took 6,000,000 tons of surplus sugar off the market; 4,000,000 by arbitrary restriction of exports and 2,000,000 by segregating the existing 2,500,000 unsold sugar in existence, of which but 500,000 tons might be sold in one year.

It was so arranged that a change of quotas for each country obtained whenever the price advanced, this being a check on "possible excessive prices." An international sugar council was created at The Hague, so complete was the machinery for this gigantic venture.

Meanwhile, however, most importing countries continued to hike their sugar tariff walls. In Java sugar producing was profitable at 2 cents a pound. In Cuba the efficient American interests found 2½ cents a profitable price. But Cuban owned plants needed higher prices and by clamoring at the government for aid to prevent them going to the wall, President Machado finds a cool reception among Havana sugar men now for Chairman Chadbourne.

Cuba cut its exports last year to 2,655,000 tons, a drop of 47 per cent from its 1930 sales. Java curtailed but 17 per cent, yet the production in all Europe last year was some 40 per cent under 1930. But Cuba was still the loser in the deal, its government officials now claim, because reduced demand in the United States had not been estimated in the plan's quota.

Has Greatest Surplus.

So Cuba ended its first year with a greater surplus than before, some 1,540,000 tons. Unsold reserves of Cuba and Java in January were reported by Chadbourne to have cost them over 116 million dollars to produce. At current prices they would bring but 70 millions. If dumped or sold at any price the industries and governments faced loss of almost the entire amount.

Last Tuesday President Machado signed a government decree which fixes the Cuban production in 1932 at a little over 3 million tons, a drop of 60,398 tons from 1931. At the same time he authorized the Cuban Sugar institute to cable the International institute that if Java and other countries signed to the Chadborune plan do not further curtail their quotas, Cuba will withdraw from the agreement. And in the meantime, under favorable tariffs, beet sugar growers are being encouraged to enlarge their activities in many foreign countries, including Russia.

U. S. NAVY AIRMAN LEAPS 7,000 FEET IN CHUTE; UNHURT

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 25.—[Special]—Lieut. Frederick M. Trapnell, navy flyer, leaped 7,000 feet to safety in a parachute today when the plane he was testing for the navy department developed a structural failure at an altitude of 20,000 feet.

Lieut. Trapnell was unhurt, although the plane was completely demolished by flames after it had crashed into a clump of trees at Oxon Hill, Md. Lieut. Trapnell was flying a Curtiss scouting plane, type XS 3 C-1, powered with a Wright FR-1820-E motor of 600 horsepower.

According to navy officials, he had put the plane into a dive from 20,000 feet, when the "structural failure" occurred. The flyer leaped for his life when the craft had descended to 7,000 feet, without his being able to regain control.

Today's jump was Lieut. Trapnell's second since November, 1929, when he was forced to leap from a plane which had caught fire over San Diego, Cal. He becomes the thirteenth member of the Caterpillar club to have made two parachute jumps from disabled planes.

The salaries of all fifty-one employés will be reduced on a scale of 5 per cent on the first $100 of monthly incomes, and 10 per cent on each $100 or fraction above $100.

MOSCOW'S TOTAL DISARM IDEA DIES IN ARMS PARLEY

Soviet Plan Gets Only Two Votes.

BY JAY ALLEN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

GENEVA, Feb. 25.—The disarmament conference today drove that Russian waif, total disarmament, out into the snow, supposedly for good, and turned with a clear conscience to begin its labors to the tune of an old French air called security before disarmament.

The French carried the tune with the Jugo-Slavs and Rumanians in close harmony, and, although the Germans demurred at first and the Americans proposed something else for the moment, everybody else joined in. It was also decided by the first unanimous vote ever taken in disarmament proceedings that in addition to the committees on effectives, material and expenditure there would be a fourth known as the political committee.

In their victory the French believe they have consecrated a claim to survival, for the moment anyway, of their ambitious proposals for an armed international force.

Germans to Have Say.

But in the "political" committee, already dubbed the conference cockpit, all "political" issues will come up and that means the Germans will have their say there on equality in the right to arm.

It seems that this committee will be no less than the conference commission, which in reality is the conference itself. Hugh S. Gibson, chief American delegate, who appeared to think it would be of different composition suggested it would be better to resuscitate the conference steering commission but lined up with Andre Tardieu, French premier, later.

The Russian total disarmament plan was voted down with only Maxim Litvinov, soviet foreign commissar, and the Turkish delegate voting in favor. Tardieu refrained from the temptation of demolishing the proposal, but others said that this imperfect world is no place for such a proposal yet.

Litvinov Bobs Up.

Litvinov bobbed up this time with the cherry fatalism of a "nigger-baby" in a sideshow to talk for his project.

"The possibility of a new war has been clearly demonstrated by the simple fact of its occurrence," he remarked dryly.

Moreover, he found, he said, that the capitalist ogres are beginning to look to war as a means of restoring prosperity. Shipment after shipment of munitions are going "freely and openly" to the far east, he said.

Tells Disarm Fable.

It was Salvador de Madariaga, Spanish delegate, who sprang the best bedtime story of the conference. It went like this:

In a disarmament conference, the jungle lion said to the eagle, "We must abolish talons," and the eagle said to the bull, "We must abolish horns," and the bull to the tiger, "We've got to ban claws," and the bear said—Madariaga prefaced his yarn by asking Litvinov not to get mad—"let's abolish everything but a universal hug."

HUSBAND ASKS COURT TO FREE HIS BRIDE FROM MOTHER'S HOME

Circuit Judge Thomas J. Lynch will be asked today to reunite Mrs. Lillian Turek, 19 years old, and her husband, Charles, 22 years old, 4144 Roosevelt road, an engineer. Last evening the young husband filed a petition for a writ of habeas corpus, charging that his wife had been taken prisoner by her mother, Mrs. Clara Aronson, 1306 South Kostner avenue, and was being held in the mother's home.

The petition recited that the young couple eloped to Waukegan, where they were married on Tuesday afternoon. When they returned to Chicago that evening Mrs. Turek went to her mother's home to seek her blessing. Instead she was locked in her room and the mother, with the aid of a son-in-law, Sampson Esko, 44 North Menard avenue, pushed Turek out of the house, he charged.

Once since that time Turek has been able to see his bride when he went to her mother's home, he said. She was unable to speak to him, he said, but her expression indicated that she was being held against her will.

Turek's attorney, Samuel A. Kanter, said that he would ask an immediate hearing if the court issued the writ.

ATTORNEY LOSES SUIT AGAINST RUTH M'CORMICK

Superior Judge Michael McKinley yesterday denied the suit of Attorney Cairoli Gigliotti against Mrs. Ruth Hanna McCormick for legal fees and expenses which Gigliotti said were incurred in her behalf in the 1930 senatorial campaign. The judge's ruling brought the case to a close five minutes after Mrs. McCormick took the stand in her own defense. She denied that she had engaged Attorney Gigliotti or had promised him any fees. Wednesday and yesterday morning the lawyer testified as his own witness. He asserted that he had sponsored an effort to cause a senatorial investigation of an alleged alliance between "Diamond Joe" Esposito and Charles S. Deneen, then senator.

COCKTAIL NAMED FOR AIMEE'S VISIT; HUBBY FILES SUIT

[Copyright: 1932: By the New York Times.]

BALBOA, Canal Zone, Feb. 25.—[Special.]—Contending that connection of her name with a newly concocted cocktail had defamed his wife's character, David Hutton, husband of Aimee Semple McPherson, California evangelist, today filed suit in a Colon court against Max Bilgray, proprietor of a popular café there.

Following Mrs. Hutton's visit to Bilgray's café while visiting the isthmus under the name of Adams, Hutton's suit alleges, Bilgray had published the formula for the "Hallelujah cocktail," with the appended explanation that the drink had been inspired by the evangelist's visit to his place.

Hutton, it is reported, is asking one million dollars damages.

"The newspaper is an institution developed by modern civilization to present the news of the day, to foster commerce and industry, to inform and mold public opinion, and to furnish that check upon government which no constitution has ever been able to provide."

UNDERMINING THE PUBLIC SCHOOLS.

The board of education, which for a time had shown a disposition to reduce its 1932 expenditures to something like a reasonable estimate of its 1932 income, has reverted to its original attitude. Again the board is preparing to appropriate more than $90,000,000. There is not a competent student of revenue matters in Chicago who thinks that the board of education is going to receive that much in tax revenue. It is probably well within the truth to say that few disinterested observers expect the board of education to receive as much as $70,000,000.

The majority of the board and probably the majority of the board's employés seem to think that the worst that may come from this kind of budgeting is an increase in the board's floating debt, which is already large. An addition of $20,000,000 to the public debt is not a thing to be regarded lightly, but we venture to say that the added burden of debt is the least of a train of misfortunes which cannot fail to follow the school board's surrender.

A $90,000,000 budget is equivalent to a guarantee that the teachers and other school employés will not be paid what is due them. The school board operates on credit. It pays one year's bills by borrowing against the next year's revenues. All the revenues which it will receive from the collection of 1930 taxes must be devoted to paying off the warrants it has already sold. Little, if any, of its current income can be spent for current needs. The board is normally a full year in arrears, but today it is two full years in arrears and its credit is correspondingly poor. If it expects to obtain credit under these circumstances it must put its house in order. That principle would apply in normal times when banks were not unusually concerned to maintain their liquidity. Today it is more true than ever. If the board expects to get cash with which to pay its bills it must adjust its expenditures to the point where no added risk is involved in the purchase of its tax anticipation warrants.

Who will lend money to the school board [and the only way it can pay its bills is with borrowed money] knowing that the warrants are not likely to be redeemable in full or on time? No one dare answer that some lender will be found somewhere, because no lender has been found after months of frantic search. Surely it cannot be argued that a continuance of excessive appropriation on the part of the school board will encourage lenders who hitherto have regarded the school board of Chicago as a poor risk precisely because of its excessive expenditures.

Nor is that the whole story. When the board of education prepares its budget it merely prepares a bill which is passed on to the taxpayers. When the board of education prepares a bill for $90,000,000 it is passing on to the taxpayers a bill which they cannot pay. The recent study made by the joint commission on real estate valuation establishes this point. A $90,000,000 school bill means that thousands of owners of income producing property will find themselves wholly unable to pay both the interest on their mortgages and their taxes. Failure to pay either must result in the loss of the property; and, accordingly, the owners of real estate equities will default on both to escape further losses. The results of these defaults are almost too obvious to require mention. The foreclosure of mortgages must lead to a further deflation of property values and, therefore, a further reduction in future tax income; while the high probability that thousands of taxpayers will have lost any incentive to pay their current bills must add a new hazard to the already extraordinary risk involved in the purchase of school board warrants.

There is no avoiding these conclusions. The school board and many of its organized employés have shut their minds to the consequences of present policies for reasons which may, perhaps, be worth examining. . . .

The teachers and other employés, it is to be hoped, are merely the victims of wishful thinking. It is difficult to believe that they are deliberately setting out to wreck the school system and destroy their livelihoods, though that is the expectable byproduct of excessive appropriation. Certainly the teachers have no real interest in the utter insolvency of the public school system.

As much cannot be said of the school board majority. These gentlemen may see some profit in bringing about the collapse of the school system now. They may think that chaos in school affairs under Cermak will redound to their advantage. This explanation of their present course is consistent with the policies pursued by the majority in the past. They have never hesitated to wring political advantage from the administration of the schools, and it would be a mistake to expect them to show a change of heart now.

MR. STIMSON ON THE TREATIES.

In a letter to Senator Borah, chairman of the foreign relations committee of the senate, Secretary Stimson of the state department had more liberty and more space for an outline of the American position than he might have in a note of protest to another government. To Mr. Borah he concedes the obvious. The series of international agreements affecting the far east and the military power of the parties to the treaties are all interlocking and interrelated. They depend upon good faith and scrupulous performance. They have failed.

When the United States gave up its commanding lead in sea power at the Washington conference it put its faith in the inviolability of other agreements which were incorporated in the naval understanding or were complementary to it. A complementary treaty was the one guaranteeing the integrity of China. This to Americans means the open door of trade as opposed to the seizure of Chinese territory and the dominance of particular nations in selected areas.

The United States not only gave up its naval supremacy but it agreed not to put itself in a condition of military security in the Philippines and other possessions west of Hawaii. It saw, although it did not agree to, the occupation of German territory in the Pacific by Japan and dominions of the British empire. To this it did not say yes and it didn't say no. In reality it accepted a fact without continued protest.

The situation thus created might have been tolerable if absolute good faith had prevailed, but Americans who feared that confidence was misplaced have been justified. The key to the treaties is the agreement against aggression. Mr. Stimson says that in 1921-'22, when the agreements were made, there were no illusions regarding China. It was known that there was a rocky road ahead of that country, which was taken into consideration. The nations were pledged not to be provoked into aggression, war, and the seizure of territory. They were to use other means of correction if China became troublesome, and in reliance upon these other means the United States gave up its sea power.

Mr. Stimson and the administration for which he speaks now find themselves dealing, at times imprudently, with a critical condition of affairs growing out not only of a breach of agreement by Japan but out of the bad faith displayed under the treaties by American administrations to the American people. American governments were faithless to the implied trust of the naval agreement. In prosperous years when heavy taxes were paid and the treasury had no lack of funds American administrations betrayed the navy. They treated the navy limitations not as bounds beyond which they should not go but as bounds they did not intend to reach. (This was admitted as a government policy by Admiral William V. Pratt, chief of naval operations. Confession was not required. The fact was notorious.)

Thus we have come to the consequences. The pacific scheme has broken down. The treaties are worthless at this moment and Mr. Stimson's faith in their recovery has little to justify it. American self-reliance has been badly shaken. The navy is below par. It is receding annually from treaty strength. The country with vanishing revenue is in no condition to repair the damage. The American far east possessions are less protected than China itself. The willingness of other nations to use force for the accomplishment of their purposes is revealed by Japan to be unchanged. Great Britain and France have not followed the American state department in protests to sustain the integrity of treaty obligations.

Again, as in the treaty making at Paris, as in the adoption of the phrases of the Kellogg instrument, as in the assumption that the league of nations would recognize its own covenant, the United States has been left alone to its illusions. It is in a make-believe world all its own.

The inference drawn from Mr. Stimson's letter to Senator Borah is that if the nine power treaty fails the United States will abrogate the naval treaty. Let it be hoped.

THE BOOTLEG CONVENTION.

Atlantic coast bootleggers and runners are in Halifax for a business conference with their Canadian connections. The trade requires better organization methods, it is thought. Prices have not been responsive to changed conditions in the United States. The American consumer still rates a case of Scotch in the necessities of his fortnightly budget and will defer the children's shoes and his wife's hat to this purchase, but the American trade thinks that some concession properly should be allowed the customer's difficulty in raising the money for grapefruit and pork chops. Therefore the Canadian trade is asked to consider a better price on the merchandise.

The continuance of Volstead without modification will soon make the bootleggers' convention one of the principal trade assemblages of the year, addressed, no doubt, by the attorney general or the director of prohibition, or both. The trade directs a great movement of imports and of interstate commerce. It represents one of the major accumulations of capital. It has gained respectability from the respectability of its patrons and presently it will adopt all the business methods of the furniture manufacturers, meat packers, lumber and coal men, and of the professional organizations which meet in convention to exchange good fellowship and ideas. This convention probably will be the only dry one in the country.

Editorial of the Day

WHEN CHICAGO COMES TO HERSELF.

[The Bloomington Pantagraph.]

It is many times declared that the general business depression may have some benefits for the American people after all; it may cause them to discard many of their encumbrances which were dragging them down to an economic quagmire.

And now, since the Illinois legislature has left Chicago to shift for itself, it is said that the city is just beginning to realize its power to solve its own difficulties.

The first move is to get its millions of dollars in back taxes collected. If this had been done two or three years ago, all this crisis talk might have been avoided. Having no other way in sight to get money, bills for the back taxes are to be sent to property owners, and a plea made to them on the ground of patriotism to pay their levies. It is a simple thing to do, but nobody thought of it or dared to propose it so long as the legislature could be looked to for some kind of relief.

The new situation brings to the mind of Chicago people the well known truth that they are vital parts of their city government. Too long have they thought of the power lodged in the city hall as something remote and impersonal. They are now to learn that they, the people, are stockholders in the great municipal business organization. They can save it from bankruptcy, or worse, if they act promptly and together.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

How to the Line, let the quips fall where they may.

IT IS SOMEWHAT AMAZING to those gentle unsophisticated souls untrained in party politics to observe the Democratic house and the Republican senate going along together so sweetly, hand in hand. They were in harmonious and sympathetic accord to trim only 44 million out of the one billion appropriation asked for the treasury and postoffice department in spite of the great clamor raised all over hellengone for retrenchment. And, standing shoulder to shoulder, the Jefferson lads and the administration boys voted for the full 11,000,000 bucks asked for dry law enforcement this year. And why such harmony and single-mindedness, do you ask? If not we will ask it for you. Well, the Republicans wish to hang on to the jobs, of course, but where do the Jefferson lads get off? Ah, they are morally certain of winning next November and it would be just too bad after they got in power after all these hungry years to find the jobs sadly reduced in number. And to realize they had helped kill the goose that laid all those golden eggs. So it doesn't look any too good for us taxpayers right now. Is there a Third Party in the audience?

THE LITTLE BROWN BROTHER from Japan seems to be having a terrible time carrying civilization and culture to the heathen Chinee. It's a shock all around the world. We thought civilization, backed up as it always is with aircraft, battleships, bombs, gas, machine guns and other cultural devices of that kind, always mopped up barbarism with one gulp. But look at the way that the heathen Chinee turns on civilization and culture and gives the two of 'em a swift kick in the pants.

IN PRAISE OF WHISKERS.

We know that Samson's strength
Lay in his hirsute length.
We know that when Delilah
With clippers changed its style, a
Strange weakness overcame him
That seemed to shame and lame him.

In years Victorian,
We know that every man
Wore whiskers. Men were men
Of pride and prowess then.
(Except, perhaps, Albertus,
But don't let that divert us.)

We know these things; and yet
How pronely we forget
And miss this vital point
When times are out of joint
And beardless men bow down,
Crushed by Depression's frown.

Let's look upon our fathers—
Just take a game of Authors
And scan the mossy faces
Of men in higher places,
Men who were long on laurels,
Men who were strong on morals.

Grand, bearded bards that were—
Whitman and Whittier,
Longfellow, Lowell, Holmes,
Writing their rhythmic tomes,
Bryant and Emerson—
Bewhiskered, every one.

Presidents were the same,
Casually I name
Arthur, whose flowing beard
Was positively weird;
Lincoln, Garfield and Grant—
List all I won't, I can't.

How many a lambrequin
Hid a receding chin!
How many a sideburn, sleek,
Filled out a hollow cheek!
How many a stern goatee
Made of a man a He!

Moral? Why mention it?
It is so plain, to wit:
Knowing that Samson's strength
Lay in his hirsute length,
Men here, their chins below,

EOLUS.

AH, WHAT A LOVELY JUNE DAY was yesterday, 64 in the shade, and it was only the 25th of February. The sun beamed down in bright and jovial splendor, the breezes blew warm and soft, the sky was blue, the little birdies sang in the trees and the green grass grew all around, all around. What a climate! What a climate! (Loz Onglaize and other Southern California papers please copy.)

THE NEWSPAPERS say that Secretary Stimson's letter to Senator Borah outlining American policy in China will end the barrage of letters and notes between the U. S. and Japan. SHEDDING EVERY SEVEN YEARS.

H. G. writes: Could you explain the meaning of "the system changing"? I have heard that no part of the body is the same after ten years. Does this mean that the entire body is different, or that when the old cells die the new ones take something from the old throughout life. If the body changes completely, how can we remember the past?

REPLY.

There is an old belief, originating in folklore, that the body changes completely once every seven years. This probably originated in some semi-religious idea that the number seven was superhuman, or divine, in some way. Whether the people who accept a religion that is not founded on a seven day period for creation and rest, or a seven day week, believe the same, I do not know. Our seven day week has the same foundation as the old belief that the human body completes a change every seven years.

The fact is that change is constantly going on, but there is no set period for a cycle in which every cell shall have been changed. The bones and the teeth are changing constantly, whereas other tissues are changing with great rapidity.

Any one who has ever seen the Canti film, or any of the half dozen moving pictures of that type, must recognize that the old opinions were incorrect. The ordinary cells of the human body are not fixed and solid. They are shifting their shapes, and sometimes their position, constantly.

Their substance, instead of being as solid as a hard boiled egg, is about as semi-liquid as the raw white, or as a poorly jellied jelly. Under the microscope, and by means of the movie, cells which we think of as bricks are seen to be composed of streaming, semi-liquid material sending out processes like an elephant's trunk, drawing them back, and wiggling like a bunch of worms. Old protoplasm is constantly being worn away, discarded, and replaced. The blood cells live only a few days; most of them, less than a week. A man may have very solid, hard bone this year, while next year his bony framework may be light and porous. The teeth of rats grow steadily from birth to old age. We may yet find that human teeth grow just as consistently and steadily, though more slowly. Other tissues lie in between these extremes in their rate of change.

The tissues that are worn out and discarded leave behind all their patterns—those of the memory, of habit, of service, of growth, and of reproduction. The dead take nothing away with them. The rule is that every dead man's shoes are filled and the exceptions are no more frequent than is the case with other rules. The old belief is correct as to constant change. It is widely wrong as to the period.

EPIDEMIC OF ITCH.

S. M. writes: There is an epidemic of itch in some of the schools in my city.

1. How is it spread?
2. Would handling books, doorknobs, and furniture convey it?
3. What precautions should one take to prevent catching it?
4. Should clothing worn by persons having itch be burned, or does washing clothing and bedding destroy the itch mite?
5. How about woolen clothing which cannot be scalded?

REPLY.

1. By contact. This includes personal contact, clothing contact, and slate, pencil, eraser, and other contacts.
2. These are less important than personal contacts. Ninety per cent of the cases are due to contact with persons. Say about ten per cent to contact with things.
3. Cleanliness and some degree of aloofness.
4. It is not necessary to burn. Both heat and chemical disinfection are effective.
5. As a rule little itch is spread by contact with outer garments. They can be sterilized, but that is seldom advisable.

BAKING SODA AND COLDS.

L. C. K writes: Does taking baking soda for a cold in about three or four doses a day, each dose containing about a teaspoonful of soda, do any harm to the system? I have heard that it does damage to the stomach tissues. Is this true? I have found this method does help dry up a cold, but wondered if there were any other complications it made.

REPLY.

Probably a few doses taken to meet a passing condition do no harm. When the question shifts to the good done the dispute begins.

TRAFFIC CONDITIONS.

Chicago, Feb. 19.—[Friend of the People.]—At 75th street and Vincennes avenue hundreds of children must cross the street in going to and from school every day. Thousands of automobiles and street cars cross this intersection every hour. I was hit there and so was my mother. An accident occurs almost every day. There should be stop lights put at this corner. Will you please see what can be done? S. J. K.

In connection with traffic conditions at 75th street and Vincennes avenue, please be advised that an officer is now detailed to the intersection during the times the school children are crossing there. A recommendation was made to the commissioner of public works for the installation of stop and go lights there and he replies as follows: "A survey has been made of the intersection. This survey disclosed that 11,950 vehicles enter the intersection between the hours of 7 a. m. and 11 p. m. We are now equipping the intersections which carry upwards of 16,000 vehicles for a like period, so that it will be impossible at this time to install signals at 75th and Vincennes. We will put this intersection on our list for study this year. Installation of control signals will soon be completed at 73d and Vincennes and this should break the Vincennes avenue traffic and afford some relief at 75th street."

FROM THE TRIBUNE'S COLUMNS

CHINA-JAPAN WAR, 1894

WASHINGTON, D. C., Aug. 8.—There is likely to be trouble between an arms company of Connecticut and the United States government in regard to selling munitions of war to China. The Japanese minister has filed a formal protest against the delivery to China of 10,000,000 small bore rifle cartridges. The big cartridge and arm factories in Connecticut and Massachusetts are much interested and have made up a large fund to contest the point at issue.

YOKOHAMA, Aug. 8.—The greatest excitement prevails here and at Tokio and at other large towns as the result of the victories of the Japanese troops at Sikawan, the Japanese synonym for Chon Hon, where the Chinese lost 500 killed and fled in the direction of Kong Chow. Rumors, however, are current here that the Japanese naval forces have been defeated in an engagement with Chinese warships.

SHANGHAI, Aug. 8.—It is officially reported from Tientsin that the efforts of Great Britain and Russia to bring about a peaceful settlement of the disputes between China and Japan have failed. China is willing to pay an indemnity, but refuses to surrender suzerainty over Corea.

28 YEARS AGO TODAY

FEBRUARY 26, 1904.

CHEFOO.—Arrivals from Port Arthur report a naval engagement there early on Feb. 24. The Russians received timely warning from three torpedo boat destroyers which met the Japanese fleet twenty miles off Port Arthur. The Japanese fleet approached to within eight miles of the entrance and commenced the attack. The first to retaliate were the forts, followed by the Petropalovosk, the Novik, Pallada, and Askold. The engagement lasted till nearly daylight, when the Japanese retired. The details and losses on both sides are not known here, but it is said the Japanese lost two ships sunk and three disabled. The Port Arthur forts had five guns silenced. Several shells fell just short of the arsenal, but, striking the mud wall surrounding it, did no damage. Judging from this, the Japanese evidently attempted to destroy the arsenal.

LONDON.—The British foreign office has received an official dispatch saying that not one of the Japanese torpedo boats was damaged in the attack on Port Arthur of Feb. 24.

ST. PETERSBURG.—An official dispatch from Maj. Gen. Pflug, chief of staff of Admiral Alexieff, says: "The enemy again attacked Port Arthur from 1 to 3 a. m. and was everywhere repulsed. Details follow." Following the dispatch of Maj. Gen. Pflug, Viceroy Alexieff has sent in an identical report to the czar.

LONDON.—War correspondents and Europeans in Japan commenting in amazement upon the success of Japanese officials in preserving secrecy regarding all the operations of the war declare this "conspiracy of silence is not only confined to government and service circles but extends to every section of the community."

WASHINGTON. — President Roosevelt signed the ratification of the Panama treaty today and practically completed the makeup of the canal commission. The ratification will be exchanged tomorrow at the state department and this will be the final step which will give the United States actual rights in the Canal Zone.

16 YEARS AGO TODAY

FEBRUARY 26, 1916.

LONDON.—The army of the crown prince continues to pound its way toward Verdun and has arrived almost within rifle range of the outlying houses. The official report issued in Berlin told of the capture of the fortified villages and farms of Champneuvie, Sellate, Marmont, Beaumont, Chamettes, and Ornes. This report added that more than 10,000 French troops had been captured. The French report contains few details, but admits some gains on the part of the Germans. Huge German guns are being brought up to pound the fortress. Verdun is not only considered the strongest fortress the French possess, but it offers direct communication with Paris and has been a thorn in the flesh of the Germans for fifteen months. It is now likely that Verdun soon will be menaced on all sides.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Developments in the quarrel between President Wilson and congress over the foreign policy on the submarine warfare menace to Americans on the high seas only increased anxiety concerning the crisis the nation will face if Germany carries out its announced intention to sink armed merchant ships without warning. It is the understanding that more time will be given the President to try to smooth out the differences with Germany before congress does anything.

CHICAGO.—At a massmeeting of anarchists in Baker's hall mention of the poisoning of Archbishop Mundelein and other guests of the University club banquet was received with cheers by the audience. One speaker said the act of Jean Crones was approved by all anarchists.

MINDING OUR OWN BUSINESS.

Chicago, Feb. 18.—It is the rule of the plains never to draw a gun unless you are prepared to take all the consequences of its instant use.

America, bankrupt and feeding a sixth of its population on public charity, is not prepared to expend the billions which a war carried on seven thousand miles away would cost. Let us keep our fleets and troops at home and, if we must be foolish, haughtily reimburse all our brethren in the China tea and missionary businesses for the lost shirts and profits occasioned by our excitable Asiatic brethren in settling the vexed question of the ownership of Manchuria. It is even possible that the White Russians and the Red Russians, and the Blue, Black, and Green Chinese may so occupy the Japanese that we shall have ample time to prod the Filipinos to such political, moral and economic heights that we may with decency tell them to go to——; independence without guaranties.

Let us calm ourselves by the library lamp with the letters and messages of George Washington wherein are set forth the advantages of minding one's own business and of not trying on the civis Romanus sum stuff until we have cash in bank to pay for it, and remember that we have forborne to recognize our nations which refuse to recognize our naturalization laws or to pay what they owe. These things weighed against war are trivial. Let us shout then for the instant recall of all troops and ships from far eastern seas, where their only possible use will be to precipitate a national calamity.

ROBERT CATHERWOOD.

CRUISING TAXIS.

Chicago, Feb. 18.—Should the city council be so disregardful of public interest as to grant the taxicab companies a monopoly, it might at least insist on a provision preventing them from hogging the streets and adding to the congestion. There is absolutely no excuse for permitting hundreds of vacant cabs to cruise around loop streets during rush hours, particularly around noon, impeding pedestrian traffic. L. C.

THE ENFORCEMENT OF TAX COLLECTIONS.

Chicago, Feb. 19.—Your editorials are interesting, even if they do show a lack of knowledge of revenue laws. You say, "They [the taxpayers] know that the sheriff cannot be stalled off indefinitely." Just what has the sheriff to do with the collection of taxes in Illinois?

Also if a property owner does not pay his taxes, what remedy is there to enforce their collection?

The trouble with the whole situation is that the taxes are uncollectible and people have learned this fact and no longer pay their taxes. We need all the things you recommend by way of lower expenditures, equal distribution and the like, but we must also have some method of enforcing the collection after a levy has once been properly made.

F. D. FULTON.

SNEEZERS IN PUBLIC PLACES.

Chicago, Feb. 13.—Is it not preposterous and unjust that people who do not have colds should be penalized by being obliged to stay away from theaters, while those who cough and sneeze are allowed to be a public menace and nuisance by going to the theaters? G. C.

THE GOING RATE.

Chicago, Feb. 18.—Last week I had occasion to employ two typists for temporary work. When I asked them about their qualifications and what salary they expected one of the girls replied that she had been working for some time for the receiver of the Lake View bank and had received $6 a day. I hired her at $2.50 a day.

Why should a bank receiver pay this girl $3.50 a day more than her services were worth? Whose money was he spending? Not his own; if he was, he would hire her at the market price.

KATHRYN WHALEN.

THE CURE.

Westmont, Ill., Feb. 22.—If the door has not been closed I would like to suggest a practical method for the complete elimination of snoring.

Have the carpenter construct a strong rack over head of bed, suitable for storing a five gallon stone crock. This crock must have a bottom outlet, in which a spigot is inserted. Place crock in rack in such manner that spigot will lie directly over patient's head. Now connect handle of spigot with stout cord, leading to within easy reach of patient's bedfellow. Now that all is in readiness, fill crock two-thirds full of cold water, and further chill by the insertion of large chunk of ice. Patient may now take his repose. When manifestations of snoring first become apparent wife or other complainant pulls cord sufficiently to open handle of spigot, which remains thus opened until patient assumes sitting posture, with hands outstretched, which automatically closes spigot. This rapid change of position will invariably cause a cessation of the snoring. On recurrence of symptoms repeat operation, although one application will usually be found sufficient. R. W. SHERMAN.

TEACHERS' AUTOMOBILES.

Chicago, Feb. 19.—Last Tuesday several teachers of a south side high school found, after another long, overcrowded day of payless teaching, the last straw in the form of an arrest slip on their automobiles. They were asked to appear at room 111, city hall, at 9:30 Thursday morning.

On Thursday morning they dismissed their classes, borrowed or begged $10 from a friend or a loan shark, and reported at the sacred precincts to prevent an arrest and fine. Now when a city owes a teacher $1,500 for several months and doesn't pay, well, the teacher can just go on teaching. Nobody seems to care what or how he teaches. But when the teacher owes the city $10 for a few days he is threatened with arrest and a fine, or worse.

I do not blame some of the teachers who are beginning to teach communism as the way out. Say what you will, the whole dreadful mess is the result of greed, graft, bribery, corruption, and thievery of carelessly chosen, blindly chosen fools in high places.

HIGH SCHOOL TEACHER.

FOREIGN POLICY.

Denver, Colo., Feb. 19.—Your editorials of Feb. 10, "The Hoover Proposals at Geneva," and of even date, "The Pacific Treaties Are Null," represent the most able, clearest, and bravest expression of fundamental Americanism that I have read since Wilson addressed his first masterpieces to the imperial German court in 1917.

Under such leadership America can look to the preservation of her own house, the safe-keeping of her heritage, a national defense that can really defend, instead of attending to the affairs of other nations with the promptings of inexperienced and gush-guided pacifists. The editorials are timely and have the solidity of utterance of the immortal Washington. Power and perseverance to you! HUGH STINSON.

A QUESTION ANSWERED.

Chicago, Feb. 19.—In this column of today's issue you publish two letters on the subject of the release of the drug store bandits, Carl Parker and Stanley Wilson. Both letters are from people who know the subject and the circumstances. I am commenting only on one question which one of the writers so naïvely puts—viz.: "Does any sane man think that this sort of thing will be countenanced and be permitted to go on indefinitely?"

Replying: Yes. Many thousands of sane men think so, and furthermore many sane thousands know that it will, and until your correspondent wakes up and joins that great army of pessimists there can be no hope of reform. And why are conditions thus? Because public spirit in the great U. S. A. is absolutely dead. It wakes up only when there is a chance to jab a bayonet into a stranger's belly. R. A. T.

REPUBLICAN RACE FOR PROSECUTOR PICKS UP SPEED

BY PARKE BROWN.

The Republican contest over the nomination for state's attorney showed an unexpected bit of speed yesterday when Judge Michael Feinberg took the stage at a noon meeting in the Erlanger theater and told of his efforts to aid the depositors of defunct banks in cases taken before him.

Judge Feinberg, the entry of the Harding-Crowe group for prosecutor, charged State's Attorney Swanson with inactivity in connection with the closed banks, incidentally firing a shot at Charles S. Deneen, former United States senator, who is the head of the group sponsoring the present state's attorney for renomination.

Swanson Strikes Back.

This brought a response from Swanson, who charged Judge Feinberg with unjudicial conduct in bringing into his political campaign the cases of banks that are before him for official consideration.

"It is unprecedented in the history of the bench and the history of politics in Cook county," said the state's attorney, "that a judge should seek to capitalize cases before him as a means of seeking political office. It is truly remarkable and a matter that should receive the attention of the Chicago Bar association.

"From what I have heard of today's meeting I am convinced that the judge has disqualified himself for impartial consideration of cases of this character."

Crowd Hears Feinberg.

The Feinberg meeting drew a crowd. Amplifiers were in use in front of the theater and twice it was necessary for the police to clear the crowds from the street car tracks to permit the resumption of traffic.

Early in his talk Judge Feinberg, after a brief perspective of local banking history for the last two years, referred to State's Attorney Swanson.

"Complaints," he said, "came into the state's attorney's office almost immediately after the first bank closed. Depositors complained they deposited money in that bank within an hour before it closed.

"When a state's attorney gets a complaint like that, his plain duty is to make an immediate investigation and a vigorous inquiry into the subject matter—whether these officials knew the bank was insolvent and how long they continued to take deposits while that bank was insolvent.

Criticizes Swanson Policy.

"Now, having done that at the very outset, he would have been able to stop the taking in of more deposits and the loaning of more money without security in the cases of more than half of these banks that are closed."

A little later Judge Feinberg added: "If we had had a state's attorney determined, anxious and willing to help me in my work, he would have stood side by side with me and would have helped me collect more millions for you and there would not have been so much perjury committed."

The judge's attack on former Senator Deneen came when he reached the subject of the Bain banks. The case of John Bain, Inc., is before him.

His Thrust at Deneen.

"Swanson's political godfather, Senator Deneen, was in my court," Judge Feinberg said. "And there he represented the Bains. I found from the books of Bain that Senator Deneen had dealings with him.

"O, I could have kept Senator Deneen off the stand. I could have curried favor with him. I might have bargained with his friendship, but at the risk of political destruction, I put Swanson's political godfather right on the stand to tell of the deals he had with Bain. Out of six deals that we had a record of or that I knew about Senator Deneen made tremendous profits."

Returning later to his discussion of Swanson, the judge said:

"Now, if it takes him as long to try Bain as it did to investigate and indict, with all the continuances that will follow, I am reasonably safe in predicting that John Bain will not be prosecuted or convicted in the next term of Swanson if he should be re-elected."

Judge Feinberg also criticized State's Attorney Swanson for failing to appear personally in court in important cases.

Youth Goes to Apologize After Row and Is Shot

His acceptance of an invitation "to apologize" may cost the life of Louis Smanda, 19 years old, of 4321 South Paulina street. He was shot in the abdomen last night by Stanley Motuza, 20, in front of the latter's home at 4437 South Wood street. Police said that Smanda and Motuza fought several days ago and that Motuza sent Smanda a letter requesting the latter to come over and apologize. Smanda appeared as demanded, but with him were three other youths. Motuza emerged from his home, police said, and, seeing the group, fired on Smanda. Motuza and the others are held.

Elopers Back in Homes; Will Return to School

Alice Carol Martin, 15 years old, was under the parental roof at 2051 Home avenue yesterday, and Armin Hess Jr., 19 years old, 7434 Barton avenue, with whom she eloped last Sunday, was back in the bosom of the Hess family. The parents, Charles Martin and Mrs. Martin, and the Hesses, returned early yesterday from Ispheming, Mich., where the runaway couple had been held by police while their parents drove up to bring them home. Both will return to school, their parents said. Hess Sr. said his son and the Martin girl were married and that "everything is satisfactory."

Bandits Hold Up Cafe; Steal $3,500 from Safe

Three bandits, armed with automatic pistols, invaded the Terminal restaurant, 746 South Dearborn street, across the street from the Polk street station, early this morning and escaped with $3,500. They forced the owner, Herman Liebling, 49 East 74th street, and seven patrons and employés into the kitchen and made them lie on the floor. Then they ordered Liebling to open the safe in the front of the restaurant. After taking the money the armed trio escaped in an automobile.

Police took the national guardsman to the Mother Cabrini hospital where he was treated for burns and abrasions about the face and hands. SMITH TO CLASH WITH ROOSEVELT IN BAY STATE

Friends Say He Will File in April Primary.

Boston, Mass., Feb. 25.—[Special.]—Within a few days, Chairman Frank J. Donahue of the Democratic state committee will have written authority from Alfred E. Smith to use his name on the Democratic presidential primary ballot, it was learned today. He also will be granted authority to designate the 42 delegates and their alternates who will be given permission to run pledged to Smith in the primary on April 26.

Smith's decision to permit the use of his name has been reached as the result of direct requests made to him by Gov. Ely and Daniel H. Coakley. Some apprehension has been expressed lest the campaign being waged here for delegates to Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt of New York gain too much impetus unless the Democratic voters are convinced beyond question that the 1928 standard bearer is an actual contender for the nomination.

Republican delegates from Massachusetts will go to the national convention in June at Chicago pledged to vote for the renomination of President Hoover. The selection of the 34 delegates and their alternates will be made by Louis K. Liggett, member of the national committee.

Confusion in New Hampshire.

Concord, N. H., Feb. 25.—Democratic leaders of New Hampshire, faced with the task of selecting the first slate of delegates to the national convention, today were considerably upset on ballot arrangements for the presidential primary, March 8.

Samples of the first ballots showed that names of candidates for delegates to the convention had not been arranged according to presidential preferance slates as filed by supporters of Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt and Alfred E. Smith.

Democratic leaders were considering appealing to the attorney general for a ruling on the matter. They claimed the present arrangement would lead to confusion.

Urges Chance for Murray.

Atlanta, Ga., Feb. 25.—(AP)—The Georgia Democratic rules committee refused today to comply with a suggestion by telegraph from Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt of New York that Gov. W. H. Murray of Oklahoma be permitted to enter the Georgia presidential primary against him.

Murray, now in Indiana on a speaking tour, failed to qualify for the primary because his entry arrived a day late.

The committee announced that only the names of Roosevelt and of Judge G. H. Howard of Atlanta would appear on the ballots for the primary, to be held March 23.

Howard has said he was running to give Georgians an opportunity to vote for John N. Garner.

FIVE ARE BURIED BY AVALANCHE IN NARROW CANYON

Mount Vernon, Wash., Feb. 25.—(AP)—Roaring down the narrow sides of the cañon where the city of Seattle's railway to its Skagit river power plant is located, an avalanche of snow buried five men today.

One man, Samuel Opray, 53, was dug from under 16 feet of snow four hours after the accident. He had a fractured skull and was taken to a hospital. Little hope was held for finding the others alive.

The laborers were members of a party of 23 clearing an earlier slide off the tracks.

The missing men are:

Melvin Sherwood, 38, father of a week old baby. His wife is ignorant of the catastrophe.

Harold Brown, 27, married, and the son of Charles Brown, city light electrican. His father was reported in the rescue crew.

Carl Nelson, 27, unmarried.

Gus Ryne, 62, unmarried.

The slide choked the cañon, covering the tracks for 500 feet between Newhalem and Devil's Elbow on the way to the Diablo dam.

Survivors ran to Newhalem for aid.

An order to police captains to admit to bail women arrested to be brought before the Morals court instead of holding them for medical examination was issued yesterday by Commissioner of Police Allman. CONGRESS' POWER ON "YELLOW DOG" BILLS DOUBTED

Supreme Court Ruling in Three Cases Cited.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 25.—[Special.]—The power of congress to outlaw the "yellow dog" contract is doubtful, Senator Felix Hebert [Rep., R. I.] told the senate today, as the debate on the Norris anti-injunction bill entered its third day.

Senator Hebert, as author of a substitute measure, narrower in its scope than the bill introduced by Senator George W. Norris [Radical, Neb.], gave warning that the Norris measure's most drastic attempt to limit the power of the federal courts was almost sure to be held unconstitutional. He was not even sure of the legality of the "yellow dog" clause in his own measure.

The Norris bill, Senator Hebert pointed out, provides that any contract or promise denying the right of membership in a labor organization or employers' association shall be nonenforceable in a United States court and shall not be the basis for any legal relief in such a court. His own bill limits the provision by declaring that such a contract shall not be made the basis of any equitable relief by a federal court.

Supreme Court Denies Power.

"In my opinion, this form of agreement deprives, by coercion, employés of the right of free association with their fellows and takes away from them the opportunity to deal on a basis of equality with those by whom they are employed," said Senator Hebert. "But however distasteful they may be to us and however much we may sympathize with those who believe that the interests of employés will never be protected except through legislative enactment to make them void, the fact remains that the Supreme court of the United States in three cases has held that there is no legislative power, state or federal, to inhibit or outlaw employment contracts providing against union membership." He cited:

Coppage vs. Kansas, 1915, 236 U. S. 1; Adair vs. United States, 1906, 208 U. S. 161; Hitchman Coal and Coke company vs. Mitchell, 1917, 245 U. S. 229.

"The Supreme court of the United States has held that the constitutional right to make contracts is both a right of liberty and a right of property. The contract when made is a property right. To provide by legislation that the courts shall not protect this right is unquestionably a deprivation of property without due process of law."

Bill's Supporters Attack.

Senator Robinson reminded the senate that the Supreme court had upheld the validity of the "yellow dog" contract in the absence of any declaration of policy by congress such as contained in both the Norris and Herbert bills.

Senator Borah maintained that the particular point at issue—whether congress had power to limit the jurisdiction of federal courts sitting in equity with reference to the right of contract—had never been passed upon by the Supreme court.

"Nevertheless," Senator Herbert maintained, "I am dubious about the constitutionality of my own substitute bill, and still more dubious about that proposed by Senator Norris."

Albert Arnold, 25 years old, 3230 South Hoyne avenue, was shot and killed last night in the kitchen of his home by his brother-in-law, Frank Pavelkis, 25 years old, 3936 Milwaukee avenue. According to Arnold's wife, Alvina, her brother had been angry with her husband because the latter had beat her. She said that they had quarreled on Sunday and that Pavelkis went to the house last night with a pistol and reopened the fight. With her in the house was her 6 months old son, Arnold Jr. Pavelkis fled after the shooting.

Freshman Wins

The winners in the undergraduate election for student king and queen of the Northwestern university annual charity ball, to be held tonight in the Aragon ballroom, were announced yesterday. They are Miss Josephine Hanchett, a freshman and a pledge of Delta Gamma sorority, and Robert McCarnes, a senior and captain of the basketball team. McCarnes is a member of Sigma Nu fraternity.

Much interest in the election was evinced on the campus. The fact that Miss Hanchett was singularly honored was brought out when it became known that it was the first time in the history of the school that a freshman was chosen queen of the ball. The balloting was held on Wednesday. Both Miss Hanchett and McCarnes will be crowned at the ball, the proceeds of which will go to the Northwestern university settlement house.

LOSES SUIT; TRIES SUICIDE; MARKS COURT IN BLOOD

New York, Feb. 25.—[Special.]—William Fisher today made out of his own disappointment a curious melodrama in the hum-drum precincts of a New Jersey court.

Fisher, 26, lost a leg two years ago in an automobile accident. He sued Mario and Joseph Raffetto of Ridgewood for $100,000. The suit dragged, but last Friday a jury before Judge William B. Arley decided there was no cause for action.

Today when Frederick Naef, attendant, opened the courtroom, he found Fisher unconscious on the platform near the judge's bench, his wrists slashed with a razor blade.

On the judge's chair was a splash of blood, and on each of the twelve chairs in which the jurymen sat when their verdict was returned there was a splash of blood.

Naef summoned an ambulance. At a hospital Fisher's condition was reported to be critical.

ASSAILS HOOVER DRY STAND, STIRS CONFAB RUMPUS

Criticism Gets Roars at League Parley.

St. Petersburg, Fla., Feb. 25.—(AP)—Claims that President Hoover never has stated definitely that he favors retention of the eighteenth amendment were made in the southern convention of the Anti-Saloon League of America here today and bedlam reigned for a moment.

"Down! Down! Down!" shouted the audience in answer to the statement made by M. H. McCormick, retired business man of Coshocton, O.

He also claimed "Temperance people are not satisfied with the status of affairs" and accused league officials with dodging the answering of a question as to whether they would demand presidential candidates take a definite stand on the prohibition question.

Hoover Defenders on Deck.

McCormick, a winter resident here, rose from his seat as J. N. Wilkinson of Toronto, Ont., a retired minister, was cheered for his statement that President Hoover will be reëlected because he is a prohibitionist. Others defended the President as strongly favorable to the eighteenth amendment.

"Any political party that refuses to commit itself and its nominees openly by statement and by platform in favor of the eighteenth amendment and prohibition," McCormick said, "is simply catering to both the wet and dry elements."

"This convention," he said, "is advertised as a prohibition convention, but when its leaders were asked in the open forum if the Anti-Saloon league would require or ask candidates in this campaign to commit themselves in favor of retaining the eighteenth amendment, these leaders, and the general superintendent F. Scott McBride, would not answer but stated the question would be referred to the legislative committee.

"Can you call this a prohibition convention and allow the convetion to ask us for money to carry onprohibition work and take this attude regarding parties and candidates?"

Sam Fickel of Westerville, O., leading the forum, replied the Anti-Saloon league always determined the prohibition attitude of candidates and would do so in the coming electio.

The ads above show some of the companies which didn't use Liberty in 1931 BUT WHICH ARE SPENDING MONEY IN LIBERTY IN 1932.

The ads below show some of the companies which did use Liberty in 1931 and which have returned with INCREASED EXPENDITURES in Liberty in 1932.

The volume of advertisers who have been switching to Liberty this past Fall and Winter may be judged from the chart.

Note the trends shown:

First, April through August, 1931. Liberty was acquired by Macfadden Publications Incorporated in April 1931. Contracts through August issues had already been placed.

Second, September through December, 1931. The official Statement of Policy by the new management had been presented:

a. Liberty's editorial policy of dramatic, concise, human stories and features, paced to the Post-War public, successful in having built nearly two and one-half million circulation, the greatest voluntary, issue-by-issue demand ever received by any magazine, was to be continued. And was to be improved upon in accordance with many suggestions made.

b. Liberty's paper stock and printing standards were to embark upon a plan of consecutive improvements.

c. Liberty's business policies were to be standard, uniform and consistent with the best interests of its advertisers.

Third, January through March 1932. The new management had made public the results of its comprehensive program of investigation to uncover Liberty's profit possibilities for advertisers. One must remember that Liberty had been acquired solely on the knowledge that more men and women were asking for Liberty every week than any other magazine published. It was felt that such public support must have a significance for advertisers. During the summer of 1931, therefore, Dr. George Gallup, Professor of Journalism and Advertising at Northwestern University, was given a free hand to find out Liberty's possibilities as an advertising medium. The Association of National Advertisers was asked officially to observe Dr. Gallup's work.

Dr. Gallup and his staff used the method for which he is famous. Instead of soliciting reader votes, guesses or opinions, the investigators visited nearly 15,000 men and women, found the readers of the leading mass weeklies, leafed through their magazines with them, page by page, checked every single editorial and advertising item that had been seen or read.

They visited six cities, checked six consecutive issues of the four mass weeklies.

And six times the findings agreed.

Not only were Liberty's editorial pages found better read (a situation preordained by Liberty's greater week-by-week public demand) but Liberty's advertising pages were found to have stopped:

48% more persons than in Weekly A
23% more persons than in Weekly B
112% more persons than in Weekly C

In times like these when (a) sales are slow, (b) advertising appropriations are being watched more closely, (c) people are diverted from magazine reading by motor cars, movies and radios, is it any wonder that advertisers should be interested in a magazine thus proved to be in tune with the times, thus established as enjoying the greatest degree of reader attention?

Is it any wonder that advertisers should be attracted not only by Liberty's lowest-page-rate-among-major-magazines, but by the possibility of doubling the number of persons who would actually SEE their advertisements, without spending an advertising dollar more?

On the theory that these new facts on how many persons actually see an advertisement would prove more persuasive than habit or tradition in 1932, Liberty deliberately set its 1932 advertising quota 15 per cent above 1931 billing. Now January, February and March have already closed with billings 25 per cent, 10 per cent and 18 per cent respectively above their QUOTAS. First quarter of 1932 shows billing 46% over last quarter of 1931.

The big parade has started. And it is a parade following the tune not of big bass drums but of the measured ring of dollar profits. Advertisers interested in facts and figures as a basis for Post-Depression activities are invited to write for more information. Address Liberty, 420 Lexington Avenue, New York.

STANISLAUSBONA MADE BISHOP IN CATHEDRAL RITES

650 Church Dignitaries Attend Consecration.

BY THE REV. JOHN EVANS.

With resplendent ceremonies which centered upon him 1,900 years of ecclesiastical tradition and experience, Stanislaus Vincent Bona, native Chicagoan, yesterday became a bishop of the Roman Catholic church. The ceremonies were conducted in Holy Name cathedral yesterday morning with Cardinal Mundelein presiding as consecrator. The new bishop, who for many years was pastor of St. Casimir's church, 22d and Whipple streets, will become head of the diocese of Grand Island, Neb.

Bishop Bona's brother, the Rt. Rev. Thomas P. Bona, a consulter of the archdiocese of Chicago, was the assistant priest at the service. The father of the two churchmen, John Bona, who came to America from Poland many years ago, also attended the consecration. Six hundred and fifty ecclesiastics, representing practically every order of the Catholic church in America, bishops, abbots, monsignori, were present, together with a throng which overflowed the cathedral.

Two Bishops Assist Cardinal.

After the long procession had filed into the edifice Cardinal Mundelein took his position before the altar where, in accordance with tradition, the questions were asked and the vows administered to the bishop designate. Historic rites require that three bishops consecrate a bishop. Assisting Cardinal Mundelein as co-consecrators were the Most Rev. Paul Rhode, bishop of Green Bay, Wis., and the Most Rev. Francis M. Kelley, bishop of Winona, Minn.

Following the ceremonies, a congratulatory dinner at the Palmer house was attended by the 650 dignitaries who assisted in the service.

Bishop Bona will celebrate his first pontifical mass in St. Casimir's church on Sunday morning. Last night he celebrated his first pontifical vespers there. The church was filled and as he entered many persons knelt in the street to receive his blessing. Today his first low mass as bishop will be for the children of the parish. Tomorrow he will be present at services in the convent of the Sisters of the Resurrection in Norwood Park.

A Native of Chicago.

Bishop Bona was born and baptized in St. Casimir's parish 44 years ago. He was graduated from St. Stanislaus college in 1905 and received his theological and philosophical education in Rome, where doctor's degrees in both of these branches were conferred on him. He was ordained in Rome on Nov. 1, 1912.

After his return to Chicago in 1915 Bishop Bona served as assistant in St. Barbara's church. Later he became resident chaplain at the House of Correction. After two years he was made professor at Quigley Preparatory seminary and in 1922 he became pastor of St. Casimir's church.

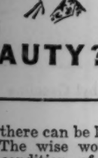
ALLMAN REPORTS FEWER HOLDUPS DURING JANUARY

A decrease in robberies and burglaries during January as compared to December was announced yesterday by Police Commissioner James Allman. The February reports, he said, would show a still further drop under January. The January decline averaged three robberies less per day than in December and two burglaries less per day.

Salvatore Vecchione, 17 years old, 1418 Polk street, and Martin Spiros, 1388 Milwaukee avenue, were held yesterday by Marquette police as two of three alleged bandits, who, it is charged, have committed numerous holdups on the west side since last August. A pair of green goggles which Vecchione wore led to his arrest.

Daniel Baker, 22 years old, of 6239 Blackstone avenue, confessed yesterday to Hyde Park police that he had been obtaining more than $100 a week for the last six months by breaking telephone coin boxes. Baker was seized on Wednesday night as he and three others tried to break into the First Unitarian church, 1176 East 57th street.

What is the PRICE OF BEAUTY?



Without health there can be little natural beauty. The wise woman knows that the condition of her body shows itself on her face, her complexion, and in her eyes.

She takes care to avoid constipation. This treacherous ailment frequently causes headaches, sallow skin, pimples, premature aging.

Try the pleasant "cereal way" to protect yourself from constipation. Science has proved that Kellogg's ALL-BRAN provides "bulk" to exercise the intestines, and Vitamin B to tone the intestinal tract. ALL-BRAN also furnishes iron, which helps build up the blood.

The "bulk" in this delicious cereal is much like that of lettuce. How much safer than abusing your system with pills and drugs — so often habit-forming!

Two tablespoonfuls daily will correct most types of constipation. ALL-BRAN is not habit-forming. If your intestinal trouble is not relieved this way, see your doctor.

BOY, 13, CHAMPION VEGETABLE GROWER IN 1931 COMPETITION

His ingenuity in utilizing one-eighth of an acre to grow both early and late vegetables won the 1931 4-H club vegetable championship of Cook county for Otto Kuhl, 13 years old, son of William Kuhl, a farmer living near Des Plaines. Otto was awarded a bank book with a $30 balance in it by County Superintendent of Schools Edward J. Tobin in the latter's office in the county building yesterday.

It was the twentieth annual vegetable growing contest sponsored by the county schools throughout the period Mr. Tobin has held office. The 4-H club department of the farm bureau coöperates. Among the rural boys and girls, the vegetable growing championship is coveted, and competition in the seven divisions of the county is keen.

On the one-eighth acre allowed him by the contest rules, Otto grew string beans, tomatoes, cantaloupe and spinach. He sold the crops from a roadside stand on his father's farm for $107.62. His expenditures were $12.65, giving him a profit of $94.97.

Rockefeller, 93, Honors Iowa Woman, Also 93

Reputed Owner of Lake Rum Running Boat Seized

Abe Moss, reputed owner of the Sea Hawk, a rum smuggling lake boat seized three years ago by prohibition agents as it docked at the Navy pier with a $30,000 liquor cargo, was arrested in Providence, R. I., yesterday, according to Walter E. Bennett, chief of special prohibition agents in the Chicago area. Moss was indicted as owner of the boat and fled the city.

BRUENING TURNS ON FOES; HITLER BECOMES CITIZEN

Election Fight Rages in Germany.

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.

BERLIN, Feb. 25.—Adolf Hitler, leader of the National Socialists [Fascists], was appointed an official of the state of Brunswick today and thus became a German citizen and eligible for the presidency of the German republic. His candidacy was announced last Monday.

Brunswick, which is controlled by Nazis and Nationalists, made Hitler an attaché in Brunswick's Berlin legation with the mission "to watch the economic interests of the state of Brunswick in relations with the federal government."

Meanwhile the presidential battle raged in the Reichstag. Chancellor Bruening, standing up for President Von Hindenburg, vigorously defended the government's foreign policy and denounced the Nazis' call for more nationalism.

Steers Clear of Threats.

"I will not adopt a foreign policy of fist-banging and threats for the sake of prestige to impress the voters at home," he declared. "It would harm our foreign relations for years to come."

Bruening, turning to the economic crisis, expressed his opinion that conditions in Germany due to the world depression are made worse by the agitation of radicals.

When Nazi deputies shouted that "the system begun by the revolution of 1918 is to blame," Bruening countered sharply and referred to Joseph Goebbels, Nazi chieftain, as he "who knew the war only from hearsay."

"I tried to induce all parties interested in the welfare of the Fatherland to back Von Hindenburg's candidacy," Bruening continued. "I offered my resignation to clear the path for the coöperation of parties. I will vacate my post, but only for the sake of advancement of the nation, not to make way for chaos."

Regrets Late Debts Meet.

Speaking of foreign affairs Bruening expressed regret that the reparations conference will not meet until the end of June and pointed out that the German government is not responsible for the late date. He closed by paying a glowing tribute to Von Hindenburg while the communists continued heckling.

The Reds climaxed an anti-republican speech in reply by singing their "Internationale," and Goebbels answered Bruening with a masterpiece of rhetoric bound to impress millions in Germany.

Von Hindenburg issued a proclamation today urging his followers to carry on "a dignified campaign. I consider myself the trustee for the whole German people," he said, "responsible only to my own conscience and the Fatherland."

Berlin Bourse Reopens.

[Copyright: 1932: By the New York Times.]

BERLIN, Feb. 25.—After having been closed for almost five months, the Berlin bourse reopened today for two hours of trading which was accompanied by all the outward excitement of a big day.

Business was not bad at first, but technical handicaps, due chiefly to the governmental ban on official quotations, soon slowed down the trading pace, and when the two hours were over it had stagnated generally.

WIDOW CONFESSES CLAIMING BABY TO WIN SHARE IN ESTATE

Cleveland, O., Feb. 25.—(AP)—The baby known as "Terry Tower," hub of a tangled story of a $30,000 inheritance, was just another blue eyed waif tonight.

Mrs. Christine Smith, widow of a Buffalo physician, police said, has admitted her plot of claiming the foundling as her son to pry out a share of the estate of her father-in-law, the late T. Guilford Smith of Buffalo. Smith had left his estate in trust to his widow, to be divided equally between his two sons or pass on to their children, if they had any.

The child is in Buffalo where authorities are holding it until a technical charge of kidnaping here against Mrs. Smith is settled.

JAMES CERMAK ARRESTED AND THEN SET FREE

James Cermak, 43 years old, a brother of Mayor Cermak, was arrested by the county highway police at Willow Springs yesterday. It was alleged that he was driving an automobile without license plates at 55 miles an hour in Joliet road.

Taken to the police station, Cermak declared he was being persecuted on account of politics and added that the county highway police were "all for Igoe."

State Representative Henry Sonnenschein, the mayor's secretary, was notified by the police that $100 bond would have to be furnished to get the prisoner out. He informed them he would be there soon with the money. Before he arrived, however, Lieut. Edward Weber of the highway police ordered that Cermak be sent to his home. Cermak is a guard at the house of correction farm. No charges were placed against him.

FINED AS CHURCH PANHANDLER.

Andrew Anderson, 44 years old, 506 North Clark street, was fined $10 and costs by Judge Alfar M. Eberhardt in the Des Plaines street court yesterday on a charge of panhandling among crowds coming from services at the Holy Name cathedral.

SUPPORT STORY OF VICTIM OF WILSON CRASH

Portland, Ore., Feb. 25.—[Special.]—Clarence True Wilson, head of the Methodist board of temperance, prohibition, and public morals, apparently has made three mistakes. His first was to collide with an automobile here driven by L. F. Welch, a salesman. His second was to leave Portland for Sacramento two days later without reporting the accident to the police as required by Oregon law. His third was to intimate in Sacramento in an interview that Mr. Welch might not have had the accident had he been as ardent a prohibitionist as Dr. Wilson.

Today two witnesses to the crash came forward to corroborate the story of Mr. Welch in every detail.

George M. Hayes, a mechanic working at the scene of the crash, and William A. Duncan, both declared that Mr. Welch was not under the influence of liquor.

"After hitting the other auto, Wilson's machine ran over the curbing, narrowly missed the garage building and continued on the sidewalk for about half a block," Hayes said. "The car was almost at Grand avenue before it was stopped."

Mr. Welch added that he had never taken a drink in his life.

New and Smart Handkerchiefs Will Stir Hearts of Collectors

Brown, Tan, and Yellow Ones Sigh for Tweeds; Animal Prints Popular.

BY RHEA SEEGER.

YOU may think you know all about collectors . . . otherwise charming people who are perfectly sane until their particular weakness is mentioned. You, no doubt, know of hordes of small boys who forget time and even food while they bargain madly for two stamps from Afghanistan for one from Kamchatka . . . but until you become a handkerchief collector you have lived a comparatively dull as ditch water existence.

Having become one of the frenzied females [males have been known to get this way, too] who hunt the handkerchief with a fine and lawless abandon . . . nothing else on earth matters . . . the various Chinese debacles are so much junk . . . the Japanese invasions a series of fancy fireworks that are all wet . . . but let the news trickle through that new handkerchiefs have arrived, and the hunt is on . . . life becomes a hectic affair until you find them and buy them.

Other collectors get a great kick out of friendly get-togethers when they discuss amicably the trials of the chase for the illusive first edition or the lucky break that brought them within buying distance of a piece of Steigel glass . . . but this is not possible with true handkerchief collectors.

But Now You Hunt Alone.

You know that you "belong," but when you hunt handkerchiefs you hunt alone . . . your moment of deathless glory comes when you nonchalantly flourish your latest acquisition directly under the nose of a fellow hunter, and how you listen for that sniff of jealous and envious disdain.

But good news always leaks out . . . so listen to some of the authoritative facts from the front. The newest handkerchiefs are small, but big ones are getting larger and larger. Size is of the least importance . . . color and design are everything. No one, inside or outside of Paris, has ever been able to think of anything bigger and better than a colored 'kerchief for color contrast for frock, suit, or ensemble.

If the blues have got you swimming in their indigo depths, then heave to and pack up a fresh water collection fully guaranteed to withstand the saltfest of tears. Blue roses, blue plaids, blue checks, stripes, bars, and dots are usually seen doing their stuff against a nice, clean white background.

Browns and Tans Go with Tweeds.

Brown, tan, and yellow handkerchiefs seemingly sigh for smart tweeds, printed silks in brown or white, or brown woolen dresses that are tailored and blessed with strategically placed pockets. And the knowing color artist uses brown, tan, or orange colored hankies with telling shrewdness with all shades of green costumes.

Since so few of us know how to proceed with caution on these buying binges it is no wonder that canny salespersons successfully flag us with all shades of red handkerchiefs . . . and what a heart-warming array they do make. Red enthusiasts have been known to sink all their shoe money on new red patterns and many a collector has had to stumble with eyes tightly closed past these red displays to keep intact what remains of a week's lunch money.

With true Irish blarney the new green squares win their way wherever they are waved . . . you can have green leaves, green flowers, green dots and dashes, stripes, and modernistic splashes, and green pastures full of green gamboling lambs, and these green handkerchiefs will cause traditional green envy among your friends.

Animal Prints Very Smart.

But the truly tricky hankies are those with contrasting applique . . . these are the ones you really squander money on, because they are a bit more expensive than the printed kinds. Imagine the strong soul who can lead a fashionable life without such fascinating bits of color and ingenious stitchery. Sentimental squares of mauve linen, for instance, have two lavender swans languidly passing around the corner . . . another with dashing polo players careening about the borders . . . others with three funny plump elephants in a row . . . and the doggiest handkerchiefs of all are the ones with real honest to goodness tail-wagging canines either printed or embroidered in the corner . . . what a dog's life these are going to live!

If you aren't on the handkerchief merry-go-round after reading all this . . . if you still refuse to thrill to the chase for such scraps of fine linen and lawn, then go around the shops with empty pockets to fill . . . after you see these gorgeous good looking collections you'll weaken before you have been out an hour.

Paris Displays Evening Gown of White Lame

BY BETTINA BEDWELL.

PARIS.—[Special.]—The sumptuous side of clothes has been just a little bit dimmed this winter, but with spring coming on glorious raiment reappears for formal occasions. The vogue for sober elegance made of materials that are rich without especially advertising the fact is getting a jolt, for certain smart Parisiennes are appearing in evening clokes of lamé, the most gorgeous of materials, which is brocaded in gold and silver.

Flowered lamés are not among those present in the fashionable evening wraps seen in Paris. The new lamés are woven in wavy tweedlike patterns, or in almost invisible damask motifs. They are given a chiffon base so they are ephemeral in appearance. These materials come in all the new colors, the flame reds, the sulphur greens and blue, and in the whole pastel or watercolor gamut. However, the smartest of all are pure white, and look like Christmas snow.

The Cheruit evening wrap, shown in our sketch, is made of white lamé, and was designed for Princess Charles Murat. This coat is in the new length for long wraps, that is, not quite ankle length, and it is cut so that it molds the body, and fastens by a wrap around closing attached on the left hip. The collar is made of silver fox.

Anita Grew Weds by Turkish Rites; Mayor Is Pleased

ISTANBUL, Turkey, Feb. 25.—(AP)—When Anita Grew, daughter of the American ambassador to Turkey, and her sweetheart, Robert English, said "yes" today they found themselves not only married under Turkish law but the principals in a friendly international incident.

Miss Grew, who broke into the public prints with two swims in the Bosporus, and Mr. English, secretary of the American legation at Bangkok, Siam, appeared at Istanbul city hall for the ceremony.

The almost brand new Turkish code was used, with the mayor of Pera officiating. He asked both in Turkish if they would accept marriage. He received a Turkish "yes" and forthwith announced them wedded.

Gov. Mouhieddine Bey immediately wrote to Ambassador Joseph C. Grew, thanking him for a gesture of friendship which "goes far beyond mere courtesy and deep into our hearts." Two Istanbul made Turkish rugs accompanied the letter.

The American marriage of the young couple, who both hail from Boston, Mass., will be performed Saturday by Dr. Caleb Gates, president of Robert college.

Gov. Mouhieddine Bey's interest in the Turkish ceremony today was particularly stressed because the new Turkish ceremony is one of President Kemal's new departures in his modernization program.

An Allowance Is Benefit to Every Child

By GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS

Does your child have an allowance?

"No," you say.

Why not?

Or perhaps you say "Yes." Then why?

Perhaps you've not thought why, but you have a sort of sensible instinct about such things—and as the well known slogan said you "obey that impulse," and give your child a regular allowance. In a general way, you think it's a good idea.

Let me tell you why I believe even little children should have an allowance.

These are the things I know it does from actual experience—granted, of course, that you are intelligent in giving the money:

It teaches children control. It develops judgment. It teaches them present self-denial for future advantage—a grand bit of knowledge and character to acquire early in the game of life. It gives them an idea of budgeting. It teaches them that you can't eat your cake and have it. It gives them frequent chances to exercise the power of choice—to weigh pros and cons.

It gives them the opportunity to make mistakes in peace. It gives them repeated chances to profit by their mistakes. It fosters a feeling of independence. It shows them that it is intelligent to get value for what you spend. It shows them the power of money.

But it also shows them there are some things money cannot buy—that there are some things which cannot be valued in terms of money—which bear no relation to money. These are some of the gains to a child from having an allowance.

Guten Morgen!

A visit to a foreign made, foreign tongued movie inspires a sense of adventure. How much of the action and dialogue will one be able to understand without peeks at the program? When I view an alien production I always feel largely composed of antennæ—quivering, reaching out, trying to grasp! What a gloating sensation, at the end of a screening, to realize that one honestly knows what the sdo has all been about! What a SINKING sensation to be compelled to admit that one's not-so-bright after all and that the adventure had merely resolved itself into the beating of a dumkopf against ein Felsenwand!

With that familiar, exhilarating "kick" of approaching the—maybe delightful and maybe terrible unknown—I eased into the Cinema theater yesterday afternoon. Would I emerge conqueror or conquered?

The former, liebe Freunden! Ich habe von "Ihre Hoheit Befielt" die Bedeutung sehr gut verstehen. [Sagt ich das recht, Leute?]

Here is a really charming Filmoperrette, featuring two laughing young people, of whom you are fond from the start, when you discover them falling in love at a servants' ball. You are later to learn that the "maid" is the Princess Mary Christine and that the "delicatessen owner" is Lieut. v. Conradi of the lady's own guard. Each believes the other's story and plans are made to meet on the morrow.

From then on you are led through the amusing intricacies of their romance.

The action is punctuated with musik das ist sehr schön, and there is plenty to smile over. Reinhold Schuenzel as minister of the court is a comical chap.

Kaethe von Nagy is pretty and pepful, with much about her that reminds you of Bebe Daniels. Willy Fritsch is handsome and clever, wears his gorgeous uniforms with an air and acts as if he has good sense. Minor rôles are nicely played.

The direction was excellent and there are some stunning photographic shots, both interior and exterior. The action moves right along and holds your unflagging interest. I enjoyed the picture thoroughly.

The life of der Kritiker may be hart but never, never is it mausgrau or uninteressant. Nein! And when they begin to transpose those Chinese plays that run for three days into movies—won't THAT be fun!

See you tomorrow!

Arrange 2 Jolly Sightseeing Tours to Aid Hospital Charity

Mrs. Frank Hibbard Will Take Guests to Fair Grounds and Chinatown on Trip.

BY JUDITH CASS.

THE Lenten season, which really isn't so dull this year in spite of everything, will be enlivened next week by two interesting and jolly parties which will benefit charity as well as give the participants a good time. Mrs. Frank Hibbard, who runs Conveniences, has planned two sightseeing tours, one for next Wednesday and the other for Thursday, and although she just started planning the tours, already about half as many as can be taken each day—20 is the limit, I believe, for each tour—have signed up.

The tours are to be made in buses which will leave Conveniences, 106 East Oak street, at 10:15 o'clock each morning. The first stop will be at the Administration building of the Century of Progress and then Fort Dearborn will be visited, after which the party will go to Chinatown for luncheon and sightseeing. The cost for everything will be $4.50 a person and the proceeds will go to the charities which benefit from Conveniences, including the Children's Memorial hospital and St. Luke's hospital. Some of those who have signified their intention of taking one of the tours next week are Mrs. Hibbard's mother and sister, Mrs. Henry S. Robbins and Mrs. James M. Hopkins, Mrs. William B. Greenlee, Mrs. George A. Ranney, and Miss Dorothy Ranney, Mrs. Robert Hall McCormick and her daughters, the Misses Eleanor and Patty McCormick, Mrs. Conway Olmsted, Mrs. W. Edwin Stanley, Mrs. John C. Pitcher, Mrs. David S. Cook, Mrs. Edward H. Bennett, Mrs. William Scudder, Mrs. John A. Stevenson, Mrs. James Ward Thorne, Mrs. Huntly H. Gilbert, and Miss Mary Mitchell. For reservations call Conveniences, Superior 4348, between 9:30 and 4:30 and at other times Superior 1301, Mrs. Hibbard's residence at 1301 Astor street.

Junior League Seeks Old Clothes.

"Old clothes!" will be the cry of the provisional members of the Junior league wherever they are from now until March 17 for they have started work for their annual spring second hand clothes sale and of course they are anxious to make as good a showing as possible for this is the first big job the provisionals have tackled. Miss Adelaide Atkin is general chairman, Miss Betty Blair is in charge of city collections, Miss Myra Little of north shore collecting, Miss Elizabeth Ricker is business chairman, Mrs. Maud Sippy Hill will direct the pricing and Miss Patty McCormick is chairman of the wrapping committee.

The Misses Janet Ayer and Dorothy Dewes are in charge of publicity for the sale, which will be held in some vacant shop on Michigan avenue just south of the bridge. Formerly only women's clothes were sold but this spring there are to be men's and children's on sale, too. The entire proceeds go directly to the charities to which the league contributes and Miss Little is hoping that the ballroom of her parents' [Mr. and Mrs. Charles G. Little] house in Evanston will be packed with old clothes by the time she is ready to bring them in to the Drake where the provisionals have a room in which to store the garments and mark them.

Chicago Girls at Yale Prom.

Miss Betty Brown, Miss Chloe Watson, Miss Barbara Graf, Miss Theodora Shaw, and Miss Mary Reed are the only Chicago girls I have heard of who are to be at the Yale prom tonight but probably there are others. All of these but Mary Reed made their debuts this winter and she is to come out formally next year. Miss Brown, who is the daughter of the Charles Edward Browns, will return next Wednesday from quite an extended trip which included a West Indies cruise and a visit to her aunt, Mrs. Rensselaer Cox, at Mountain Lake, Fla.

Miss Watson, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Cornelius B. Watson of Winnetka, has been visiting in the east for about a fortnight and her parents do not know yet when she will return. Miss Graf has been paying a round of visits in the east and her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Robert J. Graf, expect her home about Tuesday of next week. Miss Shaw, the daughter of Mrs. Howard Shaw, and Miss Reed, the daughter of Mrs. Kersey Coates Reed, are both at school in the east, the former at Sarah Lawrence college at Bronxville and the latter at a finishing school in New York City.

Notes of Late Winter Travels.

Mrs. Patrick C. Hill will return to Fort Worth on Monday after a week's visit with her father, John Alden Carpenter.

Mrs. Herbert Farrington Perkins of 3 Banks street has left for a visit of six weeks with her daughter-in-law, Mrs. Franklin Perkins, at Ojai, Cal.

Miss Lillian Dudley, daughter of the Raymond C. Dudleys of 179 Lake Shore drive, has been visiting her roommate at Smith, Miss Ruth Mitchell, in Santa Barbara, and will spend some time as the guest of her aunt, Mrs. Fred Rounds, in Pasadena, before returning home shortly before Easter.

Mr. and Mrs. R. Boynton Rogers and their daughter Iris of 190 East Chestnut street are visiting Mrs. Rogers' parents, Mr. and Mrs. S. J. Masters, in their new home at Miami Beach.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph E. Otis, Jr. [Grace Quinlan], are expected to return on Monday from their wedding trip through the Panama canal from New York to California. They will occupy Mr. Otis' residence at 1415 Astor street.

Miss Elinor Farwell telephoned yesterday to ask us to remind you that the second of two lectures for the benefit of the Lower North Community council will be given next Tuesday at 11:30 o'clock in the Diana Court salon, 540 North Michigan avenue. Mary Hastings Bradley will talk on "The Matriarchs of Sumatra and Black Queens," and Alice Bradley's drawings illustrating her mother's lecture will be hung in the salon.

The Arts club has cards out for a Sunday evening musical on March 6 at which Eva Gauthier, soprano, will sing. A buffet supper will be served at 7 o'clock and the music will start at 8:30 o'clock.

The auxiliary of the Sacred Heart at 6250 Sheridan road has arranged for two lectures on current events. The first will be a talk on the soviet plan by James H. Watt on Sunday afternoon. On the following Sunday Clark M. Eichelberger, secretary of the League of Nations association, will discuss "The Far Eastern Crisis and the World's Peace Machinery."

At the next meeting of the Junior Friends of Art on Tuesday afternoon at the Illinois Women's Athletic club Dr. Vernon B. Herbst will give a lecture on India, illustrated with the moving pictures he made with Mrs. Herbst on their trip through the courts of the maharajahs two years ago. Mrs. Herbst will sing before and after the lecture, and the program will close with a tea.

Expect Pope to Call Consistory Soon to Appoint Cardinals

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ROME, Feb. 25.—With the Catholic section's quarrel with the Fascist government considered definitely settled through Mussolini's personal visit to the pope, Vatican circles are discussing probabilities that the pontiff will hold a long delayed consistory some time in March at which ten red hats will be awarded to replete the thinned ranks of the sacred college.

The pope has held no consistory since June, 1930, and the reason generally assigned was the precarious relations which have existed between the church and the state in Italy. There are vacancies to be filled in Italy which it is explained the pontiff did not want to fill pending settlement. During the last two years several cardinals have died, reducing the college to 55 whereas its usual quota is around 70.

Nothing is known about the personalities to be elevated to cardinalcy, but most of them will be Italians.

New loud speakers have been installed in St. Peter's cathedral and Vatican circles expect that the public consistory which follows three days after the secret one will be held in St. Peter's instead of Clementina hall of the Vatican as usual.

Consistories, however, have been held before in St. Peter's, and in fact when Cardinals Mundelein of Chicago and Hayes of New York were created cardinals in 1924 their red hats were awarded to them in St. Peter's.

Doris Tells Quiet Girl She Should Keep Her Charm

BY DORIS BLAKE.

Is it necessary, is it desirable that a quiet, reserved, what is called ladylike girl change her style to attract members of the opposite sex? Should she adopt a gayer line of conversation, be more aggressive in her manner?

I'll wager if you put the question to the first ten men you meet the consensus would be in favor of the quiet one remaining quiet. Those quiet ones have a steady and surprising way of capturing the wedding presents, if you will notice. It is not only that the quiet ones make better audiences for men. They're more comfortable people to be with, because their tongues are in leash, they don't say sharp things, go in for the detestable wise cracking form of wit.

They don't impose their personalities on scenes and people. They are rest cures, as it were. And in nine cases out of ten they can show as great warmth of feeling as any of their more expressive sisters. All men do not appreciate them, of course. But enough of the sex does to insure a steady matrimonial market value on calm, quiet women.

Instead of changing the style, a better recommendation is to improve it. Capitalize on it. Make it appealing in its never failing sympathy. Dress it charmingly as possible. Be ultra feminine in dress. In other words, be an outstanding example of quiet charm rather than a bad imitation of carefree, lively, or riotous girlhood. It's possible, of course, to make oneself over into another type of girl. Possible—but not generally advisable to try.

One, of course, even though possessed of quiet charm, must have gifts, intelligence, ability to join in the sports and amusements suggested by her crowd. She should be able to dance well, so that her dancing reputation earns her partners. She should be able to play a game of bridge well or be as efficient in social amusements as to make her company desirable. If she can do all of the things the louder girl can do and can do them with quiet grace—then she becomes the more deadly specie of the two—to men.

PUTS SUNSHINE IN FOODS; SHUNS $1,000 EACH DAY

Wisconsin Professor Gives School Patent Rights.

BY EVERETT SWINGLE.

There is "something new under the sun" in the foods we can eat, if we consider 10 food products now on the market. For they contain packaged sunshine, according to tests and licenses which indicate and guarantee, respectively, the presence of large quantities of vitamin D put in by direct or indirect quartz lamp irradiation of the ultra violet ray.

At present one can buy dry milk, vegetable soup stock, crackers, biscuits, breakfast cereals, chocolate malted milk, tomato juice for soup, tomato juice for cocktails, certified milk and bread which have been irradiated. All of these licensed products are under constant test to insure that they contain sufficient of the vitamin D to have disease preventive as well as disease curative properties.

No Cure All Claims.

No claims are made for a cure all, but the particular vitamin with which these foods have been enriched is credited with curbing and curing rickets, and since its discovery has been called the antirachitic vitamin. Thus it naturally has been applied particularly to infant and child feeding.

So far the use of irradiation has been licensed only for foods rather than medicines. The explanation of this comes from the Wisconsin Alumni Research foundation, which owns the patent rights on the process developed by a Wisconsin university professor, Dr. Harry Steenbock.

"Steenbock could have walked out of his laboratory and sold the patent for a million dollars," said H. L. Russell, director of the foundation and former dean of the Wisconsin college of agriculture, as he described yesterday the latest developments in food irradiation. "Instead, the professor turned the invention over to the school and even sent back, uncashed, a royalty check which was given him as the first licensee began to use the process.

The Financial Return.

"At the present the returns from patent rights are $1,000 a day, but this money must finance all of the tests and is also being used for further scientific study in this and in kindred lines of laboratory work. We have turned down more than 90 per cent of the applicants who seek licenses, as it has been agreed that the process will be permitted for use only in dignified food merchandising approved by the foundation."

It is considered unethical to test these foods on infants and young children until it is positive that their use will have no other than a beneficial effect. Yet no scientist has devised a physical or chemical test that detects vitamins and the animal tests are the sole initial reliance at present. Children's hospital and clinical tests have been found to agree with the animal experiments. Some day, it is thought possible, an accident or an intense study will reveal the unknown about the vitamins and open a means for simple tests.

Another proof of the tedious work that has preceded the putting of these foods on the market is that fact that nearly every one must be irradiated or given the bolstered vitamin D property in a different manner.

How They Treated Cows.

Cod liver oil is recognized by child feeding experts as the most potent antirachitic carrier of vitamin D available. It can be fed to chickens to increase the disease preventive power of the egg yolk in feeding children. Egg yolks naturally are considered high in this content and rank next to cod liver oil.

But when producers of certified milk sought to feed cows the cod liver oil and thus increase the vitamin D content of milk, the cows balked and refused to produce milk. Yet, Milwaukee and Chicago dealers began early this year to distribute the milk, for another way had been found to feed the cows. The foundation, after tests, approved such milk production and sale.

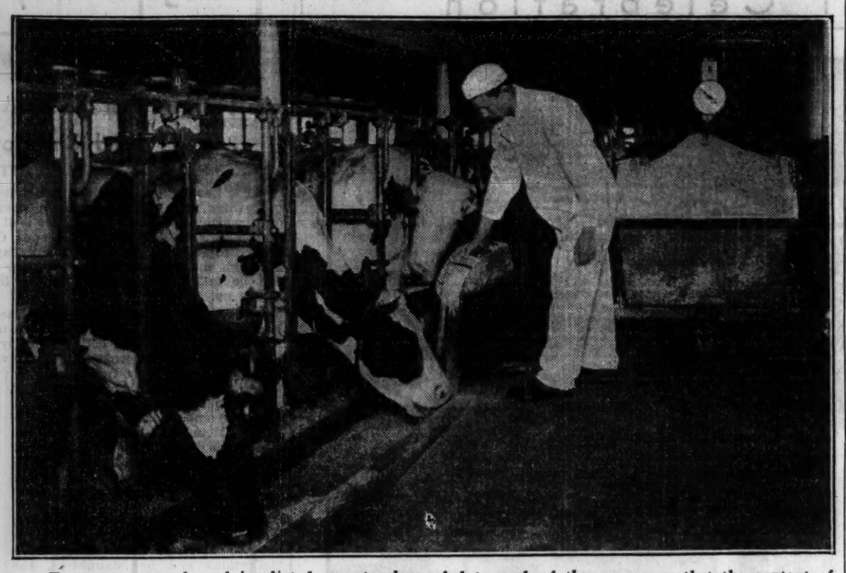
The cows don't need to have their cod liver oil. Instead they are fed irradiated yeast or ergosterol, which affects neither their appetites nor their milk production and yet puts 1,500 antirachitic units in the average 10 quarts a day per cow if the cow is fed a steady ration for 30 days before testing for the D vitamin.

Another Problem Solved.

Bread baking presented another problem, yet science found a way to get the irradiation into the shortening before the dough mixing and the baking of the loaves occurred. Ergosterol, a yeast product, is dissolved in ether or alcohol, irradiated, then the solvent is driven off or evaporated and the solid is mixed with a bland oil that can be put into the shortening.

Dry milk powder has been given the potency in two ways, both by more direct irradiation. The ultra violet rays are leveled at the milk before it is heated and dried at temperatures far above boiling, or the powder is subjected to the rays by being spread out in a thin film.

FEEDING COWS ARTIFICIAL SUNSHINE



Ten ounces per day of irradiated ergosterol are fed to each of these cows so that the content of the anti-rachitic vitamin D is increased 16 to 20 times over that of other milk. This herd, located in Waukesha county, Wisconsin, is supplying Milwaukee and Chicago customers through the regular milk dealers.

COLD WATER CALLED BEST FIRST AID IN REMOVING OF STAINS

The best first aid in the removing of stains is cold water, clothing experts say. The sooner the stain is washed out, the more complete is the removal of stains from eggs and fruit juices. For more stubborn grease stains, it often is advisable to try out the weakest absorbents first and it is wise when using chemicals to take the most dilute and the least active solvents that will renew the fabric in order to leave the cloth damaged as little as possible.

Round Steak and Pot Roast Best Buys Over Week-End

In its regular weekly report issued for the guidance of consumers the committee on marketing information of the Meat Council of Chicago states:

"Round steak and pot roast of beef represent the most economical meat buys over the coming week-end. Swiss steak is a delicious dish which can be prepared from the round of beef. The steak is cut rather thick, it is pounded with flour and cooked slowly with a little water."

HERE'S CHEERFUL NOTE; FOOD AGAIN IS A BARGAIN BUY

Butter, cheese and egg prices this week indicate bargains in things to eat, if one considers what they were a year ago. Cheese by the pound ranges from 15 to 50 cents, depending on the type and whether or not it is imported.

"A year ago we thought butter prices were low, but look at them now," one produce dealer said this week as he compared wholesale prices with those of 1931. Retail stores are selling butter of good grade for from 25 to 35 cents a pound, with the best butter on the market being sold wholesale at 22 to 23 cents a pound in 15 tub lots. A year ago wholesale prices were five cents a pound higher.

Eggs, also, are low in price, although retailers pronounce their stocks to be selected and strictly fresh. Prices vary from about 20 cents a dozen and up, with the best selling wholesale in 25 case lots or more for 14 to 15 cents a dozen.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS.

A hot, dry house makes it easy to catch colds in winter.

It is dangerous to diet away more than two pounds a week unless under a doctor's care.

HUMBLE POTATO QUEEN OF TABLE IN PARTY DRESS

All It Needs Is a Little Kind Treatment.

BY FLORA MARTIN.

"Potatoes are cheaper, tomatoes are cheaper"—so runs the much overworked vegetable love song sent over radio waves daily. And if you are a firm believer in all you hear, "now's the time to fall in love." Take the advice for what you will, but remember that potatoes, queen of the vegetable kingdom which claims both rich men and poor men alike as its subjects, are cheap and even cheaper than in previous years.

Meat [any kind] and potatoes are usually the standard order for most dinners. Of course, there are times when the popular potato is supplanted by its starchy brethren such as rice, macaroni, and spaghetti, on the dinner menu, but not often. Imagine, if you can, many potatoless meals as a steady diet in these parts and at these prices unless you tip the scales at a buxom 250 pounds, when potato abstinence becomes a case of necessity.

Discovery in Dispute.

Conflicting stories are told about the introduction of the potato, a native of the western hemisphere, to European circles. Those adventurous Spaniards who roamed the seas in search of new lands and whatever else they could find are said to hold the introduction rights, although it is also contended that Sir John Hawkins, an English voyager, holds the honor, having introduced the potato to the court of European epicures in 1563. It is generally believed, however, that Sir John was responsible for the sweet potato's presentation.

When they were first transplanted to the old world the potatoes were like stepchildren. This probably was because Europeans were deep set in their ideas of diet and prejudiced against new foods.

Taken by themselves in their drab colored jackets, you must admit potatoes are rather a common looking vegetable. But with the cook acting as modiste the potato with the proper grooming can be transformed from a pathetic Cinderella of the vegetable kingdom into a resplendent queen.

Serve them plain boiled and decked out in melted butter and chopped parsley once in a while if you must, but don't overlook the other opportunities in the potato field. Take mashed potatoes, for instance, which in many cases are one of the most perverted forms of potatoes, lumpy and hardly palatable. First of all, see that the potatoes are well cooked to avoid the lumps.

After they are mashed take a good sized spoon and beat and beat and beat them some more. When your arm is about pulled out of its socket, the deed is done and what you should have according to all rules and regulations is a mass of fluffy potato meat. If the potatoes have cooled during the beating process, put them over a burner to heat, but keep stirring to keep them from burning. Pile them high in a dish and trim with red paprika sprinkled lightly atop and bits of butter for the finishing touch.

Serve Them in Half Shell.

Have you ever tried potatoes on the half shell? The directions for this creation start out with baking potatoes from 30 to 40 minutes. When done, cut in halves and scoop out the potato meat with a spoon without breaking the skin. Mash and season like mashed potatoes, then refill the skins, brush top with egg white, and return to the oven until the top is nicely browned.

PORK SAUSAGE IS TASTEFUL DISH FOR CHILL DAYS

Cooking Should Be Started on Slow Fire.

BY IRENE STYSKAL.

Now is the time for pork sausage to come to the aid of her who plans the family menus. When the chill of the north wind is in the air the providing of energy giving foods is one of the chief concerns of the wise homemaker. Pork sausage adapts itself to any meal in filling this need.

Do the children have a long walk to school in the morning? A good breakfast for them will be baked apples or orange or tomato juice, sausage links with buckwheat cakes and sirup, and a hot beverage.

Delicious for Breakfast.

Other delicious combinations for breakfast are pork sausage with poached eggs, hot wheat cakes and syrup, or fried apples. Sausage links with waffles are enjoyable for the Sunday night supper.

To prepare pork sausage properly, the links should be placed in a cold skillet and cooked, under a cover, on a low fire for about ten minutes. Frequent turning is necessary to prevent sticking. After the slow cooking period, pour off excess fat and, with the cover removed, increase the heat and fry the sausages until they are brown.

Another Sausage Recipe.

Among a number of excellent luncheon and dinner recipes prepared recently by a packing house famous for its pork sausages is one for pork sausage with spaghetti. Here are the directions:

2 cups cooked spaghetti.
½ pound sausage links.
Minced onion.
Salt and pepper.
1 red or green sweet pepper, minced.
Stewed tomatoes, enough to moisten well.

Fry the sausage, cut into bits, until crisp and remove from skillet. Fry the minced onion and pepper in the fat. Add tomatoes and allow the mixture to boil. Then add the spaghetti and, when thoroughly heated, pour it over squares of hot buttered toast, sprinkling minced sausage over the top.

And here is a suggestion to perk up the dull, uninteresting baked potato. Scoop out enough of the center to make way for one or two small sausages. Bake in a tin in a hot oven.

CAN SEPARATE 1 KIND OF HONEY FROM ANOTHER

The difference in the character of honey stored by the bees from one flower source and that from another makes it quite possible for the beekeeper to separate one kind of honey from another, says the United States department of agriculture.

If the bees would fill one comb full of honey before starting on another, the combs containing different kinds of honey could be sorted and each kind extracted separately, but it is often the case that many combs are only partly filled when the honey flow from one floral source comes to an end. It is important, therefore, that before the bees begin to store honey from a new source of nectar the beekeeper remove all combs containing one kind of honey and extract it, returning the empty combs to be filled with honey from the new flowers that have begun to bloom.

If, however, the blooming periods of several kinds of honey plants overlap somewhat, the beekeeper can frequently improve the quality of his honey by examining the combs, as he removes them from the hive, to determine the kind of honey the bees have stored in them. Honeys vary so greatly in color and flavor that it is often desirable to separate the combs containing honeys from different flowers, extracting the lots separately.

Household Hints

A short piece of rubber hose slipped over the end of the faucet may prevent breaking the handle of your favorite china cup when the dishes are washed.

Fresh stains of cod liver oil may be removed readily with carbon tetrachloride or any grease solvent. After laundering, a bleach, such as Javelle water, may be necessary.

Molasses is especially good for children's sweets because it is rich in iron and calcium. Oatmeal cookies made with molasses are much more wholesome than rich butter cakes, and are a pleasant change from sponge cake.

To slice butter smoothly, first dip the knife in hot water.

Do You Enjoy Crisp Salads? Go to Market

Greenhouse crops from nearby areas are in the Chicago market for those who like crisp salads of summer time delicacy. Tomatoes and cucumbers from the greenhouses of Illinois, Indiana and Iowa are competing with the field grown vegetables from southern states and Mexico. Rhubarb from Illinois and Michigan hothouses is competing against the rhubarb from Washington and Oregon, where production in sheds in winter is an important industry.

Iowa Harvests Ice During Zero Weather

Ice harvesting crews in Iowa took advantage of the three subzero days which prevailed early in February, a weather and crop bureau survey indicates. Even in counties where snow and slush covered the ice, a crop of ice cakes averaging 10 inches or more in thickness was obtained after the soft slush was planed off.

HERE'S PIE THAT WILL TICKLE THE PALATE OF ALL

Graham Cracker Dessert Worth Trying.

BY JOHN CONWAY.

Perhaps you never have eaten graham cracker pie, in which event you still have to make the acquaintance of a dessert that is something out of the ordinary. This is an after-meal dish that you will assimilate to the final crumb. It is so different from the usual dessert that it will repay a trial.

It is easily prepared if these directions are followed:

THE PIE CRUST.

18 graham crackers
2 tablespoons of sugar
1 tablespoon of cinnamon
¼ lb butter
Pinch of salt.

Roll the graham crackers into crumbs, melt the butter and mix, add sugar, salt and cinnamon. Fill the pie tin with the above mixture, being careful to reserve enough crumbs to sprinkle on top of the custard.

THE FILLING.

3 eggs
3 tablespoons of corn starch
4 tablespoons sugar
1 teaspoon of vanilla or almond.

Warm the milk and mix with the yolks of three eggs; add the cornstarch and sugar, stirring until thick. When cooled add vanilla or almond. Pour into the pie crust and cover with the white of the three eggs, which are beaten with a tablespoon of powdered sugar. Take the remaining cracker crumbs and spread over the egg whites. Place in a hot oven for 15 minutes; after removing the pie, let it cool gradually. The longer it sets, the better. Serve with whipped cream. Other fillings may be used if so desired.

HUSBAND REALLY BIG PROBLEM OF MEATLESS MEAL

He Wants to Think He's Dining Well.

BY PHYLLIS HAMMOND.

True love may run smoothly, especially if the feminine party is a good cook; but good cook or not, it takes positive ingenuity to think up tasty and different combinations for these Lenten days.

Just picture a man known before the depression, or Lent, for that matter, as an amiable and jolly creature. Of course, he may insist on his eggs being boiled exactly two and one-fourth minutes or his toast being a delicate henna and not burnt sienna hue, but what are little things like that compared to the growling and ravenous creature that stalks your household during Lent?

"Spaghetti again," "beans again," or "fish again!" His cry is never ending. Of course, we can get around that. We'll fool them as we always have and always will. However, the poor bits of masculinity never realize they are being fooled. They firmly believe they have made the "little woman" come around to their way of thinking, or have made her rack her brain to invent special dishes just to satisfy male ego. In reality, they have been deprived of their favorite indoor sport. Their excuse for grumbling like a veritable army of bears has been taken from them and they must return to civilization.

Meatless Meal at Party.

While chatting over this weighty problem with a suburban friend she told me of an inexpensive meatless meal she recently served following a clever "depression bridge" party.

Prizes for the game were small cans, jars, and packages of food which were stacked in a wicker clothes basket in one corner of the room. Instead of winning one prize if you were lucky the guests all received prizes on various points. No prize was given for the final scores. The following poem was passed around and read, explaining the system of points:

For a slam that's small or grand,
Pick a prize.
Four? Five honors in your hand?
Pick a prize.
If you're doubled and you make it
A reward is yours, so take it.
Pick a prize.
If you set 'em, you are good.
Pick a prize.
Partner aided so you could
Pick a prize.
It's but fair that she should share it
Since she helped attain the merit.
Pick a prize.
Doesn't dummy ever go?
Pick a prize.
Only workers should you know,
Pick a prize.
When fifth honor she can show
[Partner holds the other, though]
Only then may dummy go.

By the time the guests were homeward bound you may imagine that each had enough for a complete meal, but only for one person, as sample jars and packages were procured and small amounts of vegetables and fruit bought.

Upon entering the dining room the lack of lace doilies, crystal glassware and fine linen brought relief to eyes jaded by too many formal luncheon decorations. A bright red checkered cloth with a log cabin center piece surrounded by small pine boughs gave a rustic and altogether refreshing air to the scene. You could almost smell the woods. Thick stemmed glasses of a rosy hue and white cochin-ware china with a pattern of red completed the picture.

The luncheon menu consisted of macaroni and salmon salad, hot parker house rolls, coffee, and wonder of wonders a "cheeseless" cheese cake. Here are your recipes:

MACARONI AND SALMON SALAD.

One large can of salmon
One-half package of cooked macaroni
One pimiento chopped fine
Three hard boiled eggs
One large bunch of celery
Three shredded carrots

"CHEESELESS" CHEESE CAKES.

25 graham crackers
One-half cup of butter
Six eggs
Two lemons
One can of condensed milk

Roll or crush crackers, add melted butter. Line a torte pan with the mixture, saving one half cup of the crumbs. Beat egg yolks until very light, add condensed milk. Beat again and add strained lemon juice. Fold in stiffly beaten egg whites and pour into the torte pan. Sprinkle top with leftover crumbs and bake in a moderate oven, 325 degrees, from fifty to sixty minutes.

MENUS FOR THE WEEK-END

BY MARY MEADE.

The first chowder recipe scheduled for today is made with salt codfish. This and the two which succeed it are "lickin' good," as an old cook of ours used to say.

SALT CODFISH CHOWDER.

1 pint of salt codfish
2 onions
Flour
1 quart of sliced potatoes
½ pound of salt pork
Crackers
Pepper to season
2 quarts of water

Wash the codfish, which has been broken into flakes, and soak over night. Cut the pork into dice, put in a spider, and fry crisp and brown. Then fry the chopped onions in the fat. Put in a soup pot a layer of fish and a layer of the sliced potatoes. Sprinkle with the onion, add the fried salt pork, and add a dash of flour and pepper. Cover with a layer of split crackers. Continue in this order until all the fish and potatoes have been used. Over the whole pour two quarts of water and allow the chowder to simmer gently for one hour before serving.

One thing about chowders is that they are substantial and nourishing. If you serve a chowder for lunch or supper, a green salad and wafers are about all that is needed to offer the family. Make your salad a nice crispy and crunchy one, though. Try these others when you have time. They are old favorites—one with all the vegetables and one without:

VEGETABLE CLAM CHOWDER.

4 tablespoons of fat
2 large onions, chopped
3 small carrots, cut small
1 cup of tomatoes, canned or fresh
2 cups of diced potatoes
¼ teaspoon of thyme
¼ teaspoon of marjoram
1½ teaspoons of salt
2 quarts of water
3 teaspoons of flour
¼ teaspoon of white pepper
1 large can of minced clams
2½ tablespoons of butter

Cook the onions in the fat until they are a light yellow. Add the potatoes, carrots, salt, and water. When the potatoes are nearly done, add the tomatoes. Cook slowly for one hour. Ten minutes before serving add the flour and butter, which has been blended, also the clams, thyme, marjoram, and pepper.

CLAM CHOWDER.

1 can or 8 fresh clams
5 large potatoes
4 onions
1 cup of tomatoes
Pinch of Caraway seed
1 tablespoon of butter
2 quarts of water
½ cup of milk
Seasoning of salt and pepper

Peel and cube four potatoes. Add the onions, tomatoes, caraway seed, clams, butter, and water. Simmer until the potatoes are very soft—about an hour. Then add one potato, grated, to thicken, and the milk. Season to taste and serve.

N. YORK MARKETS FIND VEGETABLES AND FRUIT ACTIVE

Public markets in upstate New York report that their trade in fruits, vegetables, eggs, and poultry now make up 98 per cent of all the produce exchanged, according to a report by W. C. Hopper of the New York state college. One of the market trends which he has found is that consumer buying direct from markets has greatly declined because the markets are crowded, more people eat in restaurants, retail sources are more conveniently located, and city consumers demand increased services.

ILLINOIS PEACH ORCHARDS PAST MOST OF DANGER

Reports from the peach orchards of Illinois indicate that the trees already have passed the most dangerous period and now have more than an even chance of coming through the winter without freezes damaging the 1932 crop. Two years ago adverse weather killed all of the peach fruit buds in the state, but last year there was a bumper crop.

The Charming Cheat

By Clara Sharpe Hough

SYNOPSIS.

Ricardo Dane visits New York in search of his aunt, Miss Filomena Stanley, his mother's half-sister. Ricardo's mother had recently died and left him heir to the ranch and mountain land in Romeu valley, California, where he had spent most of his life. He intended to find his sole remaining near relative and bring her back to Romeu Valley. He had understood this to be his mother's dying wish. His aunt, an actress, had been out of favor with the family.

Ricardo locates a Filomena Stanley, but instead of an aged aunt he finds a beautiful young aunt. She is living in a Bohemian studio with a Follies girl, named Frances. Ricardo readily believes this lovely creature, who acknowledges the relationship. Ricardo showers her with gifts and moves her into a better apartment. He moves into the same building on another floor. Webster Sutton, a college friend of Ricardo's, visits New York. He and Eunice Greenway, a girl from home, who is studying in New York, are entertained by Ricardo and his aunt. Eunice is a friend of Ricardo's fiancée, Rachel Beatty. She heartily disapproves of Filomena. Web believes his friend is being trimmed and, before he leaves, tells him so. Ricardo learns that Web was right when Filomena is called home due to the illness of her father. After another search Ricardo finds his real aunt. She is acting in a Broadway play. Ricardo's plan is to have Filomena prepare to marry him and leave her waiting at the church, but, before he can carry it out, Rachel arrives in New York with her father, who has been called there on business. Rachel meets the real aunt. She doesn't fit in with the stories Rachel has heard. Ricardo evades telling her the truth, but confides in his aunt. Eunice takes Rachel to call on Filomena. Ricardo meets them in the lobby. They see Filomena leaving the building. That evening Ricardo brings his aunt to have dinner with Rachel and Mr. Beatty. Aunt Fil, unknown to Ricardo, invites Rachel for breakfast next day. She also asks Filomena.

INSTALLMENT XXIX.

CAUGHT RED-HANDED.

Dejectedly, Ricardo set about packing his things on Sunday afternoon.

He was dejected because he felt decidedly that an unkind fate had robbed him of the opportunity to do his own choosing in the matter of details of his future. He knew perfectly well that he had to choose to give up Filomena and to leave New York with his dreams of her unfulfilled. But damn it all, he wanted to do it himself. He didn't like to be forced to do it.

While he had no idea that there had been breakfast for three in his aunt's apartment the day before, and had not the slightest notion why Rachel had so cavalierly refused even to see him yesterday or this morning, it never for an instant occurred to him that there might be any change made in the Beatty plans for Monday.

Tomorrow would bring just what he had thought it would bring, the end of everything as far as New York was concerned. He would never come back again. Tomorrow he would be on his way west, where he belonged, beside Rachel [also where he belonged of course].

He discarded several collars that would never see their prime again, and picked up his riding boots. He could not find any place to put the riding boots.

After a moment he dropped them and slammed the trunk shut. He could do this in the morning, or late tonight. Just now he was going to see Filomena. It would be on the whole a little churlish to go away forever without so much as a word to her.

Anyway, he wanted to know where

"Go on, let in your party," he invited.

under heaven she had got those horrible green slippers she had had on.

He slipped his latchkey into her door for the last time, as he reminded himself.

In the middle of the living room sat Filomena, but not alone. Beside her was Frances, whom he had completely forgotten for almost a week.

The fair head and the dark one were bent studiously over some contraption that absorbed their entire attention.

"Then I owe you $35," exclaimed Filomena, in a voice of mingled pleasure and surprise, "Fran, it's marvelous! Now what do we do next?"

Frances had heard Ricardo's step. "Hello, little brother," she said.

Filomena glanced up with a welcoming smile. "Dicky, darling, look. It's too wonderful. It's just like a roulette wheel, only it's different. You see, you take some of these checkers, they're all worth something different—"

"It's Fran's, I suppose," he resigned himself to the inevitable, "That's how come you owe her $35, I take it."

"She's practicing, that's all," said Filomena with dignity. "We weren't really playing yet. We're going to start a real game when the others get here."

Ricardo sat on the divan and smoked three cigarets while the practicing continued. Then Filomena looked up, pushing back her hair.

"You mustn't sit there like a spoilsport," she said chidingly, "you either come and play, or else go home like a good boy."

"I wanted to see you a minute," he explained.

"Into the bedroom for Fran," exclaimed Frances, "private business, I surmise. Go ahead, big boy." She gathered up her new toy and got to her feet. "Call me when it's all over." She retired into the bedroom.

Filomena still sat on the floor, her feet curled under her.

"Come up here a minute," suggested Ricardo, lighting a fourth cigaret. She rose obediently. Upon her feet were the outrageous slippers of green snake skin, high heeled, buckled over each instep with a narrow strap and a bright green buckle.

"Where did you get those shoes?" he demanded.

She looked innocently down at her feet. "Aren't they darling?"

"They're horrible," he returned rudely, "I never saw anything worse in my life."

"Really, I think they look like hell."

"Everything's going to be snakeskin this winter," she explained. "Rock python's awfully smart, too. It costs more. These are really awfully smart and my hat's exactly the same color—"

"They're awful," said Ricardo, with the earnestness of conviction, "they look like—you can't imagine what you look like in 'em. Take 'em off."

"Certainly not. They're the nicest things I have on."

"Take 'em off."

"I most certainly won't." Too late she realized that it had become an issue. He had reached out a hand and pulled her toward him.

"You'll take 'em off—or I will."

"No, you won't." She knew also that struggle was futile. Of course if it got too wild she could let out one good yell and Fran would come in.

"O, yes, I will." He had her on the divan now. "We settled it long ago, didn't we, who's boss in this family." He had her foot now and of course the shoe slid neatly off in his hand and in spite of her struggling.

The doorbell jingled interruption to this proceeding. He held the shoe beyond her reach.

"Go on, let in your party," he invited.

"Go yourself, I can't."

"Of course you can. I'll give it back—no, no, my girl, not yet. I'll give it back when—"

"Go on. You'll go in one shoe or none." He made a threatening dive toward her.

With a little shriek of dismay she dodged away from him, and in a series of jumps and hops reached the door.

"Come on in," she invited, swinging it open, "party's just beginning to be good."

Aunt Filomena and Rachel, enveloped in solemnity.

Filomena, her hair tumbled, her blouse awry, one foot arrayed in green snakeskin, the other in a pale gray chiffon stocking, stood aside without a word as they entered.

Ricardo, sprawling on the divan with a green slipper in one hand, rose hastily and began stuffing the slipper into his coat pocket.

"Do sit down," Filomena urged from the door.

Rachel and Aunt Filomena selected chairs and sat down.

"I thought we'd find you in," repeated Aunt Filomena. "Rachel was all for telephoning, but I thought we might as well just come over."

"By all means," agreed Ricardo, "Better not to telephone. You'd scarcely have caught me red-handed if you had."

"Yes," his aunt responded calmly, "I thought of that. But Rachel thought—"

"Since you're here," said Ricardo, defiance in his voice, "you'd better know Filomena, hadn't you? Aunt Fil—"

"We've met," his aunt assured him, "O, yes, we've met. All of us."

"O, yes," said Filomena, "we all know each other."

"I see," said Ricardo. "Been holding out on me, have you?"

"We had such a pleasant breakfast together," said Aunt Filomena.

"We might have some tea," interposed Filomena hospitably, "if you'd put the kettle on, Ricardo."

"Well, I'll not. If you want tea you can—"

"Dick," said Rachel, "we came—that is, I came to tell you—I'm not going to marry you, Dick, tomorrow. Or any time. I know everything, Dick, and I—I can't do it."

Bright Sayings of the Children

Mary Katherine, 6, and her little brother Bobby, 4, had gone to bed one evening during an electrical storm. After the lights were out Bobby called out to sister, "What is that flashing?" Mary Katherine informed him that it was lightning. "It is not," said Bobby, "that is the moon turning on and off." M. W.

Some neighbor children had come over in our absence and disarranged the playhouse. Our children were very wrathy and wanted to tell the mother. I tried to put them off, telling them to wait awhile. But George argued "No, I don't want to wait. Our madness might die down." G. B. M.

Facial Exercises Will Help You Keep Lines That Tell Age Away

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

You do not have to go on entertaining those drooping mouth corners and the parenthesis lines that run down from the sides of the nose. They are not recognized as facial advantages, you know. They ought to be caught young and ironed out, because they are difficult to rub down once they become deep set.

Here's something the young woman should keep on the look out for. You see these indented nose to mouth lines and drooping mouth corners on quite young women. If they are present in the early twenties and nothing is done about them you may be sure they are going to completely ruin the face at 31 and 41.

Sometimes, the parenthesis lines appear because of a generally emaciated condition. Underweight promotes them with some girls. They disappear immediately flesh tissue is built up under them. Ordinarily, however, the kind of parenthesis line we refer to is a matter of "setting" the muscles until the lines are permanently set. The logical thing, then, is to unset the muscles, to loosen them, relax them.

Take the drooping mouth corners and stand before the mirror with them. Then, relax the mouth. Relax with an upturn of the corners. This is in reverse order of muscle relaxing. Usually you are told to relax by letting the muscles droop. But those mouth corners have to be lifted up out of their gloom. Just note the difference in that mirror after one relaxation treatment. Anyway, that's the way to go after the hard set, sour, or determined looking mouth corners.

Then, try this on the mouth corners: Blow! Blow some more! Blow hard, as if you were trying to put out the light across the room. This stirs up the muscles and gives them a chance to relax into normal position.

I recommend a good tissue cream along with the blowing and lifting. Use it morning and night and rub it in lightly with up and out finger movements. Then wipe off the cream and use an astringent. You may need a strong one if the lines are long set. Early in the game an ice rub is effective, too.

Official Contract

By Charles True Adams

(International bridge authority; author of "Official Contract at Sight.")

Some time ago I was getting a late snack at one of these all night places. At a table close by were three men. One of them was boasting loudly how he had been smart enough to foresee the depression and careful enough to lay by a tidy sum in anticipation of the great decline. If it was his desire to impress his two companions of his present state of good fortune he was indeed successful—so successful in fact that when the check came he got it.

In yesterday's play-a-problem West had all the strength not held by the opponents and he told the world about it by doubling a strong opening bid made by South. South was so impressed by West's wealth that he ended by leaving the bridge check with him. This was the hand:

NORTH.
♠—7,6,4,3
♥—K,8,5
♦—8,5,3
♣—K,7,2

WEST.	EAST.
♠—A,K,Q,9	♠—8,5,2
♥—6,4	♥—9,3
♦—K,J,10,2	♦—9,7,6,4
♣—Q,J,5	♣—10,6,4,3

SOUTH [dealer].
♠—J,10
♦—A,Q
♣—A,9,8

South dealt and opened with the game invitational bid of two hearts. West doubled. North bid three hearts. East passed and South bid four hearts, which closed the bidding.

West opened the ♠ K, North played the 3, East the 2, and South the 10. West next led the ♠ Q, on which North played the 4, East the 5, and South the J. To the third trick West led the ♠ A, North played the 6, East the 8, and South trumped with the ♥ 2. South now led the ♥ 7, which dummy overtook with the K. Dummy led back the ♥ 5, which South overtook with the Q, thus clearing the trump suit. Declarer then led out the ♥ A-J-10, on which North discarded the ♣ 2 and the ♦ 5-3. West discarded the ♦ 10-2 and the ♣ 5. South now led out the ♣ A, West's J fell, North played the 7, and East the 4. To the tenth trick declarer led the ♣ 8, West's Q came up, and dummy took with the ♣ K. Dummy then led back the ♠ 7, which West was forced to take with the 9. West is now compelled to lead one of his remaining two cards which are the ♦ K-J up to South's ♦ A-Q, giving North and South four odd—their game.

It will be readily seen that there are a great many possible variations in the play of this hand, depending upon the discards of West. If West should, for instance, discard the ♠ 9, North can immediately take in the ♠ 7. Again, should West seek to keep three clubs, he will be compelled to either let go of his ♠ 9, allowing North to make the ♠ 7, or his ♦ J, which will allow South to take in the ♦ A-Q, West's K falling to South's A.

NORTH [dealer].
♠—10,7,3,
♥—A,Q,J,3
♦—4

WEST.	EAST.
♠—5,4	♠—K,J,2
♥—K,7,6	♥—10,5,4
♦—A,Q,7	♦—9,8,6,3
♣—9,8,7,5,4	♣—K,Q,J

SOUTH.
♠—A,Q,9,8,6
♥—9,8,2
♦—K,J,10,5,2
♣—None

Bid and play this hand and compare result with that printed tomorrow.

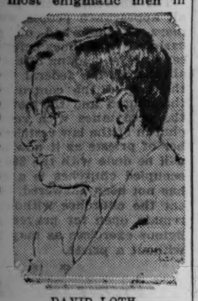
Add Philip II. to Biographies by David Loth

Story of Spanish King Is Praised.

"Philip II. of Spain," by David Loth [Brentanos]. Published today.

DAVID LOTH, author of "The Brownings" and "Lorenzo the Magnificent," has added another biography to his list of careful and brilliant studies. Philip II. was one of the most enigmatic men in European history. Interpreted by some as the incarnation of the devil himself and by others as a saint, a just and accurate picture of this king has long been withheld. It has been left to a popular modern biographer to estimate the character of Philip II.



DAVID LOTH.

The present author had at his command papers in the archives at Simancas, documents from the archives of the House of Alba and the Madrid National library, material removed from Spain by Napoleon, the collection of Zabalburu, and other original Spanish sources which have been for the most part not only unpublished but also unavailable to the historian.

To the reader unfamiliar with the characteristics that dwelt strangely side by side in the personality of the typical Renaissance man, the paradoxical acts of Philip will appear almost incomprehensible. His murders and his piety, his lust and his asceticism, his hypocrisy and his sincerity, all these characteristics that are so utterly irreconcilable in modern eyes were neither unusual nor original in that age. Though a thorough understanding of Philip rests consequently upon an understanding of the Renaissance, the key to many of his other traits lies within his own personal and individual idiosyncrasies.

Philip's heritage of half the known world was both a tragic and a magnificent one. With the vast territories he inherited there were thrust on him the quarrels of the hostile Netherlands, the long drawn out struggle of the Reformation in Germany, in France, in the Netherlands, in England, and even in Spain itself, the traditional opposition of France, the wars with the Turks, and finally the bitter quarrel with England. A man born with the greatest genius could not have managed the tumultuous Europe of the 16th century, and Philip was far indeed from genius, farther even than the tragic figure of Charles V., his father.

Philip's internal and foreign policies were based on three major concepts. The first was his wholly sincere allegiance to the church, the second his earnest desire for the world eminence of Spain, no matter how mistaken and short sighted his methods were to gain this end, and the third his fervent belief in absolute monarchy.

In this book Philip emerges as a rounded and understandable character. His religious beliefs influenced his personality. He died the most horrible and lingering of deaths, faithful, serene, uncomplaining to the end.

Not only is the character of Philip made vivid and real but also the personalities of the age including Charles, "Bloody Mary," and the other wives. There is a quantity of new material on Philip's treatment of his son, Don Carlos, the vicious, deformed, mad boy by his first wife; of Don Juan, his illegitimate half-brother, and Montigny. The main value of the new material, however, lies in a new picture of Philip.

Among other books published today are the following:

"The Autobiography of an Adventurer," by J. L. Trebitsch-Lincoln [Holt], relates the fascinating career of an intrepid soldier of fortune.

"Lead and Likker," by Owen P. White [Minton-Balch], describes the wild and wicked frontier days in America.

"Arabia Felix," by Bertram Thomas [Scribners], chronicles the adventures the author had in exploring the vast and hostile desert of South Arabia.

"John Paul's Rock," by Frank Parker Day [Minton-Balch], describes the tragedy of an Indian who exiles himself in Nova Scotia.

Schumann-Heink Will Sing Famous Role at Metropolitan

New York, Feb. 25.—[Special.]—Mme. Schumann-Heinck, who is almost 71 years old, will sing Erda in Rheingold tomorrow afternoon at the Metropolitan Opera house, the rôle in which she was famous more than thirty years ago. The performance is in no sense a farewell, she said today in her apartment in the Buckingham hotel, for she intends to sing as long as she can.

"It would be impossible for me to retire," she said. "I get half crazy; I have to sing."

"What do you think I am? I have to be doing something, and I am happy singing. I don't mind where I sing, just so people come to hear me and like me. When they no longer like me, I will retire. Not until then. My voice is in better shape now than it has been for a long time. Sure I like to sing in the Metropolitan. I will work for the Metropolitan. I will work for the Metropolitan whenever they call on me, and if my voice should disappear, as it won't as long as I live, I'll clean lamps for them or something. I have to be busy."

On the eve of her "comeback" engagement the singer had a word of advice for those coming up after her.

"The best advice I can give to young singers," she said, "is the advice I got from my teacher more than fifty years ago. It was to believe two-thirds of the unfavorable criticism I got, and to accept one-third of the favorable criticism. But these days most young singers feel mistreated if they get unfavorable criticism at all."

Mme. Schumann-Heinck will be 71 years old next June. She has spent fifty-three of her seventy years on the stage, and her last year's work has been as strenuous as any in her life. She made her debut in Chicago in December, 1888, and her New York debut at the Metropolitan in January, 1889.

Art Institute Has Good Show for Children

Two Exhibitions Possess Special Appeal.

BY ELEANOR JEWETT.

There are two exhibitions at the Art institute to which you should take your children. They will enjoy as much as you will enjoy the delightful animals in the children's museum and the fascinating peepshows and illustrations of children in the Mrs. James Ward Thorne's collection on exhibit in the Print galleries.

Along the walls of the children's museum are hung black and white silhouettes of various kinds of animals, in company with their masters and mistresses, by Ernst M. Engert. In a case are bronze animals by Jeanne Poupelet, a cow being led home by its peasant owner, a goose, a goat, a rabbit, a rooster, and a duck, all of them pets which had amused her children.

In other cases are tapestries figured with animals. Here are Italian brocades with animals in the Byzantine manner; there, are beasts and birds woven in Caucasian rugs or embroideries from Burma or animals in Persian tiles.

Another case is devoted to animals made from wood by the French wounded soldiers. The walls chime in pleasantly with a varying line of Japanese prints depicting everything from fish to parrots. A few examples of ancient Chinese art and archaic Greek horsemen, perhaps 2,500 years old, take us back through the centuries and show us the various types of animals which we know today as the artist knew them then.

The print galleries are overflowing with things of interest. Do not miss the table of peep shows. Of them all the soldiers on parade are the most fascinating. The books with lovely, delicate paintings on the leaf edge, pictures which cannot be seen unless the book is shut, are very intriguing, too. The original illustrations for "Alice in Wonderland" have a magic charm of their own.

The Kate Greenaway quaint figures are also delightful. An acknowledgment written in Kate Greenaway's own hand makes her a more real person. Then do not miss the views of London, perfectly enthralling, nor the series of illustrations by Phiz and others by Rowlandson.

There is much more in this exhibit than a short story can tell. The main point is that the exhibit is unusually fine and in missing it you are depriving yourself and the children of a great deal of pleasure. Both exhibitions will remain on view until March 15.

Stock Revives Carpenter Piece About Child; Program Pleases

BY EDWARD MOORE.

With one exception, the program of the Chicago Symphony was the same last night as Tuesday afternoon. That one was that instead of putting on a soloist, Mr. Stock revived John Alden Carpenter's "Adventures in a Perambulator," a delectable work that had been out of circulation for several seasons.

Possibly one reason for the fascination of this, some of the finest music ever written to or about a child, is the fact that Mr. Carpenter also wrote some prose which is as luminous as his melodies. There is endless charm in the contemplation of that unprecedented man, the policeman, who walks like doom; of the quiver of the little waves and the amiable big waves; of the little dogs, with sisters, and the big dogs, with aged parents, and the rest of it. In composing this music and then in writing his prose notes about it, Mr. Carpenter has created a double delight, for which his audiences must forever be his debtors.

Mr. Carpenter's "Song of Faith," as on Tuesday, began and ended the program. Mr. Stock's instincts were absolutely correct in placing it as he did. It is a noble composition, and it grows the more impressive with acquaintance. Its dignity, its simplicity of manner, its refusal to sentimentalize or grow flamboyant, its earnest, direct emotional appeal, its sunny, though unfacile optimism of words and music, all have their effect in striking the heart.

"And therefore," says Mr. Carpenter, "if my 'Song of Faith' can succeed in lighting one single candle of reaffirmation, I shall be content."

The Chicago A Cappella choir sang the "Song of Faith" and listened to the "Adventures in a Perambulator." Then Noble Cain took the baton and led the singers through the Bach motet, "Sing to the Lord," and a group of songs, all unaccompanied. It was a brilliant performance, quite the best of its kind that has been heard hereabouts, and its exhilaration stirred the audience to continued enthusiasm.

The Tipton concert series closed at the Blackstone hotel yesterday morning with a joint recital program given by Ruth Wilson, the violinist, who played in the first as well as the last of the series, and Hazel Eden, Chicago soprano, who made her first appearance therein. Miss Wilson made the Franck Sonata and the Chausson "Poeme" her principal numbers, playing with good tone and technical facility. Miss Eden, with voice of excellent quality and dramatic volume, was highly effective in songs by Brahms and Bachelet.

"I never thought a face powder could do so much for me," she wrote. "And I love the perfume in

The Putterer Finds His Place in Gardening

Change of Plants Helps Fight Disease.

BY PAUL POTTER.

Nearly every garden club or community of amateur flower gardeners has at least one specimen of the "genus homo putterer" who is constantly transplanting, shifting, or digging up an area of the yard. Some of these individuals find their happiness complete in the very unrestive nature of their putterings and their yards are always in a state of confusion.

Yet upon closer examination we frequently find they have gained an advantage over those who take the opposite extreme in gardening, that of leaving the landscape plan the same year after year, always placing the annuals in the same beds and in the same rotation of colors.

Between these two poles in gardening there lies a middle ground that should appeal to the widest following. Few gardens reach perfection in plan or development of plant growth. And in this fact lies the urge to change or to improve. It should also be the motivating spirit in attacking flower diseases or insect pests even before spring growth has started.

Every home gardener should have at least a good duster or a small pressure sprayer in this part of gardening which some consider "puttering." The duster is considered by many the easier to handle. Dusting is more quickly done than is spraying, but a sudden shower may undue its beneficial action.

Roses should be dusted with sulphur for black spot and mildew. Lilacs, phlox, zinnias, and many other flowers are attacked by mildew and also need the sulphur treatment. Coniferous trees such as pines or arbor vitae may be attacked by the red spider and again use sulphur.

Arsenate of lime and nicotine may be mixed with sulphur to make a dust. But arsenate of lead, a poison, should not be used. The one precaution in sulphur dusting is to omit it during hot days, for it may bleach or burn the petals of the blooms. It is best to use the sulphur when plants are young to ward off diseases rather than to control the diseases after appearance. Snapdragons, hollyhocks, and other plants susceptible to rust are kept free from it by sulphur dusting.

So to this extent the puttering strain in gardeners is to be encouraged. Disease or other troublesome handicaps are easier prevented than handled after they start destruction.

Jobless Decorator Gets Start to Fame with Street Singing

New York, Feb. 25.—(AP)—A Lithuanian house painter out of a job and a department store shirt salesman emerged from obscurity today as possessors of golden throats whose singing the world may yet pay handsomely to hear.

The house painter, Maurice Ambutter, was a bit disconsolate. He said: "I don't think I got a chance." An attack of grippe had prevented his longed for debut as a tenor in Carnegie hall.

Ambutter, with little education, a wife, two children, no job and no money, was singing in the rain for tossed pennies in an apartment house courtyard one evening. A music student heard him and excitedly took him to a voice teacher, who was also excited.

He has sung since he was a child and he knows many songs from operas. He learned them because he loved them. So he has been practicing for the debut and looking for a job on the side.

Two days ago he came down with grippe and went to bed crying.

"It was the first break I had in two years and it folded up like a busted ladder," he said.

Better luck had Charles Cosmo Cosentino, the shirt salesman. He was singing to himself softly behind the counter one day when a composer overheard him. She arranged an audition. He, too, was declared a find.

He was booked to sing in Washington before the Congressional club. He is studying diligently, every minute he can get from his work, and he believes in a rosy future.

Catholic Churches Reopen in Mexico City; Closed 8 Weeks

BY JOHN CORNYN.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]
[Copyright: 1932: By The Chicago Tribune.]

MEXICO CITY, Feb. 25.—Nine Catholic churches opened here today after eight weeks of suspension of service throughout the federal district. The other 16 allowed by the government will open tomorrow.

There was no demonstration of any kind, as Archbishop Pascual Diaz had advised against any demonstration which might excite radicals. Among the churches to open today were the Cathedral of Mexico City, the Basilica of Guadalupe, the home of the Mexican national saint, and El Sagrario Metropolitano, the parish church of Mexico City.

The churches were packed, but to all appearance people were going to mass as they had on previous occasions in the times before the trouble came. The opening of the 25 churches allotted in the federal district marks the end of the controversy between the church and the government, and the acceptance with reserves by the church of the law restricting the number of priests as it now stands. What will be done with the 300 or more unoccupied churches is a question that has not been answered. For the present the churches without priests will remain open for prayer and such religious exercises as may be conducted without a priest.

INFECTED PERSONS SPREAD COLDS

EPIDEMICS of COLDS call for Effective Action

Right now definite, active measures must be taken to stamp out colds and cold infection. This is no time for temporary or untried treatments.

The public must be informed that colds are caused by an ultra-virus (cold germ) which science has not yet been able to isolate. But science does know that this infection gets into the system and multiplies before the symptoms appear.

That's why it is necessary, the moment you feel a cold coming on, to take Bromo Quinine tablets as directed and drive out the cold poisons from within.

The tonic and germ-destroying properties of Quinine, combined with gentle laxative as in Bromo Quinine, have been proved to be the most effective remedy for colds.

Three Bennetts in Bright Lights of Movie Houses at Same Time

BY GEORGE SHAFFER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Hollywood, Cal., Feb. 25.—The fact that Richard Bennett and his actress daughters were all three represented this week in bright light billing on the New York and Chicago movie Rialtos has been much satisfaction to the trio.

In Chicago the billing that pleased the veteran actor was his name in "Arrowsmith" at United Artists; with his daughter Joan in "She Wanted a Millionaire" at the Oriental, and Constance in "Lady with a Past" at State-Lake. The same three shows are scattering on Broadway. The Bennetts ate it up.

They've nailed down all the movable benches, insured themselves against exploding cigars, rubber legged chairs, and fake phone messages, and stationed spies around the sets to guard against sudden invasions by crocodiles, hyenas, bumble bees and uncalled for steam rollers at Paramount studio now that the Marx's are again gathered under one roof and ready to launch work on their next crazy comedy, called "Horse Feathers."

These four compose the liveliest combined team of jokers in Hollywood history, operating both collectively and individually, and waiving all property, financial and social interests which conflict with a sudden laugh.

A lawsuit that is coming up here in a week or ten days is occasioning much interest. The suit is that of Leo McLaglen, asking $120,000 damages from his brother, Victor McLaglen, for asserted slander. Leo's complaint has been recorded in Superior court in the Los Angeles courthouse for some time, accusing Victor of trying to prevent him from getting employment in the Hollywood studios by circulating unfavorable stories about him. Both McLaglens are represented by legal batteries and so far the timid suggestions of their friends that an out of court adjustment would be genteel, have made no headway.

Carthay theater, a de luxe show house here which ever since its opening in 1926 has housed world premiere movie runs, is discarding movies and makes its first appearance as an opera house March 4, with Ethelind Terry opening in "Sons o'Guns" to be followed by seven other light operas.

Both Buster Keaton and Joe E. Brown have backed local semi-pro baseball teams for several seasons. Keaton's baseball club is well known on the coast, having campaigned on the Los Angeles sand lots for the last 12 years occasionally meeting big league clubs like the Cubs, Pirates, Tigers, which were doing spring training here. The Keaton and Brown teams are now scheduled to play for the movie colony championship next Sunday. The M. G. M. studio, where Buster hangs out, has gathered a pool to wager on their favorite team. Both Buster and Brown have rung in some past and present major league battery men and sluggers.

Herman Brix, former University of Washington athlete, who holds the present American shotput record, has been given a series of screen tests which probably will usher him into the film starring circle as a cowboy hero for Trem Carr westerns.

Bride

MRS. HARRY H. RITTENHOUSE JR.
[Moffett-Russell Photo.]

Announcement is made of the marriage on Feb. 3 of Miss Frances Beebe, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter E. Beebe of 4409 Drexel boulevard, to Harry H. Rittenhouse Jr., son of Dr. and Mrs. H. H. Rittenhouse of 5759 Harper avenue.

Events on the Stage

A play called "Zombie," based upon voodoo rites among the Haytians, is a probable booking for the Adelphi theater within the next few weeks. "As Husbands Go," as crisp and clever a comedy as Chicago has seen this season, now holds the stage of the Adelphi, but may not remain there after the ides of March, and "Zombie" is being groomed as its successor.

This piece is a thrill-and-shudder drama by Kenneth Webb, now nearing the end of a brief run at the Biltmore theater, New York. It deals with some of the blood-curdling elements of voodooism. A "zombie" is a sort of Haytian vampire—a corpse reanimated by black magic and sent abroad in the still watches of the night to do the wizard's bidding. Its action takes place in the living room of a white couple's bungalow in the mountain district of Haiti. Pauline Starke has the leading rôle.

In the meantime, it may be reported that "As Husbands Go" will click off its 50th Chicago performance at the Adelphi tomorrow night, and is pleasing the customers as much as it did at the Blackstone. The arrival of "Zombie" cannot be expected before March 13 or March 20. The management of the Adelphi has three other plays of the "mystery" or melodrama type under consideration for spring bookings. They are "Black Tower," "Monkey" and "Shooting Shadows."

The management of "The Band Wagon," the revue that came to the Illinois theater last Monday night, announces that the entertainment will end its Chicago stay March 12. A long run had been expected, but the capacity audiences needed to operate this expensive production at a profit have not been in evidence. Playgoers who have bought tickets for the week beginning March 14, or later dates, are requested to exchange them for reservations within the next fortnight.

Ethel Barrymore, now acting "The School for Scandal" in Pittsburgh, announced yesterday that she will soon make her cinema debut, in association with her brothers, Lionel and John. A special film story is being prepared as her vehicle.

"It will be a wonderful thrill," said the First Actress, "and I know I will like it. My only fear"—this with a twinkling eye—"is the camera."

The talkie will not be placed in rehearsal until after Miss Barrymore ends her present tour in June. C. C.

Raymond Foundation Film Will Be Shown Tomorrow

The James Nelson and Anna Louise Raymond Foundation will present the first of its spring series of free motion pictures for children tomorrow at the Field Museum of Natural History. The film is to be "The Vanishing American," a picture of Indian life, and its presentation will be accompanied by a story lecture by Miss Margaret M. Cornell, chief lecturer of the Raymond Foundation. The program will be presented at 10 a. m., and again at 11 o'clock.

CRISLER SIGNS AS PRINCETON GRID COACH

STRIBLING AND SCHAAF MEET IN STADIUM RING

Expect 12,000 for Tonight's Program.

Tonight's Card

Young Stribling vs. Ernie Schaaf, 10 rounds.
My Sullivan vs. Ben Jeby, 10 rounds.
Al Fay vs. Tom Davenport, 6 rounds.
Clyde Chastain vs. Mickey Patrick, 6 rounds.
Davey Day vs. Sammy Levine, 4 rounds.
Charley Young vs. Pete Wistort, 4 rounds.

BY FRENCH LANE.

More than 12,000 spectators are expected to see Willie Stribling, the Georgia cracker, fight Ernie Schaaf of Boston in a heavyweight bout scheduled to go 10 rounds at the Chicago Stadium tonight.

Ringwise folks say it is the most important heavyweight clash of the new year and maybe it is. For Strib, like Jack Dempsey, who wabbled around in the same ring with King Levinsky only a week ago, is starting out over the comeback trail. And Schaaf, like Levinsky, is a young fellow just starting to carry the pail of water up the hill.

Stribling became one of those comeback guys in Cleveland last July when the world's champion, Max Schmeling, put him away in the fifteenth round of a match in which the world's crown was at stake.

Broken Hand Halts Strib.

Since that July night Stribling has battled four times. He knocked out three of his opponents. Who they were doesn't mean anything. In his other bout he got the decision. Then he suffered a broken hand and since early last November he was idle until he took up training for the Schaaf affair some five weeks ago.

In Chicago last night the impression seemed to prevail that Stribling is in for another whipping at the hands of Schaaf. And if such a thing happens it will be quite a disappointment to the crowd at the Stadium ringside for it will be a Stribling audience. Chicago fans can't convince themselves until they actually see it that a kid of Stribling's age—he's only 27—is a "has been." They think he has a better chance to come back than the older Dempsey, who was 36 when King Levinsky battered him all around the ring.

Stribling Is a Veteran.

But when actual fighting is considered Stribling is the veteran and Dempsey is the young fellow, for Strib has squared away against some 300 opponents in the last eleven years. Dempsey, except for the numerous exhibitions in which he has engaged for almost a year, has fought only three times, twice with Tunney and once with Sharkey.

Maybe the activity of the younger Stribling will make him a more likely comeback prospect than Dempsey.

Schaaf, since he started knocking the big boys of the prize ring around about a year ago, has occupied a unique position in heavyweight fistic affairs.

His manager for the last year, while he has been making a reputation for himself, has been Jack Sharkey, the Boston heavyweight, who three or four times has been standing on the threshold of the world's heavyweight throne room.

Sharkey Helps Ernie.

Since Sharkey became his manager Schaaf has won 20 fights in 21 starts. He has knocked out 10 of his last 17 opponents. But, of course, it wouldn't be nice for a kid like Schaaf to step out and become a more dangerous heavyweight threat than his manager, Mr. Sharkey. Some day he will probably have to do it.

If he should knock Young Stribling into the resin dust tonight, like Max Schmeling did in Cleveland last July, it will indicate that his big day is near at hand. For it will put him in direct line to fight Schmeling if his boss, Sharkey, fails to whip Schmeling next June in New York.

The wonder of it all is that such a match as the Stribling-Schaaf affair hasn't attracted a larger advance sale of tickets. But Dempsey pretty well drained the pockets of Chicago's fistic followers a week ago when his 4 rounds with Levinsky caused them to drop $74,000 into the counting room. In these times fistic fans do not recover as rapidly as they did in the boom days.

There are five other scraps on the program.

Among those present will be Jack Dempsey, Jack Sharkey, Mickey Walker, Jack Kearns, and other folks noted in the fight industry.

CONTRACT FOR 3 SEASONS, TIGER OFFICIAL SAYS

Long Distance Talk Ends Negotiations.

Princeton, N. J., Feb. 25.—[Special.]—Fritz Crisler, director of athletics at the University of Minnesota, has signed a contract to become head football coach at Princeton university, according to word received here tonight by Thurston J. Davies, supervisor of sports.

Mr. Davies, after a long distance telephone talk with Crisler, said, "I have just been notified by Mr. Crisler that he has signed a contract to be head football coach at Princeton."

Salary Within Faculty Scale.

"The contract is for a term of three years at a salary which is not in excess of the faculty scale," said Davies. "Mr. Crisler will begin active work here with the coaching of the 1932 football team."

In his statement Mr. Davies also revealed the names of the special committee delegated to recommend candidates for the position as Princeton football coach.

"Early this winter the board of athletic control appointed a special committee to survey the field and to make recommendations for the position of football coach," he said. "The men selected for this committee were Dr. John M. T. Finney of Baltimore, Thomas A. Wilson of Binghamton, N. Y.; Thurston J. Davies of Princeton, Donald B. Laurie of Chicago, and F. Tremaine Billings of Pittsburgh."

Both Mr. Finney and Mr. Wilson are members of the board of trustees of the university and both are former Princeton football players. Laurie was an all-American quarter back on the Princeton team of 1921 and Billings is captain elect of the 1932 Princeton team. Mr. Davies was also an athlete at Princeton, playing basketball.

Aided Stagg at Chicago.

On Feb. 10, 1930, he was named football coach at the University of Minnesota, succeeding Dr. C. W. Spears. A short time later Dr. Frederick W. Luehring resigned from his position as athletic director at Minnesota and Crisler was appointed to fill this post in addition to that of football coach. Finding both positions too great a burden, he relinquished his football coaching duties early this winter to B. W. Bierman, formerly coach at Tulane university.

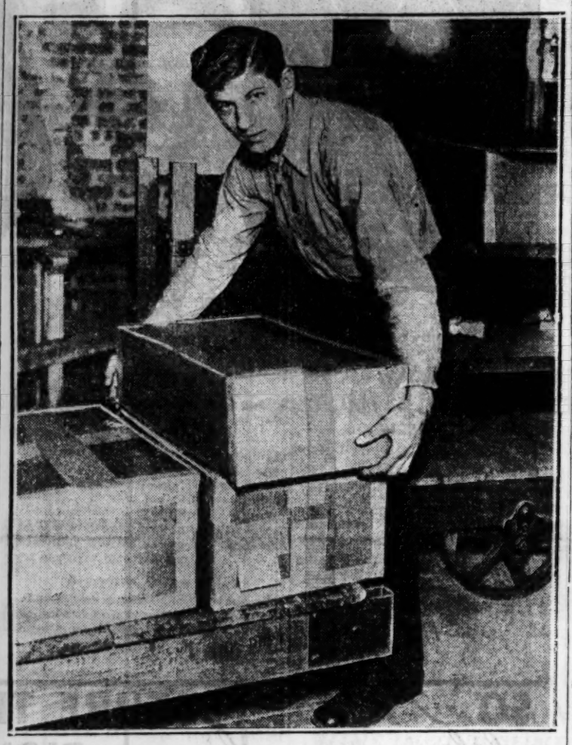
End Period of Suspense.

The announcement that Crisler would be Albert Wittmer's successor has climaxed a period of suspense and anxiety which has extended over more than two months. After Wittmer tendered his resignation as football coach on Dec. 18, 1931, rumors concerning his successor included Crowley of Michigan State, Stuhldreher of Villa Nova, McLaughry of Brown, Carideo, formerly of Notre Dame, and Marks of the Kiskiminetas school.

Wittmer had succeeded William Roper as Princeton coach and in the one year during which he served he experienced through adverse circumstances the most unsuccessful season in Princeton football history. Wittmer was retained as varsity basketball coach, a position which he now holds. Last fall the Tigers won only one game of the eight played.

The staff of assistant coaches last fall has not been reappointed to positions. Mr. Davies stated that the personnel of the new staff of assistants will be announced at a later date.

TOSSES RADIOS AND PUNCHES



Loading radio shipments is all in the day's work for George Van Der Heyden, South Bend's Golden Gloves featherweight champ for the second year. Van Der Heyden, who went to the quarter-finals in 1931, is a shipping clerk in a South Bend radio factory.

Bring On Big Boys, Golden Glovers Say

Chicago's heavyweights seeking THE TRIBUNE Golden Gloves are not in the least disturbed by the reports that Chicagoland is sending into the Tournament of Champions at the Chicago Stadium Monday night a cage filled with wild tigers.

The news that Adam Smith is coming back from Rockford, and that Roy Spooner, the big muscled coal heaver from South Bend; Fred Young, the circus roustabout from Kokomo; Dave Harriss, the Peoria giant who dips railroad ties into creosote all day long, are coming to the Tournament of Champions with fire in their eyes hasn't frightened any of Chicago's big fellows.

They probably have to make in impression because the heavyweight division in the three Chicago Golden Gloves sections is better fortified with big boys than at any time since the first Golden Glove battle was fought.

South Side Team Strong.

Golden Glove regulars in Chicago who didn't miss a fight in the more than 350 in the three Chicago sectional centers believe the south side has the best of this local heavyweight crop.

The south side representatives are Chester Buskowski and Tony Susnas. They are big, powerful fellows, each starts swinging from the opening tap of the bell, and each demonstrated in the south side struggles that he can take a punch and absorb it with considerable dignity. They were swarming all over their rivals from the time the bell tapped until they had won places in the Tournament of Champions.

Out on the west side Duffy Dvonch and Merrill Tonn, the latter a veteran from last year's team, are to carry on in the heavyweight division. Dvonch has a victory over Adam Smith to his credit and has always been able to whip his team mate, Tonn. Duffy is a rugged fellow who doesn't know what the word "quit" means, and who hits with the power of a pile driver. Of course, there are some rough spots in Duffy's attack, otherwise he might be much nearer the professional heavyweight championship of the world.

Boys Arrive Tomorrow.

The Chicago north side heavyweights are Dave Hendrickson and Terrence Bonnan. Tough boys, both of them, and either might bob up at the end of the Tournament of Champions as the boy who will fight New York's biggest and hardest punching warrior in Madison Square Garden on the night of March 28.

Chicago boys—from flyweights to the heavies—were resting yesterday after the three strenuous sections' tournaments here. Most of them will go back into training today for their fights at the Stadium next Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday nights.

The teams from 21 tournament centers in Illinois, Iowa, Michigan, Indiana, and Wisconsin are ready to move toward Chicago. A few of the teams will arrive tomorrow and incoming trains on Sunday and Monday will pour a steady stream of Golden Gloves fighters and rooters into Chicago.

Advance ticket sales indicate that all attendance records will be broken at the opening session of the Tournament of Champions on Monday night.

Crowley Delays Iowa Decision Until Tomorrow

Lansing, Mich., Feb. 25.—[Special.]—President Robert S. Shaw of Michigan State college announced today a definite decision will be made Saturday as to whether James Crowley, football coach, will remain at State or become head coach at the University of Iowa.

The Spartans' coach has conferred with President Shaw several times since his return from Chicago, where Iowa's offer was made. He has expressed himself as willing to remain here if salary terms can be adjusted. Iowa, however, has offered him a considerable increase.

IOWA GRANTS DELAY.

Iowa City, Ia., Feb. 25.—[Special.]—Jimmy Crowley, Michigan State football coach, will be given until noon Saturday to reach a final decision regarding the University of Iowa offer, Dean C. C. Williams, chairman of the athletic board, said today.

Williams said he had been informed by Dean Chester A. Phillips by telephone from Jackson, Mich., that Crowley asked an extension of time.

The Iowa athletic board met this afternoon and voted to let the offer to Crowley remain open until Saturday. It is understood here Crowley is attempting to reach an agreement with Michigan State regarding his contract. Williams declared the question of more salary was not a factor in the delay.

TURF CHAMELEON HAS NOTHING ON FIGHTER'S STOOGE

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Feb. 25.—Persons having the best interests of the turf at heart will be very indignant about the latest and apparently the final imposture of the protean race horse, Aknahton, the equine racketeer which broke down while running a race at Joseph E. Widener's track in Miami under the name of Gallmont. Aknahton posed as a horse named Shem at Havre de Grace last fall and won his race, thereby delivering large sums of money to an unscrupulous set, and there is no way of knowing just yet how many other names he assumed before and since that occasion.

He may have been as changeable as the little prize fighter from New York who went out with one of the bantamweight champions of a few years ago and fought him 19 times under 17 names, ranging from Mickey O'Brien, the Dublin spider, to Chief Squirrel-Climbs-a-Tree-and-Eats-a-Mess-of-Acorns, the fighting Cherokee. I never heard that he drew the color line, for he was an artist at heart, but it never was necessary for him to black up because this tour was confined to cities on or below the Mason and Dixon line, and the customers drew it for him.

Perfect Knockout List.

This was the most mischievous and most hilarious Odyssey in the confidential record of the prize fighting trade, the boys traveling together with their joint manager in a Pullman drawing room from New York to New Orleans and back by way of many cities, including St. Louis, Oklahoma City, Little Rock, Fort Smith, Memphis, Shreveport, Fort Worth, and, of course, Cincinnati and Louisville. All acts in pugilism, which are worthy to be called acts, play Cincinnati and Louisville.

The boys portrayed 19 knockouts in the course of their travels, and the young champion returned to New York with considerable more prestige than he took away. It was conceded that, even though the 17 victims whom he had knocked out on this trip were persons widely unknown, he must have developed an accurate and conclusive punch to have won all his fights so emphatically.

The discrepancy between the number of engagements and the number of characters assumed by the versatile boy who accompanied him was accounted for by the fact that in two of the cities along the route the customers were so delighted by the savage action of the first bout that the young men were compelled to do it again in response to great popular demand. This enthusiasm was attributable to a rousing theatrical point in the scenario which required the champion to go to the floor for a count of nine in the first round and come on to win.

They were embarrassed only once in the entire tour, that time by two cloak and suit salesmen from New York who had seen them fight in Oklahoma City one week and, the next week, being in Fort Worth, and seeing the champion billed there, decided to see him again. Also, being fellow New Yorkers, they called on the champion who was stopping at the same hotel, and being salesmen, did not knock but walked right in. They discovered the champion and the other half of the act brushing up on their knockdowns under the direction of the manager and exclaimed, "What is this act, an act?"

Thought It Was Great Fight.

"Of course it is an act," said the manager, "but you boys are from New York and so are we, and moreover this boy," meaning the straight man in the piece, "is an old buttonhole maker, himself, so I am sure you boys will not say anything to cause we boys any discomfiture."

"Well, I am thoroughly astonished," said one of the cloak and suit salesmen, "because when I saw that act in Oklahoma City last week, I thought it was the best fight I ever saw, and I wrote home to several friends about it."

Both young pugilists modestly thanked their guests for this appre-

TILDEN STAR CARRIES ON

Ralph Metcalfe, former Tilden Tech sprinter, carried Marquette university's colors to victory three times over a crack field, which included the redoubtable George Simpson, in the Militia track meet at the 124th Field Artillery armory last night, sweeping the sprint series. Small Mountains Enthrall Sox at New Training Camp

BY EDWARD BURNS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Mineral Wells, Tex., Feb. 25.—The Chicago White Sox, headed by their new president, J. Lou Comiskey, their new manager, Lew Fonseca, and their new secretary, Joe Barry, are here assembled.

Tomorrow they will launch a new kind of training program in the hope that eventually it will lead them to a new berth in the American league—some place in the first division.

Instead of donning baseball uniforms the boys are to doff their raiment and set to the process of bathing, scientific bathing, with violet rays, inspiring massages, and what not.

They May Dress Up.

Of course, the fellows won't be naked all the time, for the program calls for daily hikes over what are called mountains in this vicinity. There was some talk of dressing the boys up in Tyrolean costumes for their mountain climbing, but when Manager Fonseca, a Californian who lives in the midst of A No. 1 mountains, saw the depressed state of the Texas mountains, he opined that dressing up in Alpine regalia would be kidding mountains in general, something a good Californian never does. His two coaches, Johnny Butler and Bill Cunningham, also Californians, approved Lew's stand, but said they didn't want to be put in the light of looking down on the Texas mountains.

Eighteen of the athletes arrived at Millsap, nine miles away, this afternoon at 3:30 o'clock and came to this spa by bus, where they were met by Smead Jolley, Lu Blue, Bill Cissell, Jack Hayes, Grant Bowler, Johnny Watwood, Jim Moore and Paul Edwin Gregory. Ted Lyons is said to be enroute from Vinton, La., and Pat Caraway lives down the pike a short piece and will probably commute.

They Have Some Weather.

The arrival was blessed with what is said to be the second fine day Texas has enjoyed since early winter, the first ideal day being yesterday. Lu Blue, here three weeks, reports that he was rained on every day up until yesterday.

Of course, it is difficult for even an expert to tell how well an athlete can play baseball by seeing him get off a train and onto a bus and it's going to be just as difficult to appraise a man's ability to throw a low curve outside by watching him cavort in a bathhouse with nothing on but sandals. We may say, however, that we have never seen a snappier looking bunch of young men alight at a spring training camp than the outfit that arrived here today.

Usually there is a detachment of scrawny guys that come along because their uncle used to live next door to some old friend of a famous old ball player. There is not one of this type of excursionists with the White Sox party this year.

Of course all the fellows started talking baseball as soon as they arrived, with Smead Jolley's impending transformation into a catcher as the most popular subject of conversation. In Florida, we found national leaguers talking about Jolley, and therefore were not surprised to find his own teammates all worked up about the coming metamorphosis.

Golf? O, Yes, Golf.

With the squad that arrived today was Robroy Fothergill, who promises to be an excellent subject for bathhouse clinics designed to reduce poundage. Fothergill's name was completely overlooked by the person who compiled the White Sox's elaborate roster, and for some time there had been much worry about his fate. But it turns out that Bob has a contract and that his omission from the roster was due to excitement in the composing room of the White Sox printery.

Every time there is a new manager he is asked his attitude on golf. Fonseca approves golf as an early conditioner and said the men could play all they want to except during the hours when they are scheduled to bathe and hike. He said he had not made up his mind as to his golf policy after the outfit gets to San Antonio for serious baseball a week hence.

METCALFE BEATS GEORGE SIMPSON IN MILITIA MEET

Ralph Metcalfe, Marquette university Negro sprinter, was the individual star of the second annual Illinois National Guard and naval reserve track meet at the 124th Field Artillery armory last night. He sprinted to victory in the 40, 50, and 60 yard dashes.

No championships were to be determined and no records were broken.

Handicapped by the tanbark floor, Herman Brix of the Los Angeles Athletic club, failed by more than four feet to regain the indoor shot put record he lost last week. His best mark was 48 feet 5 inches.

Bob Rodgers, former University of Illinois star, provided an upset by winning the hurdle medley series on points from Lee Sentman of Illinois, and Bob Maxwell of the Los Angeles A. C.

Metcalfe Outsprints Simpson.

One of the last events on the indoor track season, the meet was featured by the appearance of the Los Angeles A. C. squad, which stopped here on its return to the coast from a series of eastern meets. About 3,000 watched the events.

Metcalfe, a Tilden Tech product, had little difficulty in dominating the sprint series, taking the 40 yard event in 4.6 seconds, the 50 yards in 5.4 and the 60 yards in 6.3.

George Simpson, former Ohio state star, could do no better than one second and two thirds in the series, while James Owen, St. Louis High school lad, placed second twice.

In the hurdles, Rodgers took nine points, enough to win, by winning the 60 yard event in 7.8 seconds, placing second over the 50 yard distance and third at 40 yards. Sentman won the 50 yard race in 6.7 seconds, while the 40 yard event was done in 5.5 by Art Ravensdale of Marquette university.

Martin is Beaten.

Glen Dawson, Oklahoma university miler, staged a surprising finish to win the 1,000 yard run by more than 30 yards from Orval Martin, former Purdue ace now competing for the Los Angeles club. Dawson's time was 2:13 7-10.

The 400 meter run was won by Rha Arnold of Michigan State Normal at Ypsilanti in 51.9. Jack Tierney of Marquette was second and Richard Pomeroy, Los Angeles A. C., third.

Clearing the bar at 13 feet 7 inches, Verne McDermont, L. A. A. C., won the pole vault. Tying for second at 13 feet were Jay Schram, Marquette, and James McKinley, Michigan Normal.

Parker Shelby, formerly of Oklahoma university, now with the Los Angeles club, high jumped 6 feet 3½ inches to beat Bert Nelson of Butler college by an inch lower. Max Con-

CHARLEY ROOT'S PONIES WIN, 12-6, IN CUBS' OPENER

Mr. Malone's Colts Have Bad First Inning.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Avalon, Cal., Feb. 25.—Just to inject a little excitement into the dull routine of camp life, Manager Hornsby split his advance squad of Cubs into two parts today and put them to work in the first real diamond contest of the year. It proved an unhappy occasion for Pat Malone, who managed the Colts. His gang lost to Charley Root's Ponies, 12 to 6, in nine innings. Hornsby kept himself out of the argument so as to be in a position to make mental note of every move by the young hopefuls.

What ruined Malone's team and also his disposition was a bad first inning in which Root's outfit, boasting the best talent present, registered six runs. This assault was at the expense of Johnny Welch and was marked by triples by Root and Barton, a double by Hartnett, and a few singles by others.

All the Colts had to do after this was to taunt the perspiring Malone about his effort as an outfielder and about the 15 hogs he lost in a cholera epidemic last winter. It was Pat's first venture as a gentleman farmer and he tried to keep the failure a secret, but Detective Dan Cahill uncovered the story this morning.

Herman Gets Four Hits.

With Malone and some other equally unskilled outfielders performing, the hitting naturally wasn't legitimate. Not all of it, anyway. Malone was plunked on the head a few times by fly balls which fell for extra base hits. Root and Warneke had similar experiences in their strange positions.

Billy Herman, the regular second baseman, didn't have to make use of the comical fielders to compile a formidable performance on attack. He hit a pair of singles and two doubles, all of the line drive variety. Stanley Hack, the $50,000 third baseman, made good use of his bat by unloading two singles and beating out a bunt. On the latter he was picked off first base by Leroy Herrmann, the pitcher recalled from Los Angeles.

Hornsby saw nothing displeasing in the way the youngsters fielded. Hack was a finished performer on the few plays put in front of him. At first base Harry Taylor did enough to prove that there is no kidding about his being a serious contender for Charley Grimm's job. Herman's play at second base was as faultless as it was in his games with the Cubs last fall.

Regulars Arrive Today.

The 14 regulars now absent from the training party will arrive on the island on tomorrow's steamer, but if there is any reception it will have to be conducted by the natives. When the steamer docks, the early squad will be back in the canyon going through the customary drill. Somebody spread a report that a half holiday would be declared so that all hands could be at the dock, but after the boys had worked up a fever of enthusiasm over the prospects of an easy day, Hornsby knocked the idea flat by telling them they had been kidded.

The regulars, after lunch tomorrow, will have the extreme pleasure of visiting the field and watching their mates sweat. The newcomers will be spared actual labor until Saturday morning. When they show up in uniform there will be 36 registered athletes and three outsiders for Hornsby to supervise.

Catcher Rollie Hemsley checked in this morning as the first camp casualty. He turned up with a charley horse in his right leg, but despite the handicap had to play the full nine innings as a third baseman.

Boxers' Sham Bouts Shame Equine Act

ciation and the manager said, "And furthermore, I am going to get you boys a pair of seats right up in the press row, free of charge, and at this point I am on the verge of buying a stimulating beverage."

The afternoon thus passed pleasantly and the cloak and suit salesmen, being privy to the secret and thus superior to the other customers, respected the confidence which had been reposed in them.

Facts Cause Amusement.

The facts of this remarkable series of adventures did not become known in the profession until a year had passed. When they did come out the prize fight industry, far from that solemn indignation which will mark the conduct of the Hialeah racing authorities with regard to Aknahton's deceit, evinced only admiration and amusement.

Considering how badly the boys in the Aknahton case bungled their act, both at Havre de Grace and Hialeah, they can hardly ask to be admired and, anyway, they probably are not nice people. But this horse plot is the sort of thing that fiction is made of, and, not ebing among those who hold dear the honor and traditions of horse racing, I trust that some one in the fiction department of the business will exploit the incident for a few thousand words and a few hundred dollars.

The ringer has been common in other sports, particularly village baseball, and not excepting intercollegiate football. If the persons responsible for Aknahton's droll adventures on the horse tracks are not mere tricksters, but thieves as well, that should not surprise Mr. Widener.

Aknahton Was a Pal.

There was a prize fighter once who was locked in a closet in a hotel room and almost stifled by some sportsmen who did not want him to go on with his bout. Last fall, when Aknahton had run for Shem in Maryland, the fraud was not discovered until Shem was found starving in an abandoned box car.

Aknahton, of course, is the victim of a bum rap. The steed crippled himself doing his best and the sportsmen who painted him over, now that they are barred from the tracks any way, would have nothing to lose by claiming their horse and retiring him to some quiet farm. Their apologists often write about the loyalty of gangsters to their pals, and Aknahton was a pal. This is a test case.

4 CHICAGOANS JOIN INDIANS.

In the WAKE of the NEWS

PREP ATHLETICS.

MEMBERS of the National Federation of State High Schools are reported to be intending to write their own rules for competitive sports. This movement has been brewing for some time. With some favorable points and some unfavorable, impetus to the plan, we are told, is given by the ambitions of a coterie of prep officials who seek greater power.

This group, according to rumor, is the same who tried to meddle in conference affairs as representatives of the North Central Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools. This ambition received a setback when "investigators" were handed their hats and coats by Northwestern university and told their presence was neither required nor desired. Later, this became an issue in the conference and committees were appointed by both organizations to confer.

The Wake saw no public announcement from that meeting other than that difficulties had been adjusted. It is understood the North Central received a decided and positive rebuff. At any rate, there have been no more unsolicited "investigations" of Big Ten colleges.

If high school athletics authorities wish to have their own rules, we see no objection. In some points, such as durations of contests, even other minor matters, changes might be made to the advantage of younger contestants. High schools are developing courses for college athletics. Radical rule changes, therefore, might prove a temporary handicap to advancing athletes. Such action is hardly probable.

The Wake would have more confidence in any such reform movement, however, if we were convinced of the sincerity of the reformers in their regard for sports. Possibly we have been given the wrong slant on their activities.

Iconoclast.

A new book, but the same age old story—
You remember? The pitcher and the well,
And the pitcher was cracked up and broken,
But you know it's not easy to tell.

'Cause it's always a scene quite pathetic
And it moistens the eyes e'en of men,
When a fellow who once was a champion
Is crashed to the ranks once again.

What a pity to see just the shadow
Of a champ who could take it and give,
See the punches beat on him like tattoo
And crash through his guard like a sleve.

See the spirit that cannot be broken
Try to carry him out to the foe,
But the old legs and muscles outspoken,
Hard though he urges, won't go.

And the punches no one who has faced him
Could take on the body and stand,
Miss the old eagle eye to direct them,
Try though, they might, cannot land.

And the powerful right, lost their sting,
When they hit in the old days spelled
"curtain,"
But now only memories bring.

Of that old crouching tiger-like Dempsey
That Willard and Firpo can tell,
But, now, just the same age old story—
You remember? The pitcher and the well.

Shamrocks in Final Title Bid Tonight

Kansas City, Mo., Feb. 25.—[Special.]—The Chicago Shamrocks and the Pla-Mors meet tomorrow night in the most critical game of the American league hockey season. The Shamrocks, three games down, but having two more games to play than the league leaders, believe if they win tonight they can still beat out the Pla-Mors.

Victory for the Pla-Mors will give them a four game lead and will practically cinch the championship in the regular schedule and of the bye in the playoffs.

The Pla-Mors will have their full strength tonight, while the Shamrocks are handicapped by the loss of Eddie Wiseman, the league's leading scorer. Wiseman, who has several torn ligaments in his right leg, did not accompany the team. His injury breaks up the highest scoring forward line in the league, the kid combination consisting of Riley, Prelesnik, and Wiseman.

Capt. Gordie Brydson, leading scorer of the league last year, will be in Wiseman's place. Tonight's game marks the seventh and rubber meeting of the season between the two clubs. They meet once more at Chicago on March 17.

HUNTINGTON, IND., SEEKS PLACE IN LOYOLA TOURNEY

Indiana may be represented in the National Catholic Interscholastic basketball tournament by more than one team. St. Mary's High school of Huntington, Ind., yesterday requested an invitation to the meet, which is to be held at Loyola university March 16 to 20.

The Indiana State Catholic High School association recently voted to permit only Jasper academy to enter the Loyola meet, but the permission has now been extended to cover the St. Mary's team. The Huntington school has won 15 and lost 1.

There is a possibility that the winner of the Indiana Catholic tournament will also be granted permission to apply for a place in the Loyola bracket.

Y COLLEGE ENDS SEASON.

Chicago Y. M. C. A. college basketball team will end its season tonight at Muskegon, Mich., in a game with the Muskegon City college quintet.

Dazzo Signs for Geno Match on White City Card

Paul Dazzo, 1930 Golden Gloves bantamweight champion, makes his first start in Chicago since losing to Hymie Wiseman at the Stadium eight months ago, when he meets Young Geno of La Salle, Ill., at White City Monday night. He won his 17th professional match in 18 starts when he defeated Vincent Trescott at Boston three months ago. Geno won a decision over Wiseman recently and if Dazzo whips the La Salle featherweight he will seek another bout with Wiseman.

STEINKE BEATS GEORGE ZAHARIAS WITH BODY SLAM

Hans Steinke, German heavyweight wrestler, last night defeated George Zaharias in one of the feature matches on the program at the Rainbo Fronton. Steinke was declared the winner when he pinned Zaharias with a body slam in 44 minutes and 50 seconds.

In other matches Hans Kampfer won from Frank Bronowicz, also with a body slam in 17:20 and Hans Bauer triumphed over Nick Nester with a flying mare in 14 minutes. Gino Garibaldi defeated George Hills in a 30 minute bout and Floyd Marshall pinned Rudy Hoffman in 9:28 in the first match.

Luther Beats Columbia to Clinch Iowa Title

Decorah, Ia., Feb. 25.—[Special.]—Luther college clinched the Iowa conference basketball championship by defeating Columbia, 33 to 28, tonight. It was the eleventh straight victory for Luther.

World Stars Vie Tomorrow for Skate Title

The annual western open speed skating championship meet will be held at the Chicago Stadium tomorrow night.

Among those who will compete for speed titles are Ivar Ballangrud of the Norwegian Olympic team, world's champion outdoor speed skater, and Frank Stack of the Canadian Olympic team, holder of the world's indoor speed skating title. They will skate in the 500 meter event on the program, which will be run off in two sections.

The European skating stars will skate against time, while the members of the American and Canadian Olympic teams will skate against each other in the man-for-man style in vogue in this country.

A field of 200 qualifiers will compete in this event out of an entry list of 1,000. Among the 77 class A skaters who will participate are O'Neil Farrell, Eddie Murphy, Eddie Schroeder, Ed Wedge, Lloyd Gunther, Charles Delphier, Helen Bina, Elizabeth Du Bois, and Dorothy Franey of the American Olympic team, Ballangrud and Erling Lindboe of the Norwegian team, four members of the Japanese Olympic team, Stack and Jean Wilson, who is the world's woman speed skating champion, of the Canadian team; Meegan Taylor, 11 year old British figure skating champion; Phil Taylor, professional trick skating champion, and Bobby McLean, world's professional speed skating champion.

Sixteen events and fifty races will be on the program.

BECKER TRAILS BONEFISH OVER A GLASSY SEA

BY BOB BECKER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Aboard the Ilderim, Florida Keys, Fla., Feb. 25.—After landing a number of bonefish down here among the keys we at last struck a morning with the kind of weather that provided the kind of show old George, our guide, had been telling us about. On all of our expeditions over the banks where the slim, silver tinted bonefish come to feed we have heard about the calm, still days when you can look across a glassy sea and follow many schools of fish as they show their dorsal fins and big tails above the surface.

Yesterday George took us out to Big Card bank when there wasn't a breath of air to ruffle the water. The sun was shining without a cloud to diffuse its rays when we left the speedboat and started to pole across the bank, which is nearly three miles long. Back towards the green of the mangroves we could see the Ilderim at anchor. A flock of cormorants perched on some pilings to our right dozed in the hot sun and squawked disconsolately as we poled ahead in the still, warm air.

There They Are!

Looking across the bar, calm and mirrorlike on this windless morning, the picture of bonefish working their way over the bank quickly focused our attention to the business at hand. We sat in the front of the boat, first scanning the surface with a pair of binoculars and then with eyes unassisted by glasses. Meantime George kept up a running conversation about the fish as we caught sight of different schools.

Once we focused the glasses across the even surface of the bank to the mouth of a bay about a half mile distant and even there saw the flash of bonefish. When five, ten or more show parts of their bodies above the water it looks as if that many tiny mirrors were suddenly thrust above the bar. There is a fleeting sparkle, a glitter of sunlight on the wet moving fish, and then it is gone.

Hermit Crab Lure.

When we saw these fish they were moving with the tide going in. The job was to get ahead of the fish and cast the hermit crab lure ahead of a school so that when they came along they would get the scent of the fresh bait as and, George describes the action, trail it. That is another thriller. To make a cast watch the school get the scent of the hermit crab, rush to find it, and then wait for those two tugs on the line which mean a fish makes the tenderfoot bonefish angler's heart go at racing speed.

MRS. T. F. WALSH, WIDOW OF MINE MAGNATE, IS DEAD

Long Society Leader in Washington, D. C.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 25.—[Special.]—Mrs. Thomas F. Walsh, prominent society woman, and mother of Evalyn Walsh McLean, estranged wife of Edward B. McLean, publisher of the Washington Post, died today at her apartment in the Mayflower hotel after a brief illness.

Mrs. Walsh was the widow of the late Thomas F. Walsh, internationally known mining magnate. Before her marriage to Mr. Walsh at Leadville, Colo., in 1879, she was Carrie Bell Reed of Wisconsin.

She and Mr. Walsh came to Washington in the early nineties, built a mansion on Massachusetts avenue, which remains one of the capital's show places, and proceeded to dazzle society with a series of brilliant entertainments.

Decorated by Belgium.

Mrs Walsh was decorated by the Belgian government for her relief work during the war, and had entertained both the king and queen of Belgium and the prince of Wales at her home during their visit to this country. Her great wealth, inherited from her husband, whose mining ventures proved extremely successful, made her one of the few social leaders in Washington whose sway was generally acknowledged.

During the past four months, the Walsh residence on Massachusetts avenue has been occupied by Mrs. McLean, Mrs. Walsh having taken an apartment in the Mayflower. Funeral services will be conducted from the mansion, with Bishop James E. Freeman of the Washington cathedral officiating.

In addition to her daughter, Mrs. Walsh is survived by three grandchildren, John R., Edward B., and Emily B. McLean, and by a nephew, Monroe Lee of California. A son, Vinson Walsh, was killed in an automobile accident in 1905.

Oldtimers in Mourning.

Silverton, Colo., Feb. 25.—[Special.]—Grizzled oldtimers in this mountain mining community mourned the death of "Carrie" Walsh, widow of Tom Walsh, one time mining king of Colorado.

Word of her death in Washington was received over the single telephone line in operation, strung several days ago by linemen working on snow shoes. They risked their lives to rebuild the line, facing death at any moment from giant snow slides.

Silverton's one thousand inhabitants tonight had been shut off from the outside world for twenty days, snow filled canyons stopping all travel. Food supplies are running low and only canned goods remain.

Loses Fortune in '93.

Tom Walsh and his wife came here in 1895, two years after the panic of '93 had swept away his fortune, wrested from the gold and silver mines of Leadville. It was in Leadville that Walsh and Carrie B. Reed were married in 1879.

Walsh, his fortune gone, left Leadville for Silverton, then a prosperous mining community, and began operating a pyritic smelter. A 'hunch" caused him to send an old prospector to mine dumps in the Imogene basin area north of here to obtain samples of discarded silver ore. They assayed eighty ounces of gold to the ton.

Ill in bed, the news so excited Walsh that he rose and rode horseback over mountain trails from Ouray to the basin. In a short time Walsh had obtained leases on almost every piece of property in the basin. The richest strike was made at the Camp Bird mine, which produced for Walsh more than two and one-half millions in gold before he sold it in 1902 for five million dollars. Walsh died in Washington, D. C., in 1910.

Meanwhile Kuehl slashed his wrists and throat. He was treated at the city hospital, and it was from the fourth floor there that he either fell or jumped to his death. Private funeral services will be held at 2 p. m. tomorrow at the chapel at 4717 Broadway.

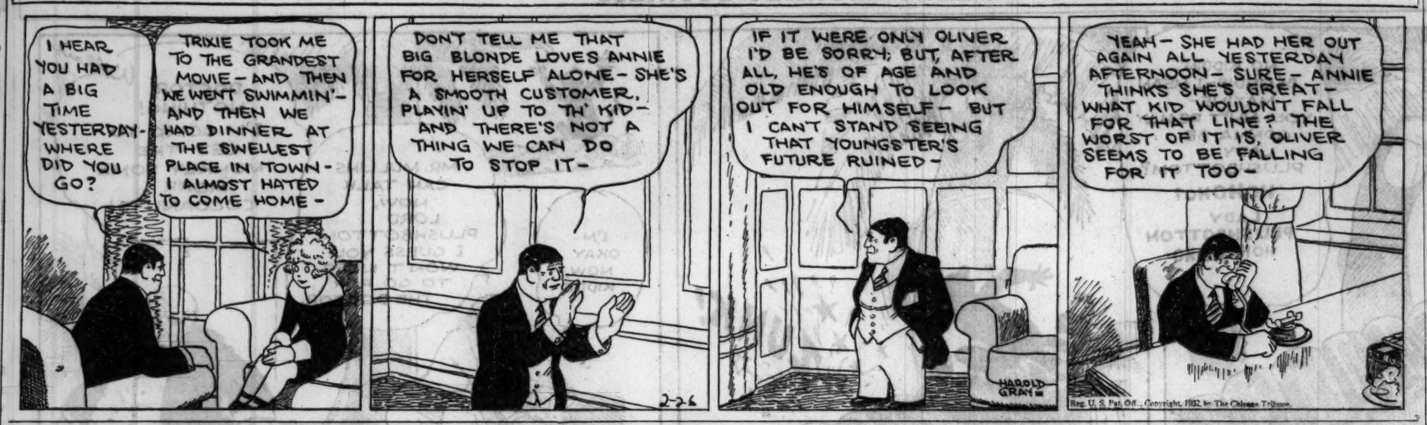
LITTLE ORPHAN ANNIE: On the Side Lines



AUDITOR NAMES RECEIVERS FOR 4 CLOSED BANKS

State Institutions Get No U. S. Loans.

State Auditor Oscar Nelson yesterday announced the appointment of receivers and attorneys for the receivers of four closed banks as follows:

State Bank of Niles, closed on Feb. 6; H. E. Robertson, receiver; Schuyler, Dunbar & Weinfeld, attorneys.

Morgan Park Trust and Savings bank, Longwood drive and 111th street, closed on Jan. 25; Robert C. McManus, receiver; Ungaro & Sherwood, attorneys.

Can't Get U. S. Loans.

The auditor's office was informed that closed state banks may not obtain loans from the $2,000,000,000 Federal Reconstruction corporation, although closed national banks may. This is due, he was told, to Illinois banking laws not authorizing the receiver of a closed bank to pledge its assets for a loan. Inasmuch as Attorney General Oscar Carlstrom recently gave an opinion that directors of Illinois building and loan associations could pledge assets for a loan, the auditor asked him for an opinion regarding closed banks unfreezing their assets with government help as national bank receivers are planning to do.

United States Senator Otis F. Glenn accompanied a committee representing the depositors of the closed Ogden National bank of Chicago to the office of John W. Pole, controller of the currency, in Washington yesterday. They sought information regarding the handling of the bank's assets.

Plan to Reopen Bank.

Joseph A. McNeill, chairman of a depositors' committee of the Morgan Park bank, said efforts were being made to reorganize and reopen the bank. Assurances were given by the auditor's office that in this event the receiver would be withdrawn.

A voluntary petition in bankruptcy was filed yesterday in the federal court at Danville by Charles H. Meyer, who gave Urbana, Ill., as his home and who listed as one of his debts $149,000 owed the receiver for the closed Lake View State bank in Chicago. Meyer, former chief examiner for the Chicago Clearing House association, borrowed more than $400,000 from Chicago banks. In his petition yesterday he listed liabilities of $440,227 and assets of $124,150. His wife, Jessie, also filed a bankruptcy petition listing liabilities of $224,000 and assets of $90.

Delay Case Against Teller.

A charge of embezzlement against Victor E. Olson, 48 years old, 104 West 112th street, former head teller of the Wiersema State bank, was continued yesterday when he was arraigned before Judge James F. Fardy in the Felony court. Assistant State's Attorney Wilkie Ham told the court auditors were still examining the bank and that so far $15,000 has been charged against Olson, who, he said, lost it in the stock market.

Circuit Judge Michael Feinberg obtained admissions yesterday from Carl Ring, 4909 North St. Louis avenue, a meat dealer, that he had given false testimony Wednesday when questioned about his indebtedness to the closed South Side Savings Bank and Trust company, 4659 Cottage Grove avenue. Ring had said he was without means to repay his loan and his brother, Meyer, told the court this was untrue, that Carl had transferred all his property to his daughter and his son-in-law, Attorney Louis Rosenfeld. When Ring and his attorney agreed to turn over titles to his properties and signed over his bank accounts to the receivers of the bank to which he is indebted, Judge Feinberg released him after a night in jail.

WATCHMAN KILLS SELF.

Julius Tagge, 59 years old, a watchman for the Beverly Cemetery company, who had been despondent, shot and killed himself yesterday in his home at 2422 Grunewald avenue, Blue Island.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE— WITHOUT CALOMEL

And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

If you feel sour and sunk and the world looks punk, don't swallow a lot of nasty, salivating calomel or oil. laxative candy or chewing gum and expect them to make you suddenly sweet and buoyant and full of sunshine.

For they can't do it. They only move the bowels and a mere movement doesn't get at the cause. The reason for your down-and-out feeling is your liver. It should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily

If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You have a thick, bad taste, and your breath is foul. skin often breaks out in blemishes. Your head aches and you feel down and out. Your whole system is poisoned.

It takes those good, old CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up." They contain wonderful, harmless, gentle vegetable extracts, amazing when it comes to making the bile flow freely.

But don't ask for liver pills. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills. Look for the name Carter's Little Liver Pills on the red label. Resent a substitute. 25c at all stores. © 1931 C M Co

WRIGLEY ESTATE PETITION FILED IN LOS ANGELES

A petition for letters of administration and a copy of the will of William Wrigley Jr. were filed yesterday in Los Angeles, where Mr. Wrigley owned extensive real estate and other property. David P. Fleming, executive of the Catalina Island company, was nominated for administrator of the California property, the value of which was not definitely stated.

Another petition, to probate the Wrigley will, was filed in Phoenix, Ariz., where Mr. Wrigley died on Jan. 26. The Arizona estate was valued at $4,178,000, most of it represented by the Arizona Biltmore hotel.

Both the California and Arizona filings are ancillary to the probate in Chicago, steps toward which have already been taken. Philip K. Wrigley, son of the testator, and the First Union Trust and Savings bank were named co-executors.

Property in P. A. Barnett Estate Is Less Than $2,000

The inventory of the estate of Philip A. Barnett, loop jeweler, who shot himself to death on Feb. 16, 1931, in a vault of the Congress Trust and Savings bank, disclosed yesterday that his property totaled less than $2,000 in value. The inventory, which was approved by N. J. Bonelli, assistant to Probate Judge Henry Horner, did not list $150,000 worth of insurance of which the widow, Mrs. Myra Barnett, 5056 Woodlawn avenue, was beneficiary. Mr. Barnett, who was the president of Barnett, Inc., jewelers, at 240 South Michigan avenue, was survived by a son, Philip Jr., 5 years old.

COURT BATTLE OVER EDISON'S WILL AVERTED

Understanding Among Heirs Reached.

Wilmington, Del., Feb. 25.—[Special.]—The court contest among the children of Thomas A. Edison over the distribution of his $12,000,000 estate which was threatened after his will was filed last October has been abandoned. The announcement was made here today by William L. Edison, who had taken the lead in declaring the will was "unfair" to the children of the inventor's first wife.

WILLIAM L. EDISON

Mr. Edison would not discuss the matter beyond saying that he was about to file suit at Newark, N. J., where the will was probated, when a family conference averted court action and resulted in a settlement.

The announcement that there would be no court action was confirmed at West Orange, N. J., by Charles Edison.

"Understanding," Says Charles.

In confirming his brother's announcement, however, Charles Edison corrected the use of the word "settlement" by William. "There was no settlement," Charles said. "It was not a 'settlement,' but an 'understanding.'" He explained that his brother William had not fully understood the contents of the will at the time he threatened his action.

"When he studied the will carefully and was shown actual figures," Charles Edison continued, "William acted like a gentleman and admitted that he was satisfied with his share."

Disputed Clause Agreement.

Whether it is called a "settlement" or an "understanding," it was understood today that the family discussions which had satisfied William as the one who had publicly threatened a court contest concerned not only the actual figures of a codicil of the will executed three months before Mr. Edison's death, but also the application of a clause in the will which gave Charles and Theodore, as executors, full discretion to distribute any undesignated residue of the estate among the six children "in such proportion and at such time as to them shall be deemed judicious."

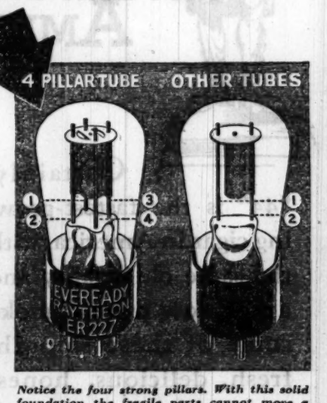
ACCURATE TUBES

CAN GIVE TRUE TONE



Notice the four strong pillars. With this solid foundation the fragile parts cannot move a hair's breadth from their fixed position. All other tubes have only a two-pillar foundation. Two supports instead of four! Jolts, bumps and vibration often impair their vital accuracy.

IF THERE are harsh tones in your radio, if musical notes aren't always clear, strong, and well rounded, the chances are your tubes have lost their accurate adjustment. It's easily lost, with ordinary tubes, for they lack the strength to protect their elements against jolts and vibration.

TRY EVEREADY RAYTHEON 4-PILLAR TUBES . . . they keep their accuracy permanently. They have four sturdy pillars to anchor their elements in place, one at each corner of a square. Ordinary tubes have only two supports, and are often damaged in handling and usage.

Your dealer can demonstrate the superiority of 4-pillar tubes. Compare them tube for tube with others, and the difference is amazing. But to realize what an enormous improvement they can make in a radio, install a complete set of 4-pillar tubes . . . then listen!

Eveready Raytheon Tubes are Quick Heaters. Don't be fooled by tubes of the old, slow-heater type with which the market is flooded. A modern tube should heat up in 10 seconds or less. Time it yourself!

RESERVE BANKS DEFY FOREIGN GOLD THREATS

New York Cuts Rate to Help Trade.

BY O. A. MATHER.

The American banking authorities issued another declaration of independence yesterday. They served notice to Europe and particularly to France that hereafter they will conduct American finance in the sole interests of this country and will not tolerate influence or interference by foreign banks or capital.

This notice was given when the directors of the New York Federal Reserve bank, the most powerful in our federal reserve system, reduced the rediscount rate from 3½ to 3 per cent. This action came as a surprise to the financial markets, as it had been generally expected that no change would be made at least until final passage of the Glass-Steagall bill, which is designed to make the country's gold stock more effective as a basis for credit.

For Easier Money Rates.

The action of the New York reserve bank, particularly if followed by other reserve banks, as is likely, is designed to cause easier money rates. Reductions in rediscount rate are usually followed by lowering of rates that the banks will pay on deposits, including those of foreign banks and lenders.

It will be recalled that last summer the Bank of France, which means the French government, protested the action of the New York reserve banks in lowering rediscount and deposit rate. The French financiers made veiled threats to withdraw their considerable balances after turning them into gold. And that was not long before the former French premier, Laval, came to the United States to confer with President Hoover.

While at that time it was said that the federal reserve authorities replied that France could take its gold any time it pleased, still the New York rediscount rate was raised twice in October, bringing it from 1½ to 3½ per cent. But for whatever reason, the French since then have steadily converted their balances into gold and withdrawn it and the process is still going on, although the bulk of French balances have now been withdrawn.

Becomes More Independent.

With the advantage now virtually assured through the Glass-Steagall bill, the American federal reserve system at last is in position to tell Europe and France that we do not need their gold, will not tolerate it longer as a financial or political influence and would prefer, under present circumstances, that they withdraw it. In fact, it is expected the New York reserve bank will challenge foreigners to withdraw their balances by lowering its rate on bankers' acceptances, which is the favorite investment for foreign funds.

The domestic influence of the lower rediscount rate is expected to take several directions. It is likely to arrest the deflation of bank credit, provide support for the government Reconstruction Finance corporation and enlist commercial banks in a movement toward recovery from business depression. Easier money rates and a broader base of credit through government agencies will encourage commercial loans, particularly now that there is evidence that hoarding of money is subsiding.

Federal Reserve Statement.

While the weekly statement of the federal reserve system, issued last night, shows no expansion in credit, it does show that fear and hoarding are slowly being dissipated. Total money in circulation declinied $17,000,000 further in the last week and of this decrease $14,114,000 was represented by shrinkage in federal reserve notes. Money now in circulation is $5,592,000,000, including $2,642,827,000 of reserve notes.

Due chiefly to foreign withdrawals of gold, the country's monetary gold stock declined $19,000,000, but it still stands at $4,35,000,000, which is ample security for our currency. Gold held by the federal reserve banks declined $6,038,000, but still totals $2,937,548,000.

Another indication of the withdrawal of foreign balances is the fact that foreign bank deposits with the reserve banks declined $22,449,000, which was the chief cause for a recession of $37,625,000 in total deposits.

Federal reserve credit contracted measurably in the last week. The member banks reduced their borrowings by $10,538,000, bringing this item down to $835,243,000. At the same time, the reserve banks absorbed credit by disposing of $13,000,000 of bankers' acceptances and $16,100,000 of securities. Total reserves declined $5,782,000, but the ratio of reserves to liabilities rose to 68 per cent, compared with 67.4 per cent a week ago.

World Copper Prices Likely to Fix Selves

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Feb. 25.—Faced with the necessity of further curtailment of output and of handling an unwieldy surplus, copper men continued discussions today in an effort to reach a satisfactory solution of their problem.

In copper circles there was talk that differences existing among some of the big producers might lead to a suspension of the rules of Copper Exporters, Inc., for the time being at least, allowing the members to dispose of their metal on their own at any price they cared to accept.

Prices Return to Lows.

Such a development probably would have a depressing effect upon the metal market. Indeed, with demand for the red metal exceedingly slow, prices are back virtually to the low levels that prevailed before the producers agreed on a curtailment to 26 per cent of capacity late last year.

Copper for domestic shipment was available at 6 cents a pound, equaling the previous record low, and the markdown of export prices to 6⅝ cents yesterday failed to stimulate demand.

Some copper men continue to argue that the only effective solution for the situation is a complete shutdown of the mines until the industry has an opportunity to work off some of its surplus.

Whatever the outcome, however, assuming no nearby pickup in consumption, further curtailment seems inevitable. While there are strong advocates of an additional agreement to cut production another 25 or 50 per cent, suspension of coöperative marketing and a further drop in the price would force involuntary shutdown of marginal mines.

Under Temporary Rules.

Members of Copper Exporters, Inc., have been working since Jan. 1 under temporary rules which have been renewed from month to month pending the drafting and acceptance of revised set of rules.

Temporary suspension of the rules of Copper Exporters, Inc., which dominates the export markets, would not mean necessarily a breakup of the organization for it probably would be kept intact awaiting restoration of more nearly normal conditions in the industry.

Phelps Dodge Changes.

New York, Feb. 25.—(AP)—Two separate subsidiary corporations, beginning March 21, will conduct the manufacturing business of the Phelps Dodge corporation. That was announced today by President Louis S. Cates.

The name of the corporation's present fabricating subsidiary of the National Electric Products corporation will hereafter be the corporate title of the National Metal molding division of the oganization. National Products will have its headquarters at Pittsburgh and be under the direction of W. C. Robinson, president.

A new corporation, named the Phelps Dodge Copper Products corporation, will take over and operate the company's business. This corporation will be headed by Wylie Brown as president. Mr. Brown is at present president of the National Electric Products corporation.

The fabricating divisions include the American Copper Products division with mills at Bayway, N. J.; the British American Tube division, with mills also at Bayway; the Inca Manufacturing division at Fort Wayne, Ind., and the P-M-G Metal division.

The Phelps Dodge corporation, through acquisition of the Calumet & Arizona Mining company, and prior acquisition of the Nichols Copper company and the National Electric Products corporation, is one of the three large units of the copper industry in the United States.

U. S. IS WARMING CLOSED BANKS' FROZEN ASSETS

Affects Those with National Charter.

New York, Feb. 25.—[Special.]—The task of marketing "frozen" assets of suspended national banks under the direction of the controller of the currency, John W. Poole, has been started by his agent, Dr. Paul M. Atkins. The latter has opened an office in the Federal Reserve Bank building.

Dr. Atkins is in daily conference with bond brokers and dealers making arrangements to put a plan into effect which will permit an orderly marketing of the securities to keep them from disturbing the market and also to yield the best possible prices for the benefit of the depositors in the closed banks.

To Sell Through Brokers.

These sales will be made through established agencies—brokers and dealers—through both the listed and unlisted markets, and they will be sold only as rapidly as the condition of the market will justify. No attempt will be made to sell the bonds in large quantities unless there should happen to be a demand on the part of some large insurance or other companies seeking investment. It is not expected that any other than the sales of large blocks will be made direct by Dr. Atkins.

One of the main purposes is to avoid throwing these securities on a market which is regarded as thin and sensitive. This means they must be sold in small lots, else they would break the prices and cause severe disturbance.

Amount Is in Doubt.

No estimate of the volume of securities to be sold through this general agency is available, but it is learned that the amount is not nearly so large as has been expected.

Building, Loan Groups May Pledge Assets for Loans

Springfield, Ill., Feb. 25.—(AP)—Illinois building and loan associations may pledge their assets for the purpose of securing a loan, State Auditor Oscar Nelson was advised today by Attorney General Oscar E. Carlstrom. Under the ruling, the way is opened for many building and loan associations to pledge their assets to secure the repayment of advances from the Reconstruction Finance corporation, the newly organized government loan agency.

TOBACCO LEASE, FOR $1,800,000 YEARLY, PENDING

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Feb. 25.—Lease to the American Tobacco company for ninety-nine years at an annual rental of $1,800,000 of the American Cigar company will be proposed to stockholders of the latter organization at a special meeting on March 15, it was announced today.

At the same time it was announced that Albert H. Gregg of Faber, Coe & Gregg, cigar distributors, had been elected president of American Cigar to succeed George W. Hill, president of American Tobacco. Junius H. Parker and George H. Eichelberger were elected directors.

Would Start in December.

The lease would begin as of December 31, 1931, and would embrace the business of American Cigar, together with its plants, equipment and manufacturing facilities and its brands, trade marks, good will and certain other properties.

If the plan is favorably acted on, it is further proposed to sell to the American Tobacco company, all leaf tobacco, tobacco in process, manufactured tobacco, supplies, accounts receivable, treasury stock and the investment of the cigar company in the Porto Rican Leaf Tobacco company and certain other assets.

To Receive Stock.

It is proposed that the cigar company shall receive for its assets, so sold, the assumption or cancellation of certain of its liabilities and the delivery to it of 70,500 shares of common stock and 129,500 shares of common B stock of the American Tobacco company, making a total of 200,000 shares of common and common B stock, which shares represent at $78 a share around the present market price approximately the net book value of the assets to be sold after deduction of liabilities to be assumed or canceled.

New Jersey Public Service Earnings Good

The Public Service Corporation of New Jersey yesterday mailed to its stockholders its twenty-third annual report, dealing with that corporation and its subsidiaries for 1931.

Other income was $1,130,880, bringing the total net income to $46,528,563. Deductions, including fixed charges, were $15,987,810, leaving available for dividends and surplus a balance of $30,540,752 for 1931, against $30,163,302 reported for 1930.

Compared with 1930, although there was a decrease of $902,492 in operating revenues, the balance for dividends and surplus showed an increase of $377,450. Deductions for operating expenses, maintenance, taxes, and depreciation decreased by $2,839,830.

The balance of $22,048,023 reported for 1930 after preferred dividends was equal to $4.01 per share earned on the 5,503,128 common shares outstanding.

The tax bills represented an increase of $1,513,997, over 1930. Taxes of subsidiary companies amounted to 12.3 per cent of gross and 27.1 per cent of combined net earnings.

Sales Show Increases.

Despite the abnormal business conditions sales of both electricity and gas showed an increase. Revenue from transportation decreased.

Sales of electricity totaled 1,718,671,356 kilowatt hours, an increase over sales of 1930 of 16,855,900 kilowatt hours. Approximately 61 per cent was sold for industrial uses. The report says, "the fact that sales of power were only 1.91 per cent less than in the record year 1929 was due in part to new users and reflects unmistakably the industrial stability of the territory served."

Sales of gas to led 26,850,385,490 cubic feet for the year, an increase of 577,838,930 cubic feet over 1930. The report says "encouraging progress was made in the development of new business, a total of 491,187 cubic foot hours being added in new connected industrial load and 331,702 cubic foot hours in new commercial connected load."

With duplications resulting from the ownership of more than one class of stock eliminated, the number of stockholders of the corporation on Dec. 31 was 89,450, an increase of 3,975 over the previous year.

The number of employés on Dec. 31 was 18,983. Wages and salaries paid during the year amounted to $37,419,424.

BY FRED HARVEY.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Feb. 25.—The share market had no ambition at all today. Prices eased off moderately for no apparent reason beyond the fact that they had gone ahead in the previous session and were due to swing back today. The turnover was reported at around a million shares.

A large percentage of the day's dealings was for the account of floor traders out to chisel fractional gains here and there to help meet their overhead expenses, which are becoming rather burdensome to some of them due to the long "waiting spell" being indulged in by cash customers.

A Dull Market.

Pool operators are understood to be having their difficulties in keeping up appearances, too. Out of sheer desperation they jump in and exercise their pets a bit now and then only to find when they have run up prices that they are being left with the bag to hold, with the so-called rank and file refusing to be attracted by any "demonstration" of any kind. All this means that the market has fallen on dull times. Extremely so.

Auburn Auto enabled some of the boys to rub the sleep out of their eyes by taking a sudden nose dive of some 13 points in the early trading today. Auburn has been in a mood to cut up for the last week or so and report has it that it is getting to be a source of downright annoyance to the board of governors of the exchange, who are understood to desire a spell of orderly trading at this stage of the game. The new drop carried the motor independent to a new 1932 low of 87, but it perked up some in the later trading, closing at 91½, off 7 points on the day.

Follow General Trend.

The different groups of the list put on about the same performance. New York traction interests again made a mild display of strength on brighter unification prospects, but elsewhere stocks were content to drift listlessly to lower and lower levels. In the

TELLS OF WORK OF RITCHIE CO. IN REFINANCING

Plan New Maturity Dates in Two Issues.

BY AL CHASE.

Reorganization of two properties by means of extending the maturity dates and reducing the yearly amortization and interest rate was announced yesterday by the Ritchie Bond and Mortgage company. In both cases the entire cost of consummating the proposed refinancing plan will be paid by the owners and none of the expense borne by the bondholders, according to H. S. Brownell, vice president of the Ritchie Bond and Mortgage company. He states that practically 95 per cent of the bondholders already have agreed to the proposed plans.

H. S. BROWNELL. [Wallinger Photo.]

The two properties involved are the Palais-Drexel apartments, at the southeast corner of 49th street and Drexel boulevard, and the Terminal apartment buildings, at 2438-40 North Kedzie avenue.

The Palais-Drexel was financed by a Ritchie Bond and Mortgage company issue of $425,000, since reduced to $383,500. The interest rate of 6½ per cent is to be reduced to 5½ per cent and the bonds extended to November, 1938. The prepayments of approximately $19,000 annually are to be reduced to $7,500 yearly. The three story building was completed in the fall of 1925. It contains 102 suites of one, two, and three room kitchenettes.

Terminal Apartments.

The Terminal apartment property, in the Logan Square district, contains forty-five suites, one, two, and three room kitchenettes, and occupies a lot 50x200. A loan of $132,500 was made in 1927. This has been reduced to $123,000. The time of final maturity is to be advanced from June 25, 1934, to Dec. 25, 1936, and the rate of interest is to be reduced from 6½ per cent to 6 per cent. The yearly amortizations are to be reduced from approximately $4,000 to $2,500.

"The Ritchie company is very optimistic in the feeling that both plans will be successfully consummated," said Mr. Brownell. "This work is being done by the Ritchie company with no expense whatsoever to the bondholders and without the necessity of referring either matter to the bondholders' protective committee.

Making Every Effort.

"The company is making every effort to collect interest on its various bond issues by taking assignments of rent and in some cases taking the management of the properties. On some issues, where coupons are not paid on the day they are due, payments are being made to the owners of the bonds in two installments in order to give the bondholders the use of the money rather than to wait until sufficient funds accumulate to pay the whole coupon at one time.

"Every effort is being made to keep buildings out of foreclosure where all the income from the buildings is being used for the benefit of the first mortgage bonds. In cases where it's necessary to start foreclosure proceedings and the matter has been referred to the bondholders' protective committee, the Ritchie company, through its president, Charles T. Ritchie, is working hand in hand with the committee in securing the title and reorganizing the property in the shortest possible time. The Ritchie company already has successfully refinanced some of its bond issues with the help and cooperation of the bondholders."

CULLINAN WINS REPUBLICS OIL PROXY BATTLE

Wilmington, Del., Feb. 25.—(AP)—The present management of the American Republics corporation retained control of the $42,000,000 oil holding company tonight at the conclusion of a proxy battle. A group of stockholders headed by Thomas P. Lee of Houston, Tex., had sought to oust the officials at the annual meeting.

The tellers counted 150,117 votes for the group headed by President C. F. Cullinan to 137,631 for the Lee faction. Lee filed a protest to 21,356 of the Cullinan votes, leaving an undisputed total of 128,761 for the management.

Lee's undisputed total was 126,282, Cullinan having challenged only 11,346 of the votes the tellers found for his group.

Charles K. Keedy of Wilmington, attorney for the Lee stockholders, said no decision would be made regarding a court contest of the tellers' count until he has examined the records.

CHICAGO ROAD WANTS TO STAY INDEPENDENT

Washington, Feb. 25.—(AP)—One railroad today objected to being included in any consolidation scheme and the Detroit board of commerce asked the interstate commerce commission to arrange for the Baltimore and Ohio to enter Detroit over its own rails.

Appearing before Claude R. Porter, chairman of the commission, S. M. Rogers, president of the Elgin, Joliet and Eastern, said his road should remain independent. L. P. Simms, manager of the transportation department of the Detroit organization, urged that the Baltimore and Ohio be required to secure its own rails into Detroit.

WALL ST. LOSES ITS AMBITION; TRADE CRAWLS

Auburn Auto Stages Lively Performance.

motors division Mack Truck moved ahead a half point or so, but other issues of that corner looked tired. The rails, utilities, and chemicals ambled along toward the rear together.

Preferred shares figured prominently in the more pronounced losses of the day, those of Smelters 2d, Southern Railway, and United States Steel dropping down about 2 points each.

Brisk selling came into standard brands at intervals and report had it that a proportion of the orders were originating with interests regarded as closely in touch with the company's affairs. At one time the stock was down about 2 points, within striking distance of its low for the year. Directors are due to meet shortly to consider the next quarterly dividend payment and, in spite of the fact that the rate was cut to $1.20 from $1.50 at the last meeting, considerable anxiety is being manifested over the outlook for maintenance of the current rate.

Await Favorable Events.

Gossip of pending "favorable developments" continued to help the commission house board room loungers to while away the dull hours, but details were just as lacking as they were yesterday. Many reports felt that the reduction of the federal reserve rediscount rate here, later announced, was imminent, but nobody seemed to care a great deal one way or the other.

News from abroad had a little better ring to it, denoting that Europe's financial position is improving. The Berlin boerse, closed since last September, reopened with an entire absence of excitement. The reichsbank rported a small rise in the reserve ratio and so did the Bank of England in spite of last week's discount rate cut.

Hog prices were erratic at the opening yesterday, but headed upward in midsession and some closing sales were as much as 5@10c above the low spot of the forenoon.

Better action featured all classes at the close, except pigs and light lights. The latter closed lower. Sorted strong weight light on the light butcher order held the extreme top steady at $4.20, while the general average for the whole day was unchanged at $3.90.

Some buyers during the first rounds managed to gather up a few small droves at a saving of 5c. The fact that supplies fell short of earlier estimates added tone to the later trade and sellers at the close were goading the market into an advance on the strength of the possibility of smaller receipts the remainder of the week. Five markets report 56,000 in sight for today, against 66,800 last Friday. Yesterday's total at Chicago was estimated early at 35,000, but a late checkup revealed only 30,000. Some buyers regarded the sharp rise in temperatures with apprehension and limited their purchases.

Contracts for July hogs were offered at $6.00 on the futures trade yesterday, but bids were held down to $5.00. May mediums were also bid $5.00 and offered at $5.35. March mediums were offered at $5.00 and bid $4.25, while lights in that month were bid up to $4.50.

Cattle Prices Generally Higher.

Cattle prices surged forward directly after the opening of yesterday's session and at the close gains of 25c were general all the way down the list. Expanding eastern demand for beef cattle, coupled with a decrease in receipts served to buoy the trade and sellers managed easily to hold the full strength all day. Yesterday's offerings at Chicago dropped to 5,000 in face of increasing eastern orders.

Only two Thursdays this year have had smaller supplies. Receipts during the first four days of the week are still ahead of a week ago, due to increases earlier this week; but despite the gain in supplies shippers have purchased 31 per cent of Chicago receipts this week against 28 per cent a week ago. Outstanding quality light steers and yearlings were absent, but some choice 1,035@1,344 lb averages sold to Swift and Wilson buyers at $8.25, the day's peak. A smaller share was eligible to more than $7.00, due to quality, and the majority of fair to good grades went at $5.00@7.00. A bigger quota of light thin steers ranged downwards to $4.50 and occasional sales of stock lacking much "kill" were reported below $4.00. Cows and heifers were slow, but held steady to strong. Calves ruled unevenly lower.

Lambs Get Drubbing.

Buyers and sellers were in grips over lamb prices again yesterday and bulk of offerings went into the late afternoon rounds before the selling side finally released their holdings at the 10@25c decline demanded by packers. The market continued to fluctuate sharply. Yesterday's drubbing of prices reduced the top to $6.75, while most good grades of slaughter stock went over the scales at $6.50 to packers and at $6.60 to shippers. The top Tuesday was up to $7.15, while early in the month $7.40 was paid. Smaller supplies this week have favored a higher level of quotations, and this week's market, as a whole, is averaging slightly above a week ago.

Receipts at Chicago for today are estimated at 1,500 cattle, 24,000 hogs, and 12,000 sheep, against 1,885 cattle, 28,022 hogs, and 13,074 sheep the previous Friday, and 1,925 cattle, 27,213 hogs, and 14,685 sheep a year ago.

DRY GOODS.

Dress goods are moving actively on past orders. Silk continues weak. Silk goods are in fair demand. Burlaps were unchanged for the day. Acetate cellulose fabrics are selling steadily for waterproofing uses.

WHEAT DECLINE IS SLIGHT HERE; WINNIPEG RISES

Stronger Foreign Demand Strengthens Markets.

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

While wheat market averaged lower yesterday, traders said after the close that it had given an excellent account of itself.

There was a good class of commission house buying on the minor declines. Despite the easiness in stocks and a drop of ⅝@⅞c per bu in Liverpool, net losses here for the day were only ⅛@⅜c, with March closing at 58⅛c, May, 62c; July, 63¼@63⅝c, and September, 65c.

A surprising development was the pronounced strength shown in the Winnipeg wheat market. Wheat closed at the best figures of the day and since last November, showing net gains of ⅛@¾c, with May at 69c in Canadian funds. The latter were around 11¾ per cent discount. Buying by houses with seaboard connections and presumably a reflection of a continued good foreign demand offset everything of a bearish character in the Canadian market.

Export Demand Helps Wheat.

Strength in Winnipeg had a tendency to restrict selling in the local market, although there was some backspreading between the two points. According to seaboard reports, over 750,000 bu wheat were sold in all positions, including 500,000 bu Manitoba via Atlantic ports. Owing to an advance in freight rates at the Pacific coast, it is expected that a larger percentage of the business will now be at the Atlantic. There were continued reports of an active foreign interest in American hard winters and intimations that business was being done, but the quantities were not given.

What the traders regarded as further evidence Europe has cut heavily into its home grown supply of wheat was seen in the raising of the French quota. That permits mills now to grind 25 per cent of imported grain. The official announcement said that would be raised to 30 per cent shortly. There also were numerous reports indicating Germany shortly would reënter the world's market as a buyer, owing to the limited supplies of domestic wheat and rye available.

Profit taking and a less active milling demand was responsible for the reactionary tendency shown in the Liverpool wheat market. May there closed at 61¼c, or ⅛c under Chicago at the time, compared with ⅛c premium on Wednesday. Buenos Aires was off ⅝c for the day, with May at 49¼c.

Crop comments on winter wheat from the American southwest are becoming much less favorable, and this has resulted in a number of operators looking for a crop scare to get under way shortly, especially if there are a few days of growing weather. Temperatures were reported as abnormally high for the season throughout the winter wheat belt yesterday and forecast was for continued mild.

Export Demand for Corn.

A few small lots of American corn were rumored to have been sold for export yesterday, and the report was taken by the trade as indicating that American prices had declined to a point at which they were in line with offerings from other countries. The narrowness of the spread between the Chicago and Argentine markets was commented on rather generally, as the difference at present is the smallest since some time in 1930.

A year ago Chicago March corn was 29¼c over the February future in Buenos Aires, while at one time on Wednesday the difference was only 1¾c. Official and private cables of late have indicated a much smaller Argentine crop than last year, a yield of around 260,000,000 bu being claimed, or somewhat below normal. Buenos Aires closed ⅝@1¼c lower, with May at 30⅝c.

Pressure on corn came largely from cash interests, who were hedging purchases to arrive and also in the sample market. The pit element were not inclined to get far from shore in view of the bulge of the previous day. Closing trades were ½c lower, with March 36@36⅛c; May, 40@40¼c, and July, 42⅝@42¾c. The country sold 138,000 bu to arrive. Shipping demand was extremely light.

Oat Market Firm.

Cash and commission houses sold oats early, but the market developed a firm undertone later and closed ⅛c lower to ⅛c higher, the latter on September, which finished at 26¼c. March closed at 22⅝c, May, 25¼@25⅝c, and July, 25⅝@25⅞c. Little attention was paid to reports of export business. Plowing for oats is reported as under way in southern Illinois. In Oklahoma seeding of the crop is expected to be somewhat later than usual.

Rye was easier early with wheat, but rallied ¾@⅞c from the inside figures and closed ⅛@¼c higher, with May 46⅝c and July 48¾c.

COFFEE.

NEW YORK, Feb. 25.—(AP)—COFFEE—Futures were irregular today owing to the circulation of notices which caused some liquidation or switching from the near months, but offerings were absorbed by buying attributed partly to Brazilian interests. No. 7 contracts opened at a decline of 1 point to an advance of 3 and closed 4 higher to 2 lower. Sales 19,000 bags. Santos contracts opened 4 to 5 lower and closed 2 lower to 4 higher. COTTONSEED OIL.

NEW YORK, Feb. 25.—(AP)—Bleachable cottonseed oil closed steady at 1 to 4 points net advance. Trade was light, only three contracts, or 450 bris, changing hands, but the undertone was steady, owing to the better showing of lard and cotton. Crude oil was 3¼c bid in the southeast and the valley, and nominal in Texas. Bleachable spot closed 4.00c; March, 4.31c; May, 4.44c; July, 4.56c; Sept., 4.67c. APRIL BUTTER AT NEW LOW

Butter and egg futures declined on the Chicago Mercantile exchange yesterday. April fresh standard butter striking a new all time low. Closing butter prices were unchanged to ½c lower, while eggs lost ¾@½c. Statistical information in butter was mixed, being generally bearish. Storage news was fair, but production reports showed the make continuing heavier than last year, although a slight decrease from the previous week was recorded. The warm weather proved an unsettling factor in both butter and eggs. Selling developed in eggs despite fairly favorable collection reports from various sections showing a decidedly sharp drop in collections compared with last year, a seasonal increase over the previous week being recorded. Sales: Butter, 120 cars; eggs, 10 cars. Deliveries: Eggs, 10 cars. Prices follow:

Commonwealth Customers Pay LESS for LOANS

$2.93 is the average Monthly Cost of a $225 loan under COMMONWEALTH'S Reduced Rate. This allows 25 months for repayment. There is no lower cost than this in Chicago.

THE personal property which nearly every family owns and the signature of husband and wife enable one to secure any amount up to $300 quickly and easily.

THERE ARE NO fees or deductions. You may take 25 months or pay all or part sooner. Interest at the Reduced Rate is charged only while you keep the money.

Also Salary and Auto Loans.

Why pay more than HOUSEHOLD'S LOW RATE on loans?....

Household loans, $300 or less, to families at reasonable rates. Rate on loans above $100 almost one-third lower than maximum permitted by small loan law.

For example, average monthly cost of $200 repaid in 20 equal monthly payments is $2.63—the lowest in Chicago.
